FALL CREEK MAN HURT IN UNUSUAL ACCIDENT

When some lumber which he was hauling on the side of his car began to become loose and away, Charles Michael, Fall Creek, reached out to pull it to the side of the car. A wind wing boistered and was shoved aside but fell, striking him on the arm and severing an artery. He lost a great deal of blood before a tourniquet was applied.

Alaska Man Here—Harden Smith of Fairbanks, Alaska, was a business visitor in Springfield Friday.

CWA Workers Unearth Mastodon Skull

CHICAGO... CWA workers, while digging near Aurora, Ill., unearthed the skeleton head of a huge Mastodon, the extinct species which roamed the North American continent some 20,000 years ago. The head is 4 ft., 9 inches high and 2 ft., 10 inches wide and weighs 350 pounds. Prof. C. R. Smith of Aurora College, pictured above with mastodon skull, classifies the skull as a rare find.

DAIRYMEN WAIT CONTROL ACTION

Federal Officials Study Results of Regional Meets; A. A. Will Not Force Plan

Agricultural adjustment officials back in Washington, D. C., to review the results of 15 regional meetings dealing with the proposed dairy surplus control plan have before them the almost unanimous endorsement of the basic principles of the plan by representatives of the Pacific Northwest industry as expressed in the Portland conference.

Organized opposition to the production control plan, reported to have been active in some of the regional meetings, was not evident at the Portland conference, though there was some opposition, principally from a few who felt that the whole economic system needs a radical overhauling.

Must Be Voluntary What the decision will be as to putting the plan into effect will not be announced until officials complete the examination of the reports from all of the 15 meetings. Federal officials at the Portland meeting were not at all certain that any plan would be launched, as they said the AAA has no desire to force a plan upon the industry or to launch one if the industry is seriously divided in support of it.

Chief modifications of the proposed plan asked by the Oregon, Washington and Idaho producers would first lengthen the base period from two to three years in arriving at a dairyman's average production, would use other than processing tax funds to finance the disease control features of the plan, and would strengthen the requirement for a compensatory tax on oleomargarine. The conference also passed a separate resolution addressed directly to the president asking his support for the proposed tax on imported vegetable oils.

A number of producers speaking in favor of the proposed plan of reduction in sales of from 15 to 20 per cent, pointed out that there might be some defects in the plan and it might be more difficult to operate than with some other commodities, but that with more cows than ever before, the industry is confronted with a crisis in the form of probable price collapse to unheard-of lows for dairy products unless some form of control is inaugurated quickly.

No Milk Shortage Consumers of milk in Oregon cities or elsewhere need have no fear that the proposed dairy adjustment program will cause anything approaching a milk "famine" or even any shortage it was emphasized. In the first place the plan is made so flexible that any prospective shortage brought on by the expected increase in consumer demand can be met by releasing more production among contract signers. More important, it was brought out, is the fact that none of the planned reduction is to be in the present market milk supply but rather in the surplus that averages from 10 to 40 per cent in every major milkshed.

Need to Drink Milk As a matter of fact, AAA officials say the consumption of fluid milk in cities is expected to be actually increased somewhat by the working out of the plan, as five million dollars will be expended outright to provide milk for underfed children. The proposed reduction from the 1932-33 sales quotas would come primarily out of the surplus milk supplies and would not exhaust that surplus. Statistics show that farmers producing milk for nearly all the larger cities are now forced to market from 10 to 40 per cent of their output as surplus for manufacture into butter, cheese, evaporated milk and other products. This brings them much lower prices than they get for first class market milk.

Would Stabilize Price The plan proposed would aim at holding gross sales of dairy products at about where they have been in the late winter and early spring of this year, which is materially below the high average of 1932-33 even though the total cow population is much greater. It is the threat of the great possible increase that is sought to be avoided by the control plan. The flood of milk now possible from the cows on farms would undermine dairy prices, drive herd owners out of business and leave consumers facing a real worry as to milk supplies and prices, the national leaders believe.

PREDICT BIG GAINS IN TOURIST TRAVEL WEST

Predicting a marked pickup in tourist travel to the Northwest this year, the Southern Pacific company has announced material reductions in roundtrip transportation for the summer season. The low fares will be in effect from May 15 to October 15, with return limit of October 31, according to representatives of the railroad.

Intermediate and coach rates will be cut particularly, it was stated, and all classes of roundtrip fares to Chicago will be reduced to accommodate travel to the World Fair, scheduled to reopen May 26.

STAGES START ROUND-TRIPS TO BEND MAY 1

Regular trips of the Mt. Hood Stages system between Eugene and Bend will be started on May 1, it was announced here today. The trip to Bend will be made leaving Eugene in the afternoon and arriving in Bend in the early evening. The stage will return to Eugene in the forenoon.

Our Meat Is an Oregon Product This is Oregon products week when the effect of buying at home on the local payroll dollar is emphasized. It is said that there would be no unemployment in Oregon if everybody in the state would buy the products of Oregon farms and factories. Our meat is an Oregon product, grown on Oregon farms and slaughtered by Oregon butchers. There is more reason for buying home-grown meats than for almost any other product for we have everything you need. The place to buy home-grown meats is in a meat market. We specialize in only first quality meats. Independent Meat Co. E. C. STUART, Prop. 4th and Main Sts - Phone 63
