

The Santiam News.

VOL. 11

SCIO, LINN COUNTY, OREGON, FRIDAY, AUGUST 4, 1899.

NO. 40

Bank of Scio

CAPITAL, $20,000

OFFICERS:
President: A. J. Johnson
Vice President: J. W. Gaines
Cashier: C. V. Johnson

Does a general banking and exchange business. Loans made at current rates, and drafts issued on principal cities.

CASH: MARKET

SCIO, OREGON

HENRY HASSLER, Proprietor.

A choice line of fresh meats, in variety, constantly on hand.

Will do a strictly Cash business.

A. W. HAGEY

WATCHMAKER

JEWELER

SCIO, OREGON.
All kinds of watches, clocks and jewelry repaired promptly.

EAST AND SOUTH

The Shasta Route

—of the—
Southern Pacific Company.

Express Trains Leave Portland Daily.

South: 7:00 a.m. to Portland, 10:30 a.m. to Astoria, 12:15 p.m. to Seaside, 1:45 p.m. to Cannon Beach, 3:15 p.m. to Gearhart, 4:45 p.m. to Hammond, 6:15 p.m. to Cannon Beach, 7:45 p.m. to Seaside, 9:15 p.m. to Astoria, 10:45 p.m. to Portland.

North: 7:00 a.m. to Portland, 10:30 a.m. to Astoria, 12:15 p.m. to Seaside, 1:45 p.m. to Cannon Beach, 3:15 p.m. to Gearhart, 4:45 p.m. to Hammond, 6:15 p.m. to Cannon Beach, 7:45 p.m. to Seaside, 9:15 p.m. to Astoria, 10:45 p.m. to Portland.

West Side Division.
Between Portland and Corvallis.
Mail trains daily except Sunday.

At Albany and Corvallis connect with trains of the O. & E. railroad.

Express trains daily except Sunday.

Direct connection at San Francisco with California and Oregon and Pacific Mail Steaming Lines for JAPAN and CHINA. Stopping places on route: San Francisco, Oakland, San Pedro, Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco.

H. H. MARKHAM, Agent, P. & P. Agent, Portland, Ore.

Station agents at Eastern points and Eugene, Astoria, Cannon Beach, Hammond, Astoria, Corvallis, West Side, and other points, tickets, etc., West Side, etc., etc.

A. J. JOHNSON, Bank of Scio, Scio, Ore.

YACQUINA ROUTE

Corvallis & Eastern R. R.

Connecting at Yaquina with the YACQUINA BAY STEAMSHIP COMPANY

STEAMERS

First-class in every respect. One of the above steamers is due to sail from Yaquina about every five days.

Shortest route between valley points and San Francisco. Fare: Albany and points west to San Francisco, Cabin, $10.00; Round Trip, $17.00.

For sailing dates apply to EDWIN STONE, Manager.

H. L. WALDEN, T. E. & P. A.

J. TEUBNER, Agent, Albany, Oregon.

NERVITA

Restores Vitality, Cures Impotency, Night Emissions and Wasting Diseases, All Effects of Self-Abuse, or Excess and Indecent Exposure, Nervous and Blood Building. Brings the pink glow to pale cheeks and restores the fire of youth.

By Mail $1.00 per box; 6 boxes for $4.50; with a written guarantee to cure or refund the money.

NERVITA MEDICAL CO., 123 N. 4th St., St. Louis, Mo.

The Santiam News

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY AT

SCIO, LINN CO., OREGON.

By IRA A. PHELPS.

TERMS: Per annum, in advance, $1.00; six months, 60 cents; three months, 40 cents.

Advertising rates at last living rates, to be paid monthly.

Transient advertisements must be paid for when the order is given for their insertion.

Entered at the postoffice at Scio, Oregon, as second-class mail matter.

