

"GRAND HOTEL" OPENING TODAY

Lionel Barrymore Has Had Admirable Experience For Role in Great Picture

Lionel Barrymore, playing the invalid Kringelein in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Grand Hotel," which begins a special 2 day road showing engagement Thursday, July 14th, at the Fox-McDonald theatre, was born and brought up in the atmosphere of the theatre. A member of the Barrymore "royal family," he made his stage debut as a small child, and has been connected with dramatics ever since.

Lionel Barrymore was educated in New York, and traveled all over the world in stock companies and road shows. In Paris he took up art and made his mark as a painter. He also showed great natural talent as a pianist, and has to his credit several concertos. On the New York stage he scored tremendous hits in "The Copperhead," which later was made as a silent picture, "The Jest," "Peter Ibbetson," "The Claw," and other plays. It was in 1909 that he first came to the screen, when D. W. Griffith induced him to play a role in "Friends," and from that time on, in silent pictures, he gravitated between the screen and the stage.

When talking pictures arrived, his enormous experience on the stage and on the screen gave him a decided advantage over the majority of film stars. He had been under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, appearing in "The Mysterious Island," "West of Zanzibar," "Women Love Diamonds," "The Barrier" and others. His first talking role was in "The Lion and the Mouse." Then he played roles in "Alias Jimmy Valentine" and other films.

Was Also Director
Watching the new art of the talking screen developing, Barrymore saw where his combined knowledge of stage and screen could be useful in directing, and proved it with a short drama, "Confession." This was followed by his direction of "Madame X" with Ruth Chatterton, which critics hailed as one of the finest directorial achievements of the talkies. He also directed "The Rogue Song," "The Unholy Night," and "His Glorious Night."

Barrymore had fully decided to give up acting for direction at this time, when plans were made to star Norma Shearer in "A Free Soul." The dramatic role of the father, Stephen Ashe, intrigued Barrymore so much that he consented to give up direction for a time and play it. His work in this role won for him the annual award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the best screen performance of the year 1931.

Then Bayard Veiller wrote "Guilty Hands" specially for him, and W. S. Van Dyke directed it. Since then he has appeared in "Mata Hari," "Arsene Lupin" with his brother John Barrymore (his first picture together) and "Grand Hotel," in which John is also starred. Barrymore is essentially a student, as well as a marvelous craftsman. In speech he is frank to the point of bluntness; his knowledge of literature and music is enormous.

Barrymore is six feet tall, weighs 155 pounds, has dark hair and blue eyes. He is married to Irene Fenwick, actress. The late John Drew was his uncle.

NON-RESIDENT TOTALS INCREASE THIS YEAR

Passenger automobiles from every state in the Union as well as from Germany, England, France, Mexico, Cuba, Philippines, Hawaii, Haiti, Alaska, and the Canal Zone have visited Oregon during the past few weeks, according to a report showing non-resident registrations just compiled by Hal E. Hoss, secretary of state. More non-resident permits have been issued during the first six months of 1932 than during the same period a year ago, the report shows. The total registration for the first half of this year being 35,103 as compared to 34,916 for last year, an increase of 187 for the current period.

Nearly two-thirds of the total number of cars registered from outside the state thus far this year are listed from California, 21,024, visiting machines. Washington comes second with 6,863 and Idaho third with 928.

Grants Pass led the 45 registration bureaus in the total number of non-resident permits for the first six months of this year, registering 7,544 automobiles. Ashland came second with 6,884 and Portland with 2,882 nosed out Salem with 2,590 for third place.

"Although occasionally a tourist complains when he must stop to register his car," explained Mr. Hoss, in releasing the current tabulation, "as soon as he realizes that the law is one that affords him protection as well as safeguarding the interests of the state in licensing residents, he recognizes its value and is willing and eager to complete the registration process. Apprehension of automobile thieves who have operated in other states has been possible in a number of cases through the registration law and many thousands of dollars in license fees have been collected by the state through the enforcement of the regulations."

The following tabulation shows the non-resident motor vehicle registrations by months for the first half of this year as compared with the same period in 1931.

