SMART RIMLESS STYLES

Rimless popularity has risen rapidly the past few years—men and women choose rimless because its inconspicuous, attractive, light in weight; because there are no rims to obstruct vision. Lookit adds the feature long desired by rimless wearers—strong! Lookit is available only with rimless mountings styled and made by the Bausch & Lomb Optical Company.

DR. ELLA MEADE Optometrist 41 West 8th Eugene

Washington, July 12—It is President Roosevelt's hope and expectation that in the course of the next six months—that is, before the new congress meets in January—he will have got the whole of the complicated machinery of government working in unison to a single end, and will have found able men to replace several who are definitely on the way out because they have not made good in their jobs.

How he is going to do this without disturbing the morale of the administration is his worry. And Mr. Roosevelt doesn't worry much about anything. He comes pretty close to obeying the Biblical injunction about letting tomorrow take care of itself. However, a lot of other folks are doing considerable worrying.

Johnson Under Discussion Perhaps the biggest source of worry in the administration is General Hugh E. Johnson. Personally everybody likes General Johnson. In starting the Blue Eagle and the NRA off on a wave of popular enthusiasm he did a magnificent job of propaganda. He is still the great propagandist, but as an administrator, it is beginning to be realized in administration circles as it has long been realized by the business men with whom he has to deal, he is decidedly not a success.

How to ease General Johnson out without stirring up too much trouble is one of the President's chief difficulties. He must have the right man ready to slip into his place before he acts. Business interests are beginning to talk of Clay Williams, head of the Reynolds Tobacco company, as the ideal man for the job. There has been no intimation from the White House as to who may be the next head of NRA, but a change is regarded as certain.

Housing Act Moving Harry Hopkins, head of the Emergency Relief, and not John Fahey, head of the Home Loan Board, will be made the administrator of the new Housing Act. A campaign of propaganda to "fix up the old house" is to be begun soon. The hope is to get activity in the building trades started off this year and a big building boom in 1935.

What is still lacking is confidence on the part of private business and industry. It is realized that something must be done to assure business that it puts its money to work now there will be no further radical legislation or administrative actions to impair the stability of investments.

No word has been forthcoming on what the President will do under the powers granted to him under the Silver Act. Secretary Morgenthau declares that he will administer it "enthusiastically," but that does not satisfy conservatives. There is a strong belief here, backed up by statements from financiers who usually know what they are talking about, that the amendments to the Securities Act now make it reasonably possible for the flotation of new stock and bond issues to provide working capital, which is badly needed, for many large industries.

Threatened Strikes Hurt Business confidence is not being helped any by the continuous threats of strikes in major industries. The American Federation of Labor has declared its intention to devote the summer to the complete organization of the whole automobile industry, preparatory to making demands next Fall which it will back up by a general strike in the automobile factories if they are not granted.

The outlook as seen by impartial observers here is for a slight falling off of business during the summer, which does not now look as promising as 1933, with increased government spending to take up the slack while business men and financiers are studying and analyzing the probable effects and benefits, or otherwise, of the things which have been undertaken by the government, before making very long comments.

One of the things which will come in for a great deal of hard study will be the national debt. It is now 27 billion dollars—twenty-seven thousand millions. That is the highest point our national debt has ever reached.

The Debt Tax Load Nobody worries much about paying off a national debt—nobody but Andrew Mellon, that is. Mr. Mellon approached the public debt as a banker does all debts, as something to be paid. Statesmen look at debts as something to offer to the investing public as a safe source of income. "Buy a government bond and you can't lose your capital." And that is true so long as the government's credit is good. So the important question is: How much of a debt can the United States carry without impairing its credit? And the generally accepted answer here is 35 billion dollars.

To pay interest on double the debt of 1932 would seem to call for doubling the tax income; but the definite effort is to reduce all interest rates to percentages comparable with those prevailing in the older nations. The day of 6 percent returns with any degree of safety on any sort of private investment is regarded as having passed; five percent is the interest rate talked of most on private obligations. And considering the absolute safety of a government bond, the effort will be to refinance the old issues and issue the new ones on a basis of around 2 to 2 1/2 percent, so that the same old tax income will carry the doubled load of debt.

FARM BORROWERS RETURNING MONEY

Repayment of nearly $1,000,000 was made in June by borrowers from the Regional Agricultural Credit corporation of Spokane, indicating that the period of drastic liquidation in agriculture is passing. Frank A. Johnson, executive vice president, announced today in Spokane.

June is the first month since organization of the regional in the fall of 1932 that the dollar volume of loans outstanding has shown a decline. The RACC ceased making loans in March with the inauguration of the new network of 31 production credit associations, which now blanket the four Pacific north-west states. Additional advances were continued to be made to borrowers on the books, however.
