

GAINS EXPECTED IN FARM INCOME

Reduced Supply of Agricultural Products, Increased Prices Seen in Outlook

A prospective increase in raw materials prices including farm commodities, better and cheaper credit and less unemployment with consequent better demand for farm products, are foreseen as likely developments in 1934 in the first of the agricultural situation and outlook reports for this year just issued by the economics of the Oregon State college extension service.

This issue, which is the annual review and outlook number put out at the start of each year, has been prepared by L. R. Brethaupt, extension agricultural economist, assisted by A. S. Burrier, associate, and H. H. White, assistant economists. It is now available for distribution through any county agent or direct from Corvallis.

Production to Be Less

Total supply of agricultural products for the coming year is expected to be less but no great improvement in export demand is foreseen at present, hence any material improvement in the economic position of agriculture must come largely from improvement in the home market, the report points out.

Home demand, moreover, depends on the continued flow of income to industrial workers, hence any improvement in business conditions should be reflected in agricultural betterment, even though it brings some advance in farm labor costs and prices of farm supplies.

Price Level Advanced

The new year starts out with farm prices 14 points above the low level reached early in 1933, though it is not equally distributed to all branches of agriculture. Farm purchasing power is not comparably improved because of the advance in prices of things farmers buy. Complete application of the AAA programs and other projects designed to adjust production to the probable demand, are expected to balance the temporary disadvantage to agriculture of the price advances under the NRA and similar movements, the review sets out.

The review is illustrated with charts, graphs and tables which help give a complete but easily understood picture of the agricultural business outlook as the new season starts. It also contains suggestions and aids to farmers in making out operating budgets and keeping farm accounts so as to put their enterprise on a strictly business basis.

In Mr. Seymour's talk, "The Outlook for 4-H Club Work in 1934," he plans not only to discuss plans and projects for the coming year but to review briefly some of the accomplishments of 1933, during which time Oregon boys and girls garnered some important national honors while living up to their motto of "Make the Best Better."

SURVEY SHOWS PARENTS WANT NEWS OF SCHOOL

Oregon weekly and daily newspapers carried an average of 26 column inches, or more than a full column, of public school news in each issue over a period of a month, it was revealed in a recent survey made by students in a class in public information methods conducted by C. J. McIntosh, professor of industrial editing at Oregon State college.

Four issues each of 76 representative newspapers of the state were clipped during one month and the results tabulated, classified and compared with a similar survey made at Columbia university, New York. Subjects given the most space in the two sections of the country tallied fairly closely, with extra-curricular activities such as sports, dramatics, musical events and the like leading with 47 per cent in the east and 59 per cent in Oregon.

Next in order in this state were P.T.A. activities and management and finance, while in the east news of teachers and school officers was second with P.T.A. activities third.