Month	1931	1932
January	1,211	1,814
February	2,397	2,559
March	3,834	4,132
April	5,558	5,359
May	7,579	7,371
June	14,346	13,868
Total	34,916	35,103
Net increase		187.

Eyes of Sport Turn to West Expecting Old Records Shattered

By JACK ADAMS (Written specially for the Springfield News.)

Olympic track and field records should look quite different after the Olympic Games to open July 30 in the Olympic Stadium in Los Angeles. California and the breaking of records seem naturally to go together. There are seven world's track and field records in the record books which were made in California.

During the Olympic Games at Amsterdam in 1928, 15 new track and field records were made or equalled. How many of these will remain after the Los Angeles games?

Let's look at some of the records made during the Amsterdam Games.

In the 100 meters run, Percy Williams, of Canada; R. F. McAlister, of the U. S. A., and J. E. London, of Great Britain, during trial heats were clocked officially at 10.6 seconds. Here it is interesting to recall that Charles W. Paddock, running at Redlands, Cal., in 1921, did the distance in 10.4 seconds. That is a world's record and better than the Olympic record. Eddie Tolan, of the U. S. A., running in Stockholm in 1929, and again in Copenhagen the same year, equalled the 10.4 seconds time. Tolan and Paddock are joint holders of the world's record for the 100 meters run.

With the Runners
Helmut Kornig of Germany, at Amsterdam equalled the Olympic record for the 200 meters run with a time of 21.6 seconds. It should be remembered that an American, Roland A. Locke, holds the world's record for that distance. Running in Lincoln, Neb., in 1926, he covered the distance in 20.6 seconds.

A record for the 800 meters run was made at Amsterdam in 1928. But it was made by an Englishman, D. G. A. Lowe, who did the distance in 1 min., 53 4-5 s.

A new record for the 1500 meters run was also made at Amsterdam. But it was made by a Finn, H. E. Larva, who covered the distance in 3 m., 53 1-5 s.

A new time was set up also at Amsterdam in the 10,000 meters run, but not by an American, instead by that great athlete, Paavo Nurmi, of Finland. His time was 30 m., 18 4-5 s.

It wasn't an American who established in 1928 the new record for the 110 meter hurdles. It was a South African, Weightman-Smith. His time, made during a trial heat, was 14 3-5 s.

In Field Events
The Olympic record for the running broad jump was made by an American in Amsterdam in 1928. The record holder for the event is Edward B. Hamm. He jumped 25 feet, 4 3-4 inches.

The Olympic record for the pole vault is also held by an American, Sabin W. Carr, who in Amsterdam cleared the bar at 13 feet, 9 3-8 inches. Now 13 feet, 9 3-8 inches is high to be sure, but in California they have been known to vault higher. The world's record for the pole vault is held by Lee Barnes, of the U. S. A., who in Fresno, Cal., in 1928, cleared the bar at 14 feet, 1 1/2 inches.

When Dr. C. L. Houser threw the discus at Amsterdam a distance of 155 feet, 2 15-16 inches, he set up a new Olympic record. But contrast that record made at Palo Alto, Cal., in 1929. In that year Eric C. W. Krenz threw the discus a distance of 163 feet, 8 3-4 inches.

The Olympic record for the javelin throw is held by a Swede, E. H. Lundquist, who in 1928 set a record for 218 feet, 6 1-8 inches.

Track and field athletes have their off days like everyone else. But with a break of luck the Los Angeles games should see many new records established.

People attending are requested to bring their own picnic lunches and cups and their necessary dishes.

A dance will also be held at the large pavilion during the evening with Merle Good's Rhode Island Red orchestra furnishing the music. There will be no charge for the dance, but the orchestra will take up a collection among those who are dancing.

All of the usual recreational activities such as swimming, boating, baseball and other sports will be available for those who care for them. An unusual feature of the sports available at Willamette park is the aerial glide on which a person can ride across the river in a chair attached to a long cable. This is the only one of its type in this vicinity.

There will be plenty of tables and benches at the park for everyone. The rains of Wednesday have not spoiled the grounds which are sandy and well cleared.
