Suggestions Of Boycott Coercion Are Made In Stallard Address

Recall Not Personal

The Merriam recall movement is threatened when he was reminded played in Springfield. of the wishes of his constituents, and because he openly boasted that he had voted against the Townsend memorial resolution when the majority of his electors favored it.

'Merriam was not the only one who voted against the resolution. They tell me that the representative from Lebanon (presumably referring to T. W. Munyan) who operates a bakery had not sold more than three loaves of bread the day following the vote," Stallard continued.

The business interests see future benefits from the Townsend plan and are lining up for it; the press because it is controlled by advertisers, who are business interests, is opposing the plan; the legislature is stacked now, but will soon have to be stacked with people like those in the audience tonight; and self preservation is the first law of the land. These and other similar charges were hurled by the speaker to a sympathetic audience.

Hopes He Resigns

We hope that Merriam will resign when he sees the number of of an election, but if he does not it cemetery. will only cost each person a few cents and it will be worth it to demonstrate to the entire nation the power behind the Townsend movement, said Charles L. Want Quick Action

Speed is the keynote in getting the petitions circulated, he said. We want them ready by Saturday and we may use them at once in demanding an election, or we may hold them for a while.

Severt Jacobson, member of the county recall committee, had 30 petitions at the meeting and Paine informed the meeting that he wanted 50 circulated and signed in this city and vicinity. Nearly 100 signatures had been obtained when the meeting closed.

Some local Townsend plan leaders Wednesday discredited much of the Stallard address, professing dissatisfaction and disappointment with his utterances.
