POINT OUT THE WAY

Business and industrial leaders are calling upon the administration every few days for a more definite statement of future policies.

Uncertainty lies not entirely with the leaders of large business and industrial operations nor is its cause wholly with the administration policies.

There is need for more and better houses yet no one wants to build, even if he has the money, when low return and high taxes stares him in the face.

Hesitancy in all these lines means low production and unemployment. We not only need an exact statement of policy from the administration but we need a careful inventory of our resources and a charting of future progress.

PENSIONS AND POLICIES

There is little doubt that we will soon have a national system of old-age pensions. That scheme is working out pretty well in the state that have put it into effect.

The average old-age pension in Massachusetts is a little over $6 a week. Those receiving it have to prove that they have no other means of support—that they are unable to earn a living.

The trouble with any such scheme, like many other desirable social reforms, is that their administration has to be left to political appointees. Before we can go wholesale into Socialism, we must first reform our entire political system of rewarding partisan efforts out of the public treasury.

Oregon is 1000 automobile accidents ahead of last year. This is no record to brag about, however. With 4000 persons injured and 251 killed, speed and careless driving go swiftly on their way.

Don't be ashamed of your parents who are wearing shabby clothes for your sake.

Half of us are unhappy because we can't have the things that make the other half miserable.

Carter Glass says there is no use using dynamite when insect powder is sufficient.

The biggest crop of wild oats are grown with rye and gasoline.

The only thing a man has when he dies is what he has given away.

Men like mules don't kick and pull at the same time.

THE BOOK by BRUCE BARTON THE DIVISION

The first line reads, "The Holy Bible." Since the word biblia in Latin is plural and means library, we know at once that we have here not a single book but a collection of several books.

The second line, "Containing the Old and New Testaments," means obviously that there are two main divisions and that the distinguishing feature is a difference in age, one group of books being more recent than the other.

The third line says, "Translated out of the original tongues," indicating that the Bible was originally published not in English but in more than one other language.

"And with the former translations diligently compared and revised," shows that this translation, which was made under the authority of King James I in 1611, is the successor to several earlier translations.

Turning over the pages we discover that the text is divided into numbered chapters and verses, which seems rather an unusual way to present a book until we learn that these divisions were not made by the original writers but were inserted in 1551 by Mr. Robert Stephens, a pious printer, who believed that more people would read the Bible if he made it easier to read.

A single glance is enough to indicate that the Old Testament is much larger than the New—and here is an easy way to remember how many books are in each. The key number is three, which multiplied by itself gives nine. The Old Testament has thirty-nine books. Again multiply three by nine and you have twenty-seven the number of the books in the New Testament.

Caesar, you remember, divided all Gaul into three parts. Similarly scholars divide the Old Testament into three divisions—the historic books, beginning with Genesis and ending with Esther; the poetic books, beginning with Job and ending with the Song of Songs; and the remainder, which consists of sermons, or, as they are more commonly called, books of prophecy.

Of the historic books the first five have a certain unity which has long caused them to be regarded as one. They are called the Pentateuch, meaning the five-in-one book, and there is a tradition that Moses wrote them all. Whether he did or not we can leave to the scholars to dispute. These are the five:

- Genesis—the book of beginnings.
Exodus—the book of going out.
Leviticus—the book for the priests.
Numbers—a sort of amplified census report.
Deuteronomy—a Greek name meaning "second law," or review and digest of the laws.

OSC BEEF FEEDING TESTS MAY CREATE INDUSTRY

Use Of Surplus Feeds In Valley To Produce Better Meat In Spring Is Started

Possibility of developing a profitable winter cattle feeding industry in western Oregon is being investigated this season by the animal husbandry department of the OSC experimental station.

Twenty head of feeder cattle from eastern Oregon ranges were purchased at the Portland stockyard this fall and, together with 10 head of calves raised at the station, have been placed in feed lots at Corvallis for the winter.

One of the older lots is being fed on a combined hay and barley ration, while the other is being given hay and mill by-products, the purpose being to compare the relative economy of several methods of feed.

The Willamette valley usually produces a surplus of hay and feed grains, especially some of the lower quality hays not suitable for dairy herds, explained Professor Rodenwald.

