HIGH PER CENT OF GRADS DAIRYMEN TO BE

Approximately 80 per cent of the Oregon Dairy Farmers Offered Government Funds For Abortion Infected Cattle

> Provisions of the Jones-Connelly bill passed at the last session of congress provide Oregon dairymen with the first opportunity they have ever had of ridding their herds of animals afflicted with Bang's disease (contageous abortion) while being paid indemnities against excessive loss, say officials of the dairy department at Oregon State college.

This law, which considers the eradication of this disease to be a public health measure, is being administered by the bureau of animal industry of the United States de partment of agriculture, in cooperation with the state colleges and the state departments of agriculture.

To Cover Entire State In Oregon the work will be under the leadership of Dr. S. B. Foster, representative of the B. A. I. in Portland. Plans are now completed to cover the state county by county ign the contracts with the gov ernment under which they will be paid for disposing of reacting animals

Under the new federal plan, those who sign the contracts will agree to have their herd tested free of charge, and, in case reactors are found, will dispose of them and clean up the premises in an approved manner, and will continue the testing at intervals after the

Will Set Valuations In return the government agrees to have the animals appraised that are found to be reactors and to pay the difference within certain limits between such appraised value and the amount the animal OFF BY LION MEMBERS brings for slaughter. The amount of cash the government will add to the "salvage" value of an animal is $20 for a grade and $50 for purebred.

The blood samples will be tested in the laboratories at Oregon State college where veterinarians many years ago worked out one of the first successful methods of controlling this disease in dairy herds. Oregon is already in the fore-Dwight Kessey returned the past front of the states in Bang's disease control work, thousands of herds already being accredited disease free under a plan administered by the state department of agriculture.
