Hop Picking.

If weather condition are favorable hop picking will begin about the tenth of September. The growers seem to be pretty well agreed that not more than forty cents per box will be paid for picking. They say that for several years the pickers were the only one who got anything out of the hop crop. They made wages while the growers were losing money, so that even though hops bring a much better price this year the pickers should be satisfied with a 40 cent rate at which good wages can be made in the excellent conditions of the yards. The quality of the hops seems to be excellent and the picking clean as there is no pest or lice on the hops.—Herald.

Butter For Manila.

Choice creamery butter is now being put up by a dairy in Portland for shipment to Manila. It is packed in large jelly glasses having glass covers, which are hermetically sealed, and the whole packed in salt. Inside the cover of each is the card of the manufacturer, and a guarantee that the contents are of the finest quality and contain no chemicals or imparities of any nature. A small shipment of this butter made some time ago, went off like hot cakes in Manila in competition with the Danish butter used there which is supposed to be the finest made. The market for this and other Oregon products in Manila will rapidly develop from now on.

Hop Pickers Wanted.

The Rev. W. B. Costley, of Stockbridge, Ga., while attending to his pastoral duties at Ellenwood, that state, was attacked by cholera morbus. He says: "By chance I happened to get hold of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and I think it wasthe means of saving my life. It relieved me at once." For sale by Peery & Peery.

A volunteer at Portland told this: "I never want to run a man through with a bayonet again," he said. We were in close quarters. One big black fellow, almost naked, had his machette upraised to strike, and even then I hesitated before plunging my bayonet into him. The excitement of the fight sustained me for the time, but I have seen that fellows agonized tortured look a thousand times since then. It is no easy job to kill even a 'nigger' in close quarters.

Carl Hodes crignally came from "Old Yarmany," and in moments of excitement mixes his English. There was a rat chase in the store the other night and while Carl was poking for the rodent under the counter, one of the boys pinched the "mucha grande" gentleman's leg. Carl jumped eleven feet in the air and shrieked, "He's oop my shirt leg." "He's oop my shirt leg." A few lady customers happening in, smiled, for it wasn't a mouse.—Corvallis Times.

Secretary Tozier of the State Press Association reported as follows: There were in this state on August 15, 222 publication entered as second-class matter at the several postoffices. Of these 160 are weeklies, 38 monthlies, 19 dailies, 4 semi-weeklies and one semi-monthly. I class them as 61 republican 29 democratic, 16 populist. one prohibition, 14 religious, 36 independent 10 fraternal, 4 agricultural 2 amateur, 5 college, 7 miscellaneous and 2 poultry. Estimating the states population at 400,000 it will be seen that Oregon has a newspaper for every 1800 people.

George Keeney returned from Dawson City last Sunday coming by way of Seattle and Portland. During a very pleasant interview with Mr. Keeney he kindly showed us three beautiful nuggets each one about the size of a small walnut, which he picked up with his own hands. He also showed us a handsome watch chain made of about fifteen small nuggets fastened together with links of solid gold and having for a charm a handsome piece of quartz. He will return to Dawson very soon and says that there is something wrong with a man who cannot make money there.—Brownsville Times.

Stayton Items.

Jap Hunt's big field of fall wheat yielded an average of 32 bushels per acre.

Long Bros. killed a 3-year old beef the other day that dressed 752 pounds.

The local telephone station has been removed from Smith's Pharmacy to W. H. William's place of business on Water street between Second and Third.

The Santiam bridge at Stayton is considered unsafe for heavy loads, by the county courts of Marion and Linn counties, and will be immediately repaired.

The warehouse of the Southern Pacific railroad company at West Stayton was entered a few nights ago by boys and a watermelon taken from the stores. Entrance was effected by the use of a bent wire—lifting an inside latch. It is understood the guilty parties were apprehended and a confession secured that will untimately mean a term in the pen for some one.

While en route to the Gaines store in Linn county one day last week Mrs. Oscar Applett and two children of that vicinity and Miss Anna Hill, of Stayton, narrowly escaped a shot from a gun in the hands of an unknown party. The shot took effect in the hip of the horse they were driving, embedding itself in the flesh and drawing a stream of blood. The horse ran with the buggy some distance but was finally quieted by its driver.—Mail.

For The Exposition.

