Washington, D. C., April 20—Beer is back and the first day's sales are said to have netted the Federal government and the various state and local taxing units about ten million dollars, which is a lot of money. Some brewers sent President Roosevelt a few cases of beer which arrived at the White House just after midnight on the day when its sale was legal. The president gave the beer to various friends and that was that.

What is worrying the wets is that Mr. Roosevelt has not said anything about the repeal of the 18th amendment. The president's friends reply that there isn't anything for him to say. The repeal amendment is now up to the states, and most of them have arranged or are arranging for conventions at which either to ratify it or turn it down. It is hardly likely that Mr. Roosevelt will use his influence one way or the other.

Invitation to Nations

The really important development in Washington is the invitation by the president to the heads of eleven other nations to come to Washington to see him, or to send somebody, in order to talk over the world economic situation and get ready for the World Economic Conference, which is to be held in London in July. Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, was the first to accept. All of the other nations are sending their best men. The president plans to talk to each of them separately, get them to agree to something to which they will stick when the conference is called, in the hope that some line of action can be arrived at which will start commodity prices moving upward, stabilize the world's currencies and move the wheels of international trade again.

This is not an altruistic project to save the world. The president is undertaking something for the sake of the United States first and the world at large in consequence. Whatever we put in the pot he expects up to get back with something besides. The old foreign trade policy of the United States has been definitely scrapped.

No longer will the effort be to open foreign markets to our goods while barring foreign goods by means of high tariffs. That is certain. So when the president starts to persuade other countries to lower their tariff barriers he must have in mind that such a program can succeed only if we rearrange our tariffs to permit the sale of foreign goods in this country.

Time for Reciprocity

The need for this reciprocity on our part is inescapable. For even if we could trade our war debt claims for a lowering of foreign tariffs on our exports, without reciprocal action on our part we would get nowhere. For, as the president's advisers point out, there is no earthly way for other nations to pay for our goods unless they can sell us their goods. Wise observers here say that the policy of "economic nationalism" has been definitely scrapped by the invitations to Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany, Japan, China, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Mexico, and Canada to talk over international economies at Washington. Some go so far as to suggest that the League of Nations will be functioning here more strongly than at Geneva. It seems likely that more immediate and tangible results may follow these conferences than have followed the League's action, for in this case the United States has the whip hand and can apply economic pressure to make the other nations come to reasonable terms.

Must Have New Revenues

That there will be some new forms of Federal taxes to make up the vast sums which are to be spent in the various projects for relieving the domestic situation seems as certain as tomorrow's sunrise. Nobody knows yet what form these new taxes will take. The original idea of the administration of lending money based on federal credit only to self-liquidating public works seems to have been abandoned. There is not enough of that sort of work to be done to go very far in putting all the unemployed back to work.

With the plans for farm relief, home-mortgage relief, unemployment relief, bank deposit insurance and all of the other enterprises which must be financed against the credit of the United States it is estimated that from five to ten thousand million dollars of credit will be required.

The balancing of the budget is the first step toward making the government's credit good, so that it can go to the public and borrow the necessary funds for these other projects on bond issues.

Money, Men and Plans

In congress there is a powerful group which believes that budget-balancing, international agreements balancing, public works bond issues, international agreements, railroad, banking and utility reorganization, farm relief and everything else will accomplish nothing unless there is inflation of the currency. The project to reduce the amount of gold in the dollar is the latest scheme to this end. It is not regarded here as meeting the president's approval. It seems more likely that some sort of a silver purchase program by international agreement may be decided upon.

See salvation only in broadening the bases of employment by means of the five-day, six-hour week, at higher pay. Some others hold that there must be an actual redistribution of capital through a capital levy, income tax changes or a simple confiscation of capital and in come above certain figures.

And when it comes to international agreements, there are more different ideas than there are members of congress. The insistence that Europe must pay her war debts in full is not so vociferous as a few months ago.

The president hears a bedlam of advice daily. So far it does not seem to worry him. There are all sorts of people urging him to "go on the air" and urge all debtors and creditors to sit down together and agree on a general reduction of debts. There are others by the hundreds urging him to adopt some wild scheme or other. But the president keeps working away at the blue-prints of what, his intimates say, is a definite, integrated plan, to be adopted step by step.
