SOME ASPECTS OF THE DANCE PROBLEM

The high school dance question is now being argued pro and con by many of our people. It is one of those minor things in our life that provokes hot arguments.

Ordinarily more than half of the students at the high school learn to dance before they graduate or quit school, we presume. It is a well known fact that they learn to dance in public dance halls where the associations and environment is not good for the youngster of high school age.

WHO'S BROKE?

You may be broke and I am willing to grant that I am broke but "we," the 120,000,000 people of the United States, are not broke yet when you consider our assets.

There are 93 billions of life insurance policies out—about three-fourths of a policy to every man, woman and child or nearly four to a family. And if we all died at once—which we shan't—and the insurance companies paid off the whole 93 billions they would then owe—which they couldn't because folks don't all dies at once—there would be $600 each or say $2,500 a family.

And then there's about 25 billions in savings bank deposits in this country and if we don't try to take it all out at once—and we shan't—there's about $200 per man, woman and child, or say $800 a family. And then there are some 14 million families that own their own (more or less mortgaged) homes. And there are other more or less satisfactory assets including 700,000 of us who own a share or more of A. T. & T. stock. And that's only one stock.

SHOULD WOMEN WORK?

More than one thoughtful man in this country has wondered if part of our economic troubles are not to be laid to the influx of women into industry.

The census figures show a surprising shift. In 1890, of 11,000,000 married women in the United States, 515,000, or a little less than five per cent, were gainfully employed. In 1930, we had 26,000,000 married women and 3,000,000 of them, or between 11 and 12 per cent, were employed.

Of all women, married and unmarried, 11,000,000 were employed in 1930 as against 4,000,000 in 1900.

The startling figure is not that of women workers but of married women workers. One-third of the married women of the District of Columbia are employed. Have child-bearing and home-making ceased to be worth-while occupations? We used to inveigh against women and child labor. Then our women leaders pleaded for women "recognition." What would happen if we replaced 3,000,000 married women workers with 3,000,000 unemployed men? Would our world come to an end or would it come nearer an economic balance?—Nation's Business.

A critic writes that the average man is selfish. "He will buy himself a comfortable pair of shoes before he will donate to famine sufferers. He buys his wife conveniences because he wants people to know he is a good husband. Whatever he does he is always looking out for Number One," says the critic. The writer did not consider that Mr. Average Man has changed under the new deal that does away with rugged individualism. He might now add that this selfish man pays a tax on nearly everything he buys to help the famine sufferers, etc., before he enjoys it.

We hear a lot about plans for a "more abundant life," in the future. I wonder if it is not the "more abundant life" that has put us where we are today—a life of living beyond our means.

FACEING DEFEAT

When Jesus and his mother reached the door of the synagogue on his first return to Nazareth a crowd was waiting outside. They returned his greeting with a mixture of regard and curiosity, and pushed promptly through the door behind him, filling the little room full. There was much whispering and craning of necks. He made his way to the front of the room, picked up the roll of the prophet Isaiah, turned around toward them and smiled.

Instantly all his illusions vanished. Instead of sympathetic understanding there was only cynicism on those faces. The old woman, his neighbor, whom he had planned to heal, was sitting prominently in front. She was willing to take a chance on anything, for she had been a long time sick; but her look was less a hope than a challenge. The substantial men of the town settled solidly in their appointed seats, and dared him with their hard eyes to try his tricks on them! "You have caused a stir in Capernaum," they seemed to say, "but little old Nazareth isn't so slow. We know you. You're no prophet; you're just the son of Joseph the carpenter, and you can't fool us!"

Slowly he opened the roll and in tones that stirred them in spite of themselves he began to read:

The Spirit of the Lord is upon me Because he anointed me to preach of good tidings to the poor, He hath sent me to proclaim release to the captives, And recovery of sight to the blind; To set at liberty them that are bruised, And proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord.

He closed the book and handed it back to the attendant. "This day hath this Scripture been fulfilled in your ears," he said simply. There was an ominous silence in the synagogue. "The eyes of all were fastened upon Him." He knew what they were thinking; they wanted him to do some mighty work such as he had done in Capernaum.

But he knew also the uselessness of trying. The scorn, the ignorant self-sufficiency were miracle proof. They would never receive him; never be proud of him. They merely wanted him to exhibit himself and they hoped that he would fail.

"No prophet is acceptable in his own country," Jesus said to them sadly, "Elijah did his greatest works in a foreign city; Elisha could accomplish nothing big until he got beyond the borders of his home."

With a look of soul-weariness he turned to leave.

INSURANCE WARNING ISSUED FROM SALEM

Salem, Ore., Nov. 15—(Special)—One of the chief problems confronting the state insurance department today is the increasing activities of unlicensed companies and associations which, through mail solicitations, are furnishing to Oregon citizens what purports to be insurance coverage, but which, in the time of need, proves to be a disappointment on account of lack of responsibility on the part of the company or because of limited and unfair provisions in the policies furnished.

"Unlicensed insurance companies and associations cannot secure a license for their agents in Oregon," says State Insurance Commissioner A. H. Averill, "hence they usually solicit business by mail and, by making extravagant promises of insurance protection, succeed in causing many of our citizens to pay for insurance service which they do not receive. Every day brings to the department inquiries from citizens who are suffering as a result of the operation of these unlicensed companies. The state, too, suffers a loss because it is deprived of the fees and taxes which should be paid. From the policyholder's standpoint, it is important that every insurance company be compelled to secure a state license wherever it operates. This enables him to have recourse to the courts of his state in the event of a dispute over a policy claim, whereas otherwise it would be necessary for him to go to the unlicensed company's home state to bring suit. This entails an expenditure of time and money almost, if not quite, prohibitive."

FREE MINING BULLETINS NOW AT WASHINGTON

Four federal circulars of information on mining subjects, written so as to be of interest and value to men actually engaged in the industry, are available free of cost to individuals applying directly to the United States Bureau of Mines, Washington, D. C., according to word received by J. H. Batcheller, professor of mining engineering at Oregon State college and secretary of the state mining board.

Numbers and title of the available bulletins are, I. C. 6611, "Small Scale Placer Mining Methods," I. C. 6748, "Essentials for a Preliminary Report on a Small Lode-Gold Mine or Prospect"; I. C. 6800, "Mining and Milling Practices at Small Gold Mines," and I. C. 6786, "Placer Mining in Western United States." The last named is part one of a series of three. Application for the second and third of the series, yet to be prepared, could doubtless be made in advance, suggests Professor Batcheller.

Keen interest in mining subjects is being shown by people in most parts of the state, finds Professor Batcheller. He emphasizes that application for these free federal bulletins must be made direct to Washington and not through his office.

LOWER FREIGHT RATES ON TURKEYS TO CALIF.

Lower railroad freight rates on dressed turkeys to California markets became effective on November 8th, according to an announcement by J. C. Leedy, manager of the Oregon Turkey Cooperative, Inc.

From Canby, McMinnville, Albany and other line points north of Eugene, the new rate will be 75c per 100 pounds to San Francisco territory and $1.05 to Los Angeles territory. From Eugene and south, including Roseburg, Grants Pass and Medford, the new rate will be 65c per 100 pounds to San Francisco and 95c to Los Angeles.

Rates in force from all of the above points for the past two years have been 87c to San Francisco and $1.17 to Los Angeles, while previous to that time the rail rates from the principal turkey producing sections of Oregon were $1.20 to San Francisco and $1.57 to Los Angeles.

The organized turkey growers of Oregon have taken a leading part in securing the rate reductions, which are expected to prove very advantageous to all shippers of dressed poultry this season.