The managers of coming Portland Industrial Exposition have offered a prize of $100 to the county making the best exhibits of grain and grasses; $70 to the second best and $30 the third. This offer has brought a prompt response from the management of the S. P. R. R. and result is a letter sent to all their agents in this county in which they propose to help the exhibit along in a substantial way. People interested in advertising the county need not be out a cent, but will actually be paid for their trouble. The S. P. Co., wants 50 bundles of wheat, 25 of oats 25 of alfalfa and other grasses, 100 in all, from each station in the county and is willing to pay for them at 5 cents a bundle. The bundles should be six inches in diameter cut full length and closely tied. Call on the S. P. agent for particulars.

Methodist Conference

The annual M. E. conference will be held at Salem this year, commencing September 20th. Bishop John A. Vincent of Topeka, Kansas will preside. Bishop Vincent is the originator of the great Chautauqua movement and is a noted Sunday school worker. He is one of the most distinguished of the bishops. The conference will last from Wednesday until Monday. At this time the 100 ministers stationed in the different districts will be asigned charges, This year the two lay members from each church will be delegates to the conference and sit in that body, principally for the purpose of voting on the question of admitting women to sit in the quadrennial general conference.

Got Seventy Days

Charles McGee, who amused himself by throwing bottles at a restaurant man and trying to take the town Thursday night, was arranged in Recorder Henton's court yesterday afternoon and plead guilty to the charges of drunk and disorderly and resisting an officer. The magistrate gave him the full benefit on each count, amounting to 70 days in the city jail. McGee's head was pretty sore yesterday, but he seemed to know the cause. Perhaps he will learn to let liquor alone after a while.—Albany Herald.

There are only a few days left in which to complete the gravel hauling on the streets, and those who have not graveled yet should do so. Of course due allowance will be made for the rain which has delayed operations for some days past, still there is a good deal of gravel yet to haul and it will not do to delay too long.

Saturday evening a number of the lady Maccabees tendered Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Peery a serenade, after which they visited the homes of several of our citizens. The quiet slumbers of the writer were disturbed by their merry voices, as they very excellantly rendered a couple of choice vocal selections. Come again, ladies.

The flax threshing machine has been shipped from San Francisco, and immediately after its arrival Mr. Larimore and others who are interested in the flax fiber proposition will be in Scio to assist in getting it in operation. They will also make more definite arrangements regarding the location of the flax mill which it is proposed to establish here.

A good deal of threshing is going to be done within the next few days and in some instances the grain is going to be hard to save. It is very soft, and lots of it will remain in the straw, and that threshed out will not be as good as though it had dried in the shock. But the farmer cannot be blamed for exerting every effort to save his crop, and although it may not be first-class it will be better than none.

The sun rose bright and clear Wednesday morning, and it was not long after its rays had awoke the populace of our city until the whistles of several steam threshers could be heard in many directions. It is a mistake for our farmers to get in too big a rush about threshing, altho it is not a pleasant sight to see the fruits of a years work lying out in the rain. The grain is not yet beyond saving, in fact it is in better condition than in some previous years, and if it gets thoroughly dry before being threshed it will all be marketable grain.

The Independence West Side devoted their entire space last week to a write-up of the business men of Polk county, and in the Monmouth column has this to say of S. M. Daniel:

"Mr. Daniel has tidily-arranged establishment and he carries one of the largest stocks of dry goods in Polk county, having added largely thereto since the purchase of the McGowan stock last April. And all of his goods have been selected with especial reference to the wants and needs of this particular community. A speciality is made of handling country produce it being taken in exchange for such goods as customers may desire.

Mr. Daniel is native-born having made his advent into the world in Linn county. He attended the old Christian school in Monmouth for four years subsequently engaging in business at Scio thence removing to Monmouth and supplying a felt want."

A couple of weeks ago THE NEWS printed a list of those who had purchased land together with the amount of money paid for some, and a large per cent of the papers of the state copied our item, thus giving information as to the development of this particular section all over the state, and as the different papers printing the item circulate in most every state in the union this same information was scattered throughout the whole United States. This is only an example of the advantage of advertising. Many papers which printed our item copied it from other papers, and in some instance Scio was previously unheard of to them and of course to many of their readers. There is no denying the fact that advertising pays, neither is their in the fact that the newspaper does more advertising each year for a town and locality than any other enterprise. There are each year many dollars worth of space used by every paper in the state, devoted exclusively for advertising the localities in which the papers are published and for which the publisher does not receive one cent. However THE NEWS is here for the purpose of telling the resources and advantages of Scio, and we shall continue to do so in the future as in the past, and any information that would be of interest to intending homeseekers will be gladely received by this paper, and will be printed free of all charge. In the long run we hope to reap our reward by the increased immigration, and so far have done so, therefore we have no kick coming. Let all who are in search of home in one of the best sections of the state come right along, and we will do all in our power to make them happy and contented.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Peery returned Saturday last from a ten days visit at Newport. They are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Peery where they will remain until the first of September, when they will move to Moro.

