

SCHOOL LEADERS DUE THIS SUMMER

Technical Fields Given Most Attention As Plans For Students Progress

Nationally known educators from all parts of the United States and abroad, as well as leading experts from this state, will offer a wide variety of courses in summer sessions of the Oregon State System of Higher Education in Portland, Eugene, Corvallis, Ashland, Monmouth and La Grande. It was announced yesterday by Alfred Powers, dean and director of the general extension division for the system.

All regular academic fields will be included in the instruction courses, and in addition a number dealing with the fast-changing present day social, economic and industrial conditions will be offered. Features will also include demonstration schools, conferences, writers' courses, nursery school and others, it is stated.

Starts Next Month
The regular summer terms will start June 24, and extend to August 2 in Portland, Corvallis, and Eugene, while the normal schools in Ashland, Monmouth and La Grande will have two terms, the first starting June 10, and the second July 22. The post session at Eugene, which serves all other sessions, will last from August 5 to August 30.

A nursery school, a new and unique venture, will be a feature of the home economics section of the session at Oregon State college at Corvallis. Children from two to four years of age will be accepted and parents, teachers and others interested will be given an opportunity to observe the latest methods in child care. Noted educators who will be on the college faculty include Dr. William E. Blatz of the University of Toronto; Dr. Lester L. Love, University of Ohio; O. D. Adams, and Ella Ehnman Wilson, dean of girls at Franklin high school, Portland.

The University of Oregon at Eugene, under a special grant from the Carnegie Corporation, will for the sixth consecutive year serve as the western center for normal arts training. Scholarships have already been granted to 25 northwest art teachers for this work. Dr. Eugen Gustav Steinhof, director of the national school of decorative art in Vienna, and several members of the faculty of the art school will have charge of the work.

Study Handicapped Child
Other features of special interest on the university campus include the new nationally known remedial school for children, which offers unusual opportunities for teachers faced with instructing handicapped or abnormal children;

the courses in law both in regular and post session, and education, social science and other programs. The annual coaching school, which alternates between the university and state college campus, will be held at Corvallis this year. Other fields of unusual interest at Corvallis include science, secretarial science, and industrial arts.

Full academic credit may be earned at all of the sessions. Complete information and bulletins may be obtained from the general extension division in the Oregon building, or from any of the institutions.

ARMY MEN VIEW WATER DAMAGE

Money Available For Flood-Control Project If Enough Demand Is Shown

A party of three United States Army Engineers headed by Major Milo Fox and Captain S. L. Damon were here Tuesday inspecting the Upper Willamette river between Springfield and Harrisburg in connection with the flood control program now under way and for which PWA funds are sought.

The men inspected a number of places along the river where the banks are being washed away destroying valuable farm land.

In the afternoon one group from the party went up the McKenzie river to view the site of the Rennie dam project.

A telegram from Representative James W. Mott states that an appropriation of $300,000 can be made available for this work if sufficient interest is shown by local residents who are asked to write letters to the Oregon delegation in Washington.

DONNA PROJECT

sary steps in the matter of having the extension built.

The contention of organizations using the building that it is too small was brought out as was the fact that the main floor would be enlarged nearly twice its present size if the west wall and roof were carried back to the alley. The east wall is standing and the same back can be used it was stated.

Has Playground Move
Mrs. Leota Rodenhough told of the playground project which is being instituted here by the recently organized Springfield Playground Association and was assured the cooperation of the club in the undertaking.

Alwin Gates sang a vocal solo, and Juanita Seaman and Ruth Pollard sang a duet during the program. Miss Barbara Barnell accompanied the singers.

The club members will meet again tomorrow noon with F. B. Planery and Dr. Melville S. Jones as members of the program committee.

CIVIC CLUB TO HOLD ANNUAL PLAN EXCHANGE

Members of the Civic club will hold their annual plan exchange next Tuesday when they meet for their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Edward Privat, president. They will meet for a potluck luncheon at noon.

LUMBER STRIKE EFFECT IS NOTED

C. C. Crow Sees Further Loss Of Markets For N. W. If Mills Close Down

Stating definitely that lumber mills of the Pacific Northwest cannot pay the 75c per hour demanded by labor union organizers, and predicting that with the upswing in lumber demand, many of the markets for Northwest fir lumber will be lost forever to southern pine mills if the threatened lumber strike shuts down the mills, C. C. Crow, editor of Crow's Pacific Coast Lumber Digest, has issued a statement which reads in part:

Will Make 29,156 Men Idle
"Major objects of charity over night out of 29,156 men in Oregon and Washington who received $2,466,636.00 in wages during the month of February, it is said, would be a blow that would bring the entire Northwest to its knees yet that is exactly what will happen if the eastern organizers, who have swooped down upon the lumber industry of this great section, succeed in bringing on a general strike which they now have scheduled for the early part of May.

"If this were the only place in North America where lumber is produced it might be a different story but unfortunately the mills in this section have competition from other parts of the United States and Canada, all of which have many advantages in not only lower wages but transportation costs to the principal markets of the world for soft woods. For this reason, if the wage scale for western pine and fir is crowded up and the price of lumber correspondingly advanced to take care of the added cost, it simply means that the competitors will take all of the business instead of part of it. According to the government's own figures recently compiled the average wage being paid in the Southern Pine mills is 30c per hour. The Oregon and Washington fir mill average is 56 1/2c per hour. In addition to this the Southern Pine mills reach the largest consuming markets with freight rates that are about half of those which the fir mills must pay on account of the greater distance to be covered in making deliveries.

Foreign Market Slipping
"The demand being made for a minimum wage of 75c per hour would necessitate putting the price on Western lumber up to such a high point that the eastern and export markets would be lost for all time and our hundreds of sawmills would lie idle and rot on their foundations. The wage scale already established under the lumber code, to which the manufacturers have adhered faithfully, has been so much above that being paid in British Columbia that the Canadian mills have during the past three years captured most of the better export markets for fir that were prior to the establishment of the code served by the mills of Oregon and Washington. Mill men claim that to increase the wage scale further now would be to lose the small remnant of the formerly important foreign business which the mills are receiving and to divert to Canadian mills the vastly important payrolls and other trade incidental to the handling of the outgoing and incoming cargoes.

"The sawmills and logging camps provide the Northwest's biggest payroll and revenue. In Oregon and Washington considerably over 60 percent of the gross income from all sources is for timber products of some kind. The lumbermen pay millions in taxes. They have always shared liberally with their employees an enjoyed, paying high wages when conditions made it possible. That they treated their men fairly is well borne out by the absence of labor trouble over a long period of years, a record not equaled by any other major industry."

SCREEN'S FAVORITES TOGETHER IN RECKLESS

Jean Harlow and William Powell, two of screenom's most famous and colorful stars, become a co-starring team for the first time in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Reckless," which opens Sunday at the McDonald theatre for four days.

The union of the two popular stars takes place in a lavish musical production against a dazzling background of theatrical Broadway. It introduces many new song hits and dance ensembles.

Miss Harlow is cast as the bewitching dancing star who introduces the new songs and dances in the production, and Powell appears as the front-page promoter of everything from flapper sitters to trained fias.

Franchot Tone plays the reckless socialite son of a grumpy millionaire and falls in love with the dancer.

David O. Selznick is the producer and Victor Fleming the director. May Robson, Ted Healy, Nat Pendleton, Robert Light, Rosalind Russell, Henry Stephenson and Louise Henry also have prominent parts in the picture.
