

FORESTER BACKS PRESENT POLICY

Present Income To State Is Greater Than If Areas Were Private Owned and Taxed

Claiming that the National forest areas in Oregon are paying more than one and three-quarters million dollars toward the states financial structure annually...

In his statement Mr. Buck shows that the forests in Oregon are now yielding the sum of $1,704,591 annually...

State Gets Extra Funds In addition to the amount mentioned the state receives another 10 percent of the total gross receipts from forest lands...

Increasing values of timber coupled with a national plan of sustained timber yield assures a gradual increase in the income to the state and national government...

Reports of receipts and expenditures from the forest service for the year ending June 30, 1934, show that in Oregon the disbursements have exceeded the revenue...

Benefits of Forest Work

Major benefits of the national forests as listed by Mr. Buck are protection and management of the timber resources...

In summarizing his statement Mr. Buck concludes with the following six points.

Statement Summarized The national forests are now contributing as much as if taxed. These contributions will increase steadily as the forest resources come to be utilized...

The federal government, in its 25 per cent payment of gross receipts to the counties, is making a far more liberal return than any industry could stand.

The states would assume a heavy financial burden if they acquired the national forests, and federal forest road appropriations would no doubt cease at once.

There is ample opportunity and obligation for the state to step into the forestry business. The field is ample for the three agencies, federal, state and private, to work together.

TUITION, FEES LESS AT OREGON INSTITUTIONS

State Education Board Makes Possible Reductions Below Those In Other Schools

Oregon young men and women are offered higher education in their own state supported institutions at a cost substantially below the average throughout the United States...

A smaller financial outlay is needed to attend any institution under the control of the state board of higher education than is required on an average at similar institutions throughout the United States...

Tuition Is Uniform At the University of Oregon and Oregon State college the fee and tuition charges are on an exactly equal basis...

Normal Tuitions Down Tuition and fees at the normal schools in Oregon are almost 46 per cent below the average for state normal schools throughout the country...

Non-Resident Fees Higher Out-of-state tuition charged at the University of Oregon and Oregon State college is, in contrast, higher than the average, being $150 a year in addition to all charges...

METHODISTS PLAN FINAL EARLY EVENING SERVICE

A group of Gileons from various northwest cities will participate in the morning worship service at the Methodist church Sunday. The Gileons are in convention at Corvallis this week-end and are seeking to give their testimony in all the churches of the valley.

This is a fine movement in which laymen of the various churches are linked together in an active Christian service and they have promised some excellent speakers, says Rev. Dean C. Poindexter, pastor of the local congregation.

The evening service will be held at 7 o'clock with a discussion into the theme, "A Glimpse Into God's Workshop." This will be the last of the early evening services.

DIET OF OREGON TROUT DISCUSSED IN BULLETIN

The bulk of the diet of cutthroat, rainbow and eastern brook trout found in Oregon streams and lakes consists of animal matter, and while they evidently prefer insects such as mayflies, stoneflies, caddis flies, midges and blackflies, they are known to eat crustaceans, spiders, water-mites, molluscs, fish, fish eggs, and occasionally earthworms, free-living nematodes, leeches, millipeds, centipedes, scorpions, frogs, snakes, birds and small mammals.

This fact, together with a great deal of detailed information on the eating habits of various kinds and sizes of Oregon trout, is contained in "A Preliminary Survey of the Food of Oregon Trout," a bulletin just issued by the Oregon State college experiment station.