In some places this is being carried on already in a limited way, but profits have been limited by the apparent necessity of feeding too much grain.

The change in consumer demand in the last 10 years has been so marked that many packing companies have been forced to carry on extensive winter feeding operations to get high quality beef to supply their trade in the spring.

An important by-product of such a new enterprise would be the increased fertility to follow feeding operations on the farm, the OSC men add.

LUMBER BUSINESS ON UPGRADE PAST WEEK

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 29.—A total of 548 down and operating mills in Oregon and Washington which reported to the West Coast Lumbermen's association for the week ending November 17 produced 75,405,809 board feet of lumber.

The new business reported last week by 548 mills was 88,223,841 board feet against a production of 78,405,809 feet and shipments of 87,485,799 feet.

NUT GROWERS TACKLE PROBLEMS DEC. 7 AND 8

Methods and results in irrigating walnut orchards and discussion of the effect of the walnut code on Oregon growers, have important places on the program for the twentieth annual meeting of the Western Nut Growers association.

This year's meeting will be held in Portland December 7 and 8 in the Oxford parlors of the First Methodist church.

Both sides of the current code controversy will be presented at the meeting Friday afternoon by Frank Wilcox of California and William A. Dolph, Oregon.

Other numbers on the program include a fifth progress report on walnut blight control by Dr. P. W. Miller, OSC; a chestnut and filbert discussion by J. O. Holt, Eugene.

INVITATIONS OUT FOR LARGE BRIDGE PARTY

Many invitations have been sent out the past week by Mrs. Harry Stewart and Mrs. Walter J. Scott for a dessert bridge party which they are giving on Wednesday afternoon, December 5, at the home of Mrs. Stewart.

CORN-HOG PLAN DIFFERS IN 1935

State Officials Tell Changes In Benefit Payment Contracts For Next Year

Smaller benefit payments for hogs, but less reduction and more liberal contract requirements in other respects, characterize the 1935 corn-hog adjustment program, according to advance announcements received by extension officials at Oregon State college from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Copies of the new contracts have not been received, but detailed reports of their provisions show that growers who voluntarily choose to sign again will be permitted to raise up to 90 per cent of their established hog base instead of 75 per cent as was the case this year.

Restrictions Lessened

The benefit payment plan on hogs will be changed so that instead of receiving $5.00 on each hog raised under the allowed quota as was the case this year, the grower will be paid $15.00 a head for the number represented by the 10 per cent reduction.

Benefits for the corn growers have been raised from 30 to 35 cents a bushel and yields will be figured on a farm basis rather than on the particular acreage left out of corn.

This lowering of restrictions on what are now termed "shifted acres" is explained by the Washington officials as being necessary in view of the shortage of feed which is expected to develop early next season in many of the areas affected by drought.

Regional meetings in connection with the new contracts will be held soon after Thanksgiving, the one for this territory to be in Salt Lake city.

LANE COUNTY HAS 21 ACCIDENTS IN OCTOBER

Total of 251 Persons Killed in State During First 10 Months Of Present Year

Oregon's carelessness toll—injuries, deaths and property damages arising out of automobile accidents—continued to mount during October, according to final reports this week from the Oregon State Motor association, one of the sponsors of the statewide "Let's Quit Killing" safety campaign.

For the first ten months of this year there have been 16,786 accidents, as compared to 15,653 for the same period last year; 4,002 persons injured this year and 3,343 in 1933; 251 persons killed in 1934 and 199 in the same period of last year.

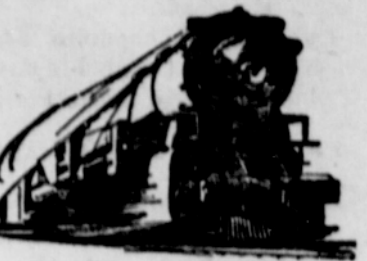

Comparative records for Lane county, for October 1933 and 1934, are as follows:

Last year 85 accidents, 23 injuries, no fatalities. This year 86 accidents, 21 injuries, no fatalities.

As a constructive step in reducing highway hazards, sponsors of the "Let's Quit Killing" drive are this week calling upon all garage and service station attendants in the state to make a special check of the lights of every car they service, to determine if both headlights are operating.
