

DRY WORKER TO SPEAK TONIGHT

President Of Flying Squadron Foundation To Talk Of Future Liquor War

Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago, President of the Flying Squadron Foundation will be heard at the Baptist church this evening at 7:30 when he speaks on "The Oncoming War with the Liquor Traffic." He will discuss the many phases of the drink problem, meeting all the wet argument. His many years of experience give him the background for this work.

His services in the legislature in the state of Illinois to the house of which he was elected in Chicago as a dry, attracted far more than state-wide attention. He is known throughout the country for his sanity in the presentation of the problem of the liquor traffic.

Mr. Stewart has recently completed a state-wide campaign in Minnesota where the drys made a satisfactory showing in the primary. He also spent almost a month in West Virginia and five weeks in Kansas in a campaign to maintain the state's prohibition amendment.

He is coming to this state for a series of meetings in the interest of prohibition. The public is invited. There is no admission, but an offering will be taken.

J. Stadelman.

Of the 249,016 cars that pay a $5.00 fee under the present licensing laws, 230,319 are private passenger cars, not used commercially in any way, while the other vehicles in the general class are listed as follows:

In 42 percent of the lightning fires on the national forests of Oregon and Washington, the eedles and litter on the ground are the materials first ignited.

Over half of the forest fires started by lightning occur at elevations between 4,000 and 6,000 feet according to an analysis recently completed by the Pacific Northwest Forest Experiment station.

Lightning ignites dead trees more often than live trees in the forests west of the Cascade range, while the reverse is true east of the mountains.

"One of Our Babies"

Red Cross public health nurse proudly displays one of the infants under her care. In the past five years Red Cross nurses have aided at the birth of more than 19,000 babies and have given care to mothers of many others, in their work to save lives of mothers and babies.

RED CROSS AGENCIES SAFEGUARD HEALTH

First Aid, Life Saving, Nursing Care, Promote Health and Safety

Five outstanding services make up the health-conservation program of the American Red Cross, according to the annual report just issued in Washington. These services are first aid and life saving, which together have trained more than a million persons; nursing, with an active enrollment of 36,133 registered nurses; Public Health Nursing, conducted by 7500 nurses in 424 chapters last year; and Home Hygiene, which has taught more than 700,000 men and women simple ways of caring for the sick at home.

"The achievements of the Red Cross in public health nursing place it among the leaders in this field," said James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations. "This service was organized in 1919 to meet needs developed by the World War and the ravages of the flu epidemic which in 1918-1919 took so great a toll of life.

"Since that time Red Cross nursing services have been pioneers in more than one half of the counties in the United States. Many services we established were taken over later by civic, state and federal agencies, and the Red Cross continues to establish services in other new fields. Red Cross nurses made more than a million visits to patients last year, and 629,025 children in schools were inspected.

"Red Cross courses in home hygiene and care of the sick are especially important in times of depression, because they teach families to maintain hygienic conditions in their homes and to recognize symptoms of illness early enough to prevent serious consequences. "Our courses in first aid have been instrumental in saving lives of the injured; in safeguarding the accident victim until the physician

Fires on Morro Castle and At Nome Alaska, Received Help of Red Cross Workers

A number of tragic and unusual disasters have recently called for Red Cross relief.

Included in them have been a flood in Kentucky, following a series of cloudbursts in August; epidemics of disease which threatened several sections, including some caused by drought conditions. Red Cross workers found much to do for the survivors of the Morro Castle fire and for those engaged in rescue work; and Red Cross relief went by airplane to Alaska when the famous old gold camp, Nome, burned in September.

An Army of Goodwill

When members of the Junior Red Cross learned that school-books had been destroyed in the Kentucky floods last August they gave $100 from the National Children's Fund to buy new textbooks for use in the schools. The maximum membership for the Junior Red Cross last year was 7,350,250, an increase over the previous year of more than 250,000.

They carry on civic and service programs in their own communities which each year bring comfort and pleasure to thousands of needy and unfortunate people. An international friendship is built up through correspondence with Junior Red Cross members in foreign countries.

The Red Cross is trying to prevent duplication of Christmas boxes in some families with others receiving nothing, says Miss Ellis, Red Cross representative for this district.

ADJUSTING BANKING TO CHANGING NEEDS

By ROBERT V. FLEMING
Vice President American Bankers Association

BANKERS recognize that changing conditions require new methods of doing business. However it is their responsibility to retain those essential and sound financial principles upon which this country was founded and has grown to be what is still the richest nation in the world.

Many of our difficulties have arisen from lack of confidence and from misunderstanding. Therefore it behooves the banker to bend every effort to create a better public understanding of sound banking and thereby, bring about that united effort and cooperative spirit which will hasten the day of national recovery and restore to the banker the confidence of the public to which he is entitled.

As an approach to the realization of this ideal, bankers should carefully scrutinize every application for a loan to see if it is bankable and, if it is not in bankable form, then make further examination to see if the loan can be made so, in order to stimulate use of credit.

Explaining Loan Factors to Customers—We must not expect our customers to be bankers and understand all the factors which we must consider before granting a loan. If we find that a loan is not, and cannot be made, bankable, then I think we should take pains to explain the reasons why it cannot be granted.

There are other measures which I think it important for the banker to undertake in order to eliminate the misunderstandings which have arisen and overcome the sentiment which exists. Under present conditions we have to operate under many laws and regulations, and also watch what further legislation is being proposed which affects our methods of operation and may not be in the best interest of the communities we serve. Nowadays it seems at times we must sit with a law book in one hand and a book of regulations in the other in order to make certain we are discharging our daily duties and functioning strictly in accordance with the law. All of this is very trying, yet I think in the end we shall become better bankers.

I believe it is the duty of every banker today to endeavor to understand the public he serves. In addition to his daily duties, trying as they are, he should participate in the activities of his community, so that, with the fund of information available to him, he may be as helpful as possible.

BOOKLET ON FARM CREDIT

The little panties are cut in one piece and held in place by an elastic inserted in the hem at upper edge. Small daughter will love this set and look exceedingly sweet in it.

HONEY USES TOLD IN NEW RECIPES BULLETIN

How to use honey in making breads, cakes, candy, cookies, salads, sandwich fillings and desserts of various kinds is explained in detail in a new book of recipes, "Uses of Honey" just issued by the extension service at Oregon State college. It may be had free from Corvallis or any county extension office.

Oregon beekeepers produce nearly two pounds of honey annually for every man, woman and child in the state. The consumer can have his choice of white or light amber alfalfa honey from southern or eastern Oregon; clear white fireweed honey of the mountain regions, vetch or raspberry honey of the Willamette valley; or the dark amber honey with strong flavor that comes from French pink and bachelor button flowers.

How honey may be substituted for sugar, molasses or syrup in cookery, is explained in the bulletin which was prepared by the nutrition specialists of the extension staff and the school of home economics. Some homemakers find it economical to use honey, and others like the distinctive flavor and quality honey gives their cooking.