Prof. Geo. Wilson returned Tuesday from his trip through the state in company with Mr. Shelton with a Cuban war show. He reports good success with his venture. Mr. Shelton stopped near Eugene, where he has secured employment through harvest.

N. T. Higging returned last week from Lower Soda and Fish Lake. He was with Jas. Barnes and party but made the trip on his wheel. He says he struck a small hill, too steep to ride over, so he walked. He said it looked like a small undertaking but changed his mind after he had pushed his wheel eight miles. Bicycling in the mountains is not what it is cracked up to be.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Cantrell and three children, arrived Tuesday evening from Galena, Kansos for a visit with Mrs. Cantrells sisters, Mrs. J. R. Gill, and Mrs. A. W. Ficklin. Mr. Cantrell is an attorney and has a lucrative practice at Galena Kansas, and will return there after a few weeks visit, although their visit to the coast was made with the expectation of locating here, but after looking the country over they decided to return to Kansas.

Edmund Cyrus returned home from Manila Monday. He did not return with the second Oregon, but come to San Francisco on the hospital ship, Relief, and after his discharge came to Portland by water and arrived home Monday. Ed was in the hospital the greater part of the time that the regiment was in active service, and did not participate in any of the battles. He was glad to again be at home among relatives and friends but says the Philipines are not such a bad place to live after all, and says the Islands offer splendid inducements for the investment of capital.

Engineers have just completed surveying for a line of railroad from Springfield to a point seventeen miles up the Mohawk river, at which place the Booth-Kelly Lumber Co. will erect a large sawmill. Soundings have already been made for a bridge to span the Willamette, and the site selected is at a point near the wagon bridge. It is the intention of the company to connect this branch with the main line. The lumbering interests of Oregon are forging ahead and will soon assume gigantic proportions.

Game Warden Quimby is hard after the violators of the game laws of this state. He has instructed his deputies to be on the alert and has sent spies in various parts of the state to detect any infractions of the law. He is ably assisted by the Oregon Fish and Game Association which offers a reward of $10 for the arrest, conviction and punishment of any person found guilty of violating the laws of the state for the protection of trout and game. Such reward, after arrest conviction and punishment, will be paid to the person who swears to the complaint upon which the final conviction and punishment are based. The local rod and gun club now has a man in the field all the time to see that the laws are duly respected.—Albany Herald.

POOR BOB WHITE.

A Plea for the Shy Game Bird When the Weather Is Bad.

When snow covers the ground and sleet envelops trees and shrubs many birds of various kinds seek the farmhouse and its vicinity. They seem to know that in their extremity man is their friend. Their confidence is not misplaced; they are liberally fed by different members of the household until the emergency has passed and they are again able to make their own living. These birds come to man's abode for protection as well as for food, and after the cravings of hunger are appeased they stay around the dwelling, feeling that the predatory hawk, fox, owl and the heartless, murderous gunner of this season will not recklessly venture to assail them. Frequently these birds return season after season to the same homesteads. By reason of their appeal to mankind birds of this class seldom die from the effects of hard winters, says the Baltimore Sun.

That the great game bird, the partridge, excessively wild and timid, does not, when privation comes, seek man's homestead like the birds mentioned above, though in extremes of weather a covey of partridges may be seen about the strawyards where cattle are housed and fed. Their presence about such places is proof of their sufferings, for they only leave their accustomed haunts and fastnesses when sorely pressed for want of food. These birds have been found dead in severe weather, poisoned from eating laurel to satisfy their hunger. Clothed in beautiful plumage of hues in accord with the ground, they escape fairly well from the hawk in ordinary times, but they stand out in bold relief on the snow and fall an easy prey to the tireless, insatiate hawk, as well as the fox and owl. It is against the law to either shoot or trap this noble bird at this season, and farmers and others should see that no marauding in this line is done. In addition to preserving this gallinaceous bird the agriculturist knows that the partridge is the farmer's friend, and that he destroys myriads of injurious insects, thus protecting the grain crops and the fruit from much injury. Everyone, whether resident of the city or country, loves to hear the call "Bob White," on bright summer days through harvest time and early in the fall, when the young ones are nearly grown, and to watch the male partridge perched on the fence as he gives out the note. It is impossible to look at him then without feeling love and admiration stir the heart. He is in trouble now. Let everyone who can help him. Bait the haunts of the patridges in your vicinity daily with corn and wheat. Use your gun on the hawks and owls and put your pack of hounds on the foxes.
