"WE SHALL BE HEALED"

By Victor Croley

Wistful and still, on porches, row on row,
We wait and hope and watch life hurry past;
And it is one with when shadows fall,
And all the same when morning comes at last.

We know the prize of patience and of rest,
We know that only thus is victory won;
But we are young, and driven by the fires
Of work to do before our webs are spun. . . .

We calm our hearts; we know His way is best,
And faith becomes an all-protecting shield;
For each of us another dawn will break—
Some day we shall be, will be, healed.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This poem was written expressly for the Christmas Seal sale by Victor Croley, who was confined to bed with tuberculosis for six years. "After a half-starved and neglected childhood, I went to work at the ripe age of twelve," he writes. "I was tortured by any of others in the public libraries and at night schools. I was kicked out because I couldn't stay awake." At one time he got a job singing in a cheap movie show so he could go to high school during the day. When he was eighteen years old he weighed under 100 pounds, and had already entered a promising career as an advertising writer in New York City. Two years later he was discovered to have a far advanced case of tuberculosis. Today, thanks to modern sanatorium technique, he weighs 140 pounds, feels better than ever before, and is looking forward to a second and happier start in life. "My case should be a warning to everyone who does not know enough to take care of himself," says Mr. Croley. "Why cannot young people be taught the need of good health habits as a protection against tuberculosis? I hate to think that anyone else should have to go through what I have suffered because he did not know." For twenty-five years Christmas Seals have been trying to prevent just such cases as Mr. Croley's by teaching the facts he learned through bitter experience and has outlined so concisely in his last two sentences.

IN LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

by CARL H. GETZ

Eighteen New Yorkers pay taxes on incomes ranging from $4,000,000 to $10,000,000.

The average visitor to New York sees more of the city in a week or ten days than the average New Yorker sees in a lifetime.

If riding in a New York subway, you can almost tell the time of day by noting the newspapers the passengers are reading. The tabloids are the most popular with the early morning crowds.

And we saw a pair of bright, new yellow gloves on the hands of a motorman of a street car on lower Broadway.

Was walking along Fifth Avenue the other day when I saw an excited Greek with a pushcart loaded down with bananas having a terrible time dodging motor vehicular traffic. How in the world he found his way to Fifth Avenue is a mystery. When I saw him a huge bus was in front of him and a foreign-made automobile at his heels. A policeman rescued him and directed him to a side street.

There are 4000 idle architects and draftsmen in New York. An organization sponsored by architects is raising money for their relief.

There is a steamship company president here who has his office so constructed that his desk and chair are placed on a platform a foot off the ground. He looks down from his seat like a king.

They are trying to revive interest in wood-burning at one of New York's department stores. It must be all of twenty years ago that you watched big sister ply this decorative art on cigar boxes and leather sofa cushions. It was rather dangerous practice over an alcohol lamp in those days. But now it is done with a pyroelectric pen and is very safe and rapid.

Was walking along Lexington avenue the other day when I was surprised to hear the sound of organ music. I turned and there on the curb sat a well dressed man, playing a portable organ. On the top of the organ were packages of chewing gum and peppermint lozenges.

There is a suicide here every six hours.

"Trust Lord with your prescriptions," is the slogan of a Long Island pharmacist called Lord Chemists.

It is said that fifteen percent of New York's male population goes to work each morning wearing a uniform. Surface car, elevated train and subway workers, policemen, firemen, mail carriers, hotel doormen—all wear uniforms.

On Sunday night, their only night off, most actors and actresses go to the theatre.

"I don't see why Senator Frost got sore because the Morning Bugle announced he was retiring from politics."

"Well, the make-up man by mistake put the article under the heading, 'Public Improvements.'"

Editor—Strange that this anecdote of Lincoln has never been in print before.

Contributor—Not at all, You see, I only thought it up last night.
