Squirrels Thrive on "Repellant"

Some so-called repellants used with seed corn in an effort to see if they would keep rodents away, proved instead to be more like bait to squirrels for the Lillie Hayes farm near Eugene. Mrs. Hayes tried out four kinds of materials on a small scale. These were carbolinum, carbolic acid and sweet oil, pine tar and lanplaster, and a commercial crow repellant. The chief result noted was that the squirrels left a check plot planted nearby and took special delight in eating the treated seed, especially that treated with the commercial crow repellant. The test was considered a "success" in that it showed what not to do.

POWER COMPANY BACKS PRESIDENT'S NRA PLAN

Although the Mountain States Power company office here has not yet flown the Blue Eagle, insignia of the NRA, the company is supporting the national program and is only awaiting a satisfactory adjustment of their special code, says H. C. Bromley, public relations officer. The employees of the Mountain States Power plant were to start a seven hour day this week according to W. K. Barnell, local business manager.

In his statement Mr. Bromley says:

"The full cooperation of the gas and electric utility industry in the President's Emergency Reemployment Program was promised to National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson by a committee consisting of George B. Cortelyou, president of Edison Electric Institute, Floyd L. Carlisle, chairman of the Special Code Committee of the Institute, and Herman Russell, chairman of the Special Code Committee of the American Gas Association.

"In view of the fact that the utilities are service industries in continuous operation day and night, some modifications of the President's reemployment agreement were discussed and the committee was requested by General Johnson to bring in their code as soon as possible, in order that the provisions covering these special conditions may be substituted for the provisions in the standard agreement, thereby entitling the members of the industries to receive the Blue Eagle, upon execution of the modified agreement.

"General Johnson states his satisfaction with the expressed desire of these industries to cooperate one hundred percent in the movement to increase mass purchasing power and spread employment."

WHEAT 'PARITY' UNREACHED HERE

Pacific Coast Prices Lower Than Chicago Quotations; Board Considers New Plan

With the whole theory of the agricultural adjustment act based on means of obtaining "parity prices" for the farmers' products, increased interest is being shown in the changing relationships between the things farmers sell and those that they buy, according to L. R. Breithaupt, extension economist at Oregon State college. This is particularly true as to wheat, now the object of a definite control program.

The government index of prices paid by farmers as of July 15 is 105 per cent of the 1910-1914 average now used as the normal period. This is two points rise since June and five points since March. As this, index goes up so will the price of farm products need to rise if a fair purchasing power is to be attained.

Wheat Gains, Commodities Up
The average farm price of wheat on July 15 had risen to $6.9 cents a bushel, or almost as high as the pre-war average, but since that time the price has gone down and commodity prices have probably raised somewhat above the 105 index, so parity is not in sight for wheat.

As for Oregon, the farm price of wheat has not reached any such figure, as an unusually large spread has developed between Pacific coast cash wheat prices and those at Chicago. This has amounted at times to between 20 and 30 cents a bushel. When one adds to this freight charges from farm to terminal, it is seen that the "front page" report of Chicago futures price is far above what the Oregon farmer can get for his wheat.

This abnormal spread between Pacific Northwest and Chicago prices is blamed on the excessive stored supplies of wheat in this territory resulting from near collapse of the export outlet the last two years. In an effort to correct this situation and avoid dumping the western wheat on the eastern markets via the Panama canal, the agricultural adjustment administration is seriously considering using a small percentage of the income from the processing tax on wheat to establish an export subsidy or equalization fee by which to make possible export of this northwest surplus wheat to the Orient.

Such action, it is stated, would not only restore the normal relationship between Chicago and western markets but would also protect the markets of the entire country from being depressed by distress selling of Pacific coast wheat through the east for what it would bring.

With this widening spread of wheat prices coupled with the fact that western farmers usually have to pay somewhat higher prices than the national average, little hope is seen for attaining "parity" for northwest wheat growers unless some such method is found for reducing the burdensome export surplus in this region.
