THREE MILLION IN AAA PAYMENTS DUE

Large Sum to Be Distributed Corn-Hog Growers: Oregon Gets Drouth Fund

Agricultural adjustment benefit payments in excess of $3,000,000 are scheduled to be distributed to Oregon farmers during October and early November under provisions of the wheat and corn-hog adjustment programs, according to figures compiled by the Oregon Extension service. These payments, all made from the receipts from federal processing taxes, are to compensate Oregon growers for restricting their production in line with the national plan for these commodities.

Oregon Quota Still Short The final base production figure allowed Oregon is 229,165 hogs for the total of all contracts. This figure compares with 108,250 total contract base given in the first estimate of 142,250 for the entire state including those hogs not under contract. On the other hand it falls more than 20,000 hogs short of the 250,000 which the extension officials considered the absolute minimum which could justly be assigned as Oregon's quota.

While the summer-long effort of the farmer leaders and extension service representatives to obtain a just quota for Oregon was not entirely successful, the outcome was a considerable gain even over what was declared to be the third and "final" quota of 213,900 hogs, points out F. L. Ballard, vice-director of the extension service.

Corn-hog benefit payments authorized for Oregon now total $859,265 of which two-fifths is payable at once. Under the original quota they would have been less than half that sum. Baker and Union are the first Oregon counties to receive the first payment checks.

Final Wheat Summe Listed Final 1933 wheat payments are estimated at $834,800 in this state, while the first 1934 wheat payment, to be distributed immediately after the former, is estimated at $1,529,427, making a total distribution for the next month or so of more than three million dollars in this state.

Meanwhile county corn-hog committees have completed arrangements for taking the referendum among contract signers on the twin questions of continuing some corn-hog plan for 1935 and of working out a single contract for all grains and livestock starting in 1936. Votes will be taken in one or two meetings in each county before October 18.

Drought Cattle Fund Additional purchases of drouth cattle, in excess of the original quotas which expired in September, have been authorized in Washington as a "tapering off" process. Oregon has been allotted $63,374 in this cleanup buying which will purchase about 4500 head additional. State directors in charge of the cattle buying have been authorized to purchase cattle only from producers clearly unable to provide adequate feed supplies for their stock.

REBEKAH MEMBERS ORGANIZE F. L. CLUB Younger members of Juanita Rebekah lodge organized an F. L. club here last week with the assistance of the Eugene, Harrisburg and Junction City clubs. Those initiated into the club at the first meeting were Mary Ann Louk, Irma Nolt, Eleanor Smith, Eunice Gerber, Crystal Bryan, Helene Richmond and Maxine Snodgrass. Four more members will be initiated later. They will meet once a month.

Miss Bryan was elected president of the Springfield club. Miss Nolt is vice-president, and Miss Bernice Conoly is secretary.