BY THE EDITOR

H. G. Dun & Co., in their Weekly Review of Trade say: There is certainly room for some decrease when the volume of payments through the clearing house in July is 47.2 percent larger than last year, and 39.4 percent larger than in 1892 the best of all previous years. So great an advance would warrant the expectation of some setback under ordinary circumstances. This year the unusual freedom from labor troubles, about July 1st is followed by some signs of tendency to strike because the great works are committed forward and can not halt without a loss. But the interruption of business by labor troubles of all sort has been less than in any other July for many years. Railroad business for July showed the largest increase of any month this year; 18.1 percent larger than last year, and 10.4 percent larger than in 1892. Failures for the week have been 151 in the United States against 225 last year, and twenty in Canada, against twenty-six last year.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson says the world will be ransacked to secure the best early varieties of hops for the Oregon growers. Last year a number of varieties were sent to the government experiment station at Corvallis. Some of the roots arrived in bad condition, and for other reasons did not do well. Now another collection is being provided for by the department of agriculture. The idea is to extend the picking season, and to avoid some of the consequences of the early fall rains that often make the sowing of the hop crop a difficult matter. The object is a commendable one. The department of agriculture, from its chiefs down to its humblest workers, is being directed by Secretary Wilson into practical channels. The prevailing idea is to do something useful for the men who till the soil and feed the nation.—Ex.

A FEW FARM NOTES

A milk dealer in Kansas has had to pay $1000 in fine for dishing his milk with formaldehyde.

Creamery butter has made another advance at Tacoma and is quoted at 22 cents per pound in that city.

The price of potatoes tends downward. Buyers in Portland paid 75 cents per sack the latter part of last week.

The California Fruit Growers says the prune crop of that state promises well and an average output is forecast.

The creamery at Acme, near Florence, Oregon, made an average of a little over 200 pounds of butter per day last month.

J. M. Oshorn, of Oak Creek stock farm Benton county has received his fine Shorthorn bull from J. G. Robbins & Son, of Indiana.

Green corn from The Dalles has been in the market for about two weeks. The retail price is still too high to permit of extensive sales.

Six carloads of range horses were recently shipped from Caldwell, Idaho. The price paid was $7.75 per head on board cars at Caldwell.

There was a big advance in the price of hops at Chicago the second week in July the best heavy hops going up from $4.00 to $4.40 per cwt.

Each dairyman should strive to produce the best and sweetest of milk, and then see to it himself that it is delivered to the factory in the best possible condition.

Own and milk good cows. If you have poor cows send them to the butcher. Never use or sell diseased or unhealthy cows. It is dangerous even to feed it to the pigs.

The importance of the dairy industry in Coos county, Oregon, is shown by the fact that two of its creameries are now each making about 1000 pounds of butter per day.

Most of the peaches now seen in Portland are of the Hale's Early or Alexander varieties, and come from Ashland or The Dalles. Dealers here have been selling at 65 to 75 per box.

A paper in Southern California says that as a result of the drought in that section enough underground water has been secured for irrigation purposes to supply 500,000 acres of land.

Contracts have been made in New York at 7 cents for prime wood dried evaporated apples, October and November delivery. The tendency in prices has been a little upward of late.

The visit of Secretary Wilson to the Pacific coast states and markets to bring our resources prominently before the agricultural classes in the East in an intelligent and comprehensive manner.

A hop-buyer who recently inspected 28 hop-yards in the northern part of Marion county, Oregon, concluded that there will be about two-thirds of a crop and the prospect is favorably for a fine grade of hops.

The Pacific Rural Press says dealers in that state would like to contract for hops at 12 and 13 cents, but present indications are that they will have to pay more money. An advance of two cents might bring out some sellers.

The strawberry crop at Hood River reached a little over 40,000 crates or a little more than last year.

The glacier says the net return from shipments were $70,000 and that the farmers, after paying for picking and boxes, have realized about $40,000 for their strawberries.

H. B. Miller, president of the state board of horticulture, and J. W. Bailey state dairy and food commissioner, are making an official visit to roughout Southern Oregon and the coast countries. Mr. Miller will take up the course against woolly aphis and the codlin moth, while Mr. Bailey will look after the purity of the dairy products.

