

FARM MARKET IS SAID BRIGHTER

Egg Prices Highest Since 1931; Milk Production Up And Seed Market Strong

Egg prices are now the highest they have been since November, 1931, according to the O. S. C. extension economist. The advance of the past month has been more than the usual seasonal advance and is the result of a rather sharp reduction in production generally throughout the United States.

The drought with its resulting high feed costs is reflected in an 11 per cent decrease in the number of layers in farm flocks on October 1 and a 3 per cent reduction in the number of eggs produced per 100 hens in flocks.

Feed Costs Near Parity

Poultry feed costs are still relatively high, says the report, but with the recent rapid advance of egg prices the relationship between feed costs and egg prices has become a little more favorable. Based on current prices, it required during September an average of 6.8 dozen eggs to purchase 100 pounds of standard poultry ration. During June, July and August it required more than eight dozen eggs to buy 100 pounds of feed. The figure for September, 1933 was 6.1 compared with a September average 1926 to 1930 of 5.7.

A dairy report shows that considerable improvement in milk production per cow has occurred, particularly in the central states, but that heavy culling and marketing of milk cows during recent months has left fewer milk cows on farms than a year ago. The decrease in the number of cows has more than offset the increase in production per cow so that total milk production in the United States on October 1 was about 2 per cent below that of a year previous.

Increased demand and shortage in production have boosted some seed prices to new high levels. A report from Washington says that when timothy seed reached $16.80 a hundred recently it established a new all-time record. In Oregon clover seed is selling at higher prices than at any time since the start of the depression. In the middle of October Chicago dealers were quoting country-run red clover at $19 a hundred, and alsike at from $17 to $25.50. There are the highest prices since the fall of 1929.

CHICKAMAUGA OF '98 RELIVED BY LOCAL MEN

Claim Battle Against Plague As Dangerous To Soldiers As Actual Campaigns

Stories of the "Battle of Chickamauga Park in 1898", which proved to be as deadly as any of those of the Civil war, were revived here during the past week end by Spanish-American war veterans in connection with the visit to Lane county of Ralph Edmunds, junior vice-commander of the veterans of '98.

Unlike the Chickamauga battle of the Civil war, the Chickamauga battle of 1898 was fought at camp Thomas, near Lysle, Georgia, and the enemy was a horde of disease germs which spread a pestilence claiming as heavy a toll as had any previous actual engagement on the battlefield.

Among the present residents of Springfield who were at the camp are Charles F. Eggmann and Sam Richmond. A lengthy story of the terrible conditions at this camp when two-thirds of the men fell ill with either typhoid fever or malaria, was contained in a recent issue of "The National Tribune."

Contaminated water supply, poor food, poor sanitation, inadequate hospital and medical facilities, and crowded living quarters, all did their share in killing off many of the veterans, and also in leaving many more of the young men so physically weakened that they eventually had 50 percent of their number totally disabled through no fault of their own, says the Tribune writer.

The Tribune writer argues that these men were in the service of their country as much as were those who were on the battlefield and the government had recognized this fact until recently when the pensions of these men, most of them above 60, were cut off. Nobody not even Uncle Sam, employs men of that age, even when they are not otherwise disabled.

'BARRETT'S OF WIMPOLE' FEATURES THREE STARS

In Norma Shearer's new picture, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street", opening at the McDonald theatre Sunday, we have the pleasure of seeing three winners of the annual Motion Picture Academy Award appear together.

They are Miss Shearer, who stars as Elizabeth in the famous tale of poetic love; Fredric March, who plays opposite as the ardent Robert Browning; and Charles Laughton, most recent winner of the award, who shines as the diabolical father.

Miss Shearer, as the star, naturally carries the brunt of the film—and carries it with all the grace and charm and polish that made "Riptide" and "Smilin' Through" the successes they were. As the invalid Elizabeth, she brings a poignant wistfulness to her characterization that reaches deep down into the hearts of the auditor.

Besides such titans of the dramatic arts, there is also a long string of excellent supporting players, each adding his able touch to the glittering whole. They are: Maureen O'Sullivan, who plays spirited Henrietta; Ralph Forbes as Captain Cook; Una O'Connor as the obsequious Wilson; Katharine Alexander portraying the reverent Arabel; Marion Clayton as Bella, the flirt; Leo Carroll and Ferdinand Munier as Drs. Ford-Waterlow and Clayton, and Ian Wolfe in the part he created on the stage, Bevan, the elegant English gentleman.

If you see "The Barretts of Wimpole Street", you will see a famous play made into a brilliant picture.

RUSSIAN COSSACKS SING FRIDAY NIGHT

The singing thrills of the Don Cossack Russian male chorus are to be brought music lovers of the Willamette valley next Friday night, October 26, when the world renowned group is presented in concert at McArthur court on the University of Oregon campus. The concert will start at 8:15 o'clock.

This group of former officers in the Russian Imperial army, thirty six strong, will offer a picturesque sight as they appear in the huge auditorium. Their military training and descent is effectively portrayed as they march on the stage in military formation, dressed in striking dark blue Cossack uniforms.

The Cossacks have mastered every variety of choral singing. There is a wild beauty in their voices that belongs to no other chorus. Everything about them is dramatic, even to the electrifying realism of some of the songs with their outbursts of fierce yelling and whistling. In startling contrast is the devotional effect which these produce in their singing of religious songs.

Like a stupendous orchestra they are played upon by their magnetic leader, Serge Jaroff. They sing without the preliminary "giving of the note" and the compass of their voices range from A below the bass to D of the fourth line in the treble clef.

TYSON DEATH

ly proud of his military service for his adopted country and was a good soldier.

Mr. Tyson was born at Dawlish, Devonshire, England on December 12, 1878. His father was British vice-consul at Saint Malo, France where his son spent most of his early life. He went to school here and later attended the University of Rennes. He was interested in athletics and from 1898 until 1902 was tennis champion of western France. He was also well-known in France and England for his ability as a soccer player.

Lived Here Many Years

He came to the United States when he was 26 years old after traveling over much of the world and settled first at Falls City, Oregon. Later he moved to Eugene where he was married to Miss Mabel Rivett of Springfield on September 12, 1909. They moved to Springfield two years later and have lived here since that time.

For several years he managed a salmon packing plant at Gardner, before starting 17 continuous years of employment as chief belt man and chairman of the safety committee for the Booth-Kelly mill. He assisted with the reopening of the mill more than a year ago and then began work as purchasing agent for the CWA in Lane county. Nine months ago he was appointed district safety inspector for the SERA in southern and western Oregon. He was enjoying one week of vacation from this position and was to have started work as field man for the National Safety Council Monday of this week.
