Washington, D. C., Feb. 23—The last of the Hoover family's personal effects have been taken out of the White House and put on board a government ship, which will take them through the Panama Canal to the Mare Island Navy Yard in San Francisco Bay. From there it will be a short haul by truck to the Hoovers' permanent residence at Stanford University, Palo Alto, California. Mr. and Mrs. Hoover are "living out of suitcases" until the fourth of March. They will have very little baggage to take with them when they leave Washington on that day. Mr. Hoover will accompany the new president to the Capitol, but his plans do not contemplate remaining there to listen to his successor's inaugural address. Instead he will meet Mrs. Hoover at the railroad station, shortly after noon, and they will take a train for New York to catch a ship which is sailing that night for California.

Democrats in Control Twelve years of uninterrupted Republican control of the Federal Government are practically at an end. The Democratic Party is in more complete control than it has been since the first administration of Woodrow Wilson, which began just twenty years ago. At that time only a few persons on either side of the Atlantic anticipated the great European War, and fewer still had any remote idea that the United States would be dragged into it. Yet it is the events which occurred during the war which are at the roots of the economic troubles from which the United States and all the rest of the world are suffering.

By all odds the biggest job ahead of the Roosevelt administration is the adjustment of the international situation, with respect of debts growing out of the war, and the effort to restore international trade upon which the prosperity of the United States still greatly depends. And the most important task which President Roosevelt and his party's congress will have to tackle also grew out of the war. This is the problem of pensions, hospitalization and bonus payments for those who served under the American flag in that war.

It seems from here at this time safe to assert, first, that the new administration will not consent to the demand of the American Legion for immediate payment of the deferred bonus certificates held by veterans of the war. It also seems safe to predict that there will be a complete reorganization of the system of caring for invalid and disabled veterans whose allowances and injuries are not directly due to their war service. At present the cost of medical and hospital service for such cases is estimated at around $400,000,000 a year, and it is anticipated that this will be one of the first points of attack by President Roosevelt in his effort to reduce the cost of carrying on the Government by at least 25 percent.

Presidential Power The desire of many of the Democratic party leaders to rush a bill through the present Congress to give the President broader powers than have ever been conferred upon any President in peace time, for the reorganization of governmental offices, the consolidation of bureaus and the elimination of unnecessary functions, seem to have run against a snag in the shape of an intimation from the White House that if such a bill as proposed is adopted Mr. Hoover will veto it. Mr. Hoover has asked for authority to make certain reorganizations, which authority was denied him. He never requested any such broad powers as it is proposed to confer upon President Roosevelt, and he does not believe that any President should be exempted from the control and review of his acts by the congress. Since there are not enough Democratic votes in either House to pass any measure over the President's veto, if it is made a party issue, this seems to settle the matter so far as this congress is concerned.

Cleared for Action Mr. Roosevelt, it is known, has asked his supporters in Congress to give him all the power they can legally grant under the Constitution. And, in the beginning at least, there is little doubt that he will get it. Of course, any power delegated to the President by Congress can always be taken away from him by Congress, but it begins to look as if President Roosevelt would find himself in a position of more complete authority than any President has occupied since Mr. Wilson, who for two years, from early 1917 until early 1919, was practically the Supreme Dictator of the United States.

In any event, the new President will have to call a special session of the Senate to confirm the appointment of his Cabinet members, the new ambassadors and ministers with whom it is certain he will replace America's representatives abroad, and the hundreds of other Presidential appointees who must be immediately put in office and confirmed. In all, there are something like 150,000 Government positions over which the President personally, or his Cabinet, have unrestricted power of removal and appointment.

FEWER ACCIDENTS IN FORESTS REPORTED Two deaths and 503 non-fatal accidents occurred in the work of the U. S. forest service in Oregon and Washington during the calendar year 1932, according to report just issued by the regional office at Portland, Oregon.

Douglas Becraft, laborer, was struck by a falling tree while sleeping in a tent on the Mount Baker national forest last fall, and killed instantly. James Dumont, who sustained back injuries in a fall while working as a laborer on the Umpqua national forest September 22, 1929, died July 18, 1932.

Most of the injuries were incurred while fighting fire and were caused by falling, slipping, use of tools, falling of trees and other objects, and lifting or pulling.

Most of the injuries were to the back, 46 in all. Next in order are 38 knee injuries, followed by some form of injury to 37 eyes, 36 feet, and 35 hands. The complete list of injuries reads like an anatomical catalogue, it is said.

Largely because of the more favorable fire season, 1932 showed an improvement over 1931, which had 8 deaths and 575 non-fatal accidents, according to the report for the North Pacific forest service.