The amount of milk a Jersey cow gives is not half so important a matter in fixing her value as a breeder as is the quality of her milk. It is a simple matter to increase the yield of milk up to each cow's natural capacity by generous and judicious feeding but it is very far from being an easy task to raise the percentage of fat in her milk. That is approximately fixed at birth, and can only be changed slowly and within narrow limits, if at all.

About one month ago my child, which is fifteen months old, had an attack of diarrhoea accompanied by vomiting. I gave it such remedies as are usually given in such cases, but as nothing gave relief we sent for a physician, and it was under his care for a week. At this time the child had been sick for about ten days and was having about twenty five operations of the bowels every twelve hours, and we were convinced that unless it soon obtained relief it would not live. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended, and I decided to try it. I soon noticed a change for the better; by its continued use a complete cure was brought about, and it is now perfectly healthy.—C. L. Boege, Staunton, Gilmer Co., W. Va. For sale by Peery & Peery.

Dewey will return to America and he will receive a royal welcome, and the Salem Steam Laundry will still continue to do first class work at moderate prices. Take your laundry to the express office 67-77 Monday.

The News and the Oregonian are sent for $2.00.

BY THE SCISSORS

A clergyman recently complained that after preaching a sermon on the subject of "the devil," the choir sang "Should old acquaintances be forgot."

A telephone line has been completed to Prineville, and also connects with all the small villages along the line. The line is put up with aluminum wire.

An exchange remarks that Brazil's $50,000 collection of snakes for the Paris Exposition ought to be placed within easy walking distance of the bronzo exhibit.

A young man named More was fined by Judge Hennessy, of Portland, $50 for choking a young lady with whom he was taking a walk, and the Judge said he was sorry that he couldn't make it more.

The lowest bid for the Coos Bay jetty was $123,710, made by Wakefield & Jacobson of Portland. Mr. Wakefield is the man who built the Albany bridge. The stevedore jetty will be built by Hale & Smith for $23,737.

Admiral Dewey's salary amounts to $27,500 a day. President McKinley is equal to $137 a day; Cabinet officers, the Vice President and the Speaker of the House gets $22.22 a day; Senators and Congressmen, $13.80 and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court $29 a day.

A family row at the brewer Tuesday night resulted in Frank Chamberlain leaving on his wheel for California and his wife being arrested for taking three shots at him with a revolver. The most deplorable feature of the whole business is that her aim was poor.—Prineville Journal.

Rev. John Morrison of the Calvary Presbyterian church died suddenly in the Yellow-stone Park Saturday from inflammation of the bowels. Dr. Morrison was moderator of the Presbyterian synod which met in Albany several months ago. He was a young man forty years of age and a bright preacher.—Oregonian.

Nathan Pierce, one of the leading men of Yamhill county, died recently in San Francisco, where he had been for his health. He was the People's party candidate for governor in 1894. His last public appearance was in 1896 when he presided over the big Bryan meeting at Pendleton. He leaves a wife and six children.

President McKinley is much interested in the daily reports received at the War Department from the recruiting officers and greatly pleased at the promptness with which men are enlisting—the average is nearly 100 a day, for the hour service known to before the war in the Philippines although he is not surprised. He has an abiding faith that the patriotism of Americans is strong enough to promptly meet every call that duty may necessitate to make upon it. It is now certain that the ten new regiments of volunteers will be recruited in time to 60 sent to Gen. Otis as soon as needed that which will not be until after the rainy season is over in the Philippines.

The ablest man who addressed the recent convention of the Ohio Valley Metallic League in Louisville was John P. Altgeld. He knew exactly what he wanted when he spoke as follows about trusts:

It is evident that to simply go on denouncing trusts is an insult to the intelligence of the American people. It is the cheapest kind of political demagoguery. The time has come when some new method of dealing with these monopolies must be adopted. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Altgeld's brains tell him that concentration is an inevitable and inescapable fact in private business unless you replace it with an immense government octopus. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these trusts back to their original element. They have come to stay, and, therefore, it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party to secure the benefit of the monopoly for the public, for the people. That means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control.

Alt