FARMERS WARNED OF SINGLE CROP

Outlook for Paying Market Doubtful; Live-at-Home Plantings Are Urged

The trend of demand, supply, prices and costs of farm products during the next year is indefinite, but it seems certain that it will be necessary for farmers to again plan operations on a live-at-home basis, according to the first division of the 1933 Oregon farm outlook just released by the college extension service.

The report contains sections on the general price level, farm prices and income, the demand outlook, farm costs and on planning the farm business, with several charts to supplement the subject matter. Specific crop outlooks will be released soon.

As a result, farm income gets out of line with the cost of farming, and farmers have great difficulty to pay interest and taxes, operate their farm business, and maintain their families.

Commodity outlook information will be released in another circular and copies of all of the Oregon farm outlook reports are available from county agricultural agents or direct from the college.

BREAKFAST IMPORTANT MEAL OF EACH DAY

Economical Menus Listed in Leaflet by Nutrition Specialist at State College

Starting the day with a good, substantial breakfast is an important factor in healthful living, according to nutrition specialists. That such a breakfast need not be expensive is a point made by Miss Lucy A. Case, nutrition specialist in the extension service, who has prepared for free distribution a leaflet giving suggestions for inexpensive breakfast dishes. In addition to general suggestions and 11 recipes, two sets of menus are included, one for the outdoor workers and one for indoor workers.

Cereals such as rolled oats, corn meal and coarse graham can be purchased in large quantities, in cloth sacks at a considerable saving, says Miss Case. Wheat and corn in condition as harvested, can be taken to the nearest mill to be cleaned and ground for a small charge. Unground whole wheat has a variety of uses in the home, many of which are noted in the extension bulletin No. 450 "Uses of whole wheat in the home."

Powdered skim milk is an inexpensive substitute for skim milk and can be used in such dishes as cocoa, junket, scalloped vegetables, pudding, ice cream and bread. Miss Case explains. With the addition of a half pound of butter to one pound of dry skim milk, one may obtain the equivalent of five quarts of whole milk. Beet sugar costs slightly less per 100 pounds than cane sugar and has the same food value and uses. Manufacturers' sugar costs even less than beet sugar though it is somewhat coarser.

Where the homemaker's labor has low money value a large saving can be realized by making bread at home, suggests Miss Case. Another money saver is cooperative buying of large quantities of foods which may be handled without waste.

Copies of the leaflet "Suggestions for Inexpensive Breakfast Dishes" may be obtained from the home economics extension service, Corvallis, or from any county extension office.

OREGON CO.OP. COUNCIL LISTS TOPICS FOR MEET

The domestic allotment plan, currency stabilization, transportation, and reports on legislation and national movements in cooperative marketing are but a few of the subjects listed for discussion at the annual meeting of the Oregon Co-operative council called for Portland Friday February 10.

The council consists of some 38 organizations interested in forwarding cooperative marketing in this state, but the officers of the council have issued a general invitation for all those interested in the subject to attend the annual meeting. It will be held in the Multnomah hotel, announces George O. Gatlin, secretary and cooperative marketing specialist at Oregon State college extension service.

A noon luncheon will replace the usual annual banquet of the council, at which time Marshall N. Dana of Portland will speak on "Oregon's Need for Foreign Markets." Glenn B. Marsh of Hood River is president of the council and will preside at the meeting.

Return from California—Lynn Lansbery and son, Arbie, returned Saturday from a business trip to southern California.
