We are this week sending out statements in all those who are in arrears to THE NEWS for more than one year, and we hope that they will help us out a little, if it is convenient to do so. We are greatly in need of money in order to make our work good, and those who owe us small amounts can certainly help us a little.

Prof. L. H. Baker, wife, and little boy, Robert, arrived here Saturday and packed their household goods, which has been stored here, and shipped them to Salem. They left this morning for Salem by team, where they will make their future home. Their many friends in Lebanon wish them a pleasant stay in the capital city.—Letanoff E. A.

While the farmers are at present harvesting low grade wheat at a low price, the price of the towns throughout the valley are holding out from 20 to 30 cents per pound for good butter. Eggs are also commanding a fair price. It would be much more profitable to the producers to diversify a little and let their hens produce rest awhile.—Brownsville Times.

M. V. Bilyeu brought to this office Tuesday a basket of seedling prunes which were grown on a tree which grew from the root of an Italian prune tree, but which is much better than the Italian. The tree has but the one tree, but as the fruit is of such excellent quality he will endeavor to propagate the variety. The fruit is very large, sweet and of fine flavor.

It is a pretty past when a person does not know his own father's voice, but such was the case with W. C. Miller, son of County Treasurer Miller Tuesday, when he called his father on the telephone. Bill could not be induced to believe that he was talking with his father, although he had not been drinking at all, at least, we have his word for the fact.

Petitions are being circulated throughout the county asking Governor Geer to pardon P. G. Morris, who was sentenced from this county last year for a term of four years for larceny of public funds. The petitions are being quite generally signed, and as there is some doubt as to the guilt of Mr. Morris it is thought that the pardon may be granted. Several of the trial jury have signed the petitions.

A base ball ground has been prepared on the city at the bicycle track at the Munkers' grove, for the game at Albany on the 16th of next month. Scio at one time had a fine ball ground, and at the same time had a fine team of four years ago to beat among the average teams of the country, if not just a little better. We have a nine now also which will make the Albany boys know that they have been to a game when they cross bats.

Several young "men" from Salem came to this city Sunday, having made the trip on bicycles. They put in the day showing how little they knew, as well as how little respect they had for anyone but themselves. After riding on a sidewalk on Main street for some time, they were told to get off. Two of their wheels were taken charge of by Marshal Bilyeu, who released them only after giving the riders a few pointers. You men who visit neighboring towns where you are not known, be sure you should remember that others have some privileges as well as themselves, and that older people can see just how ridiculous they act.

There is nothing that helps out the appearance of a city as much as good, clean streets and good sidewalks. The city of Scio is just a little behind the ordinary. In many places about town the walks are in a pretty bad shape, and need the attention of the city marshal or some one else vested with power to repair, them and have the expense repaid against the property. It is, of course, that the property owners would not look after the walks themselves. It is just as much to the interest of the property owner to see that his walk is in good repair as it is to the city. It is in the city, and he should do what he can to keep it so.

On Tuesday of this week Al Briggs sold his 80-acre farm, just across the river in Marion county, near the railroad bridge, to Mrs. Mack, daughter of the late P. O. Smith, the sale being made by R. S. Shelton and J. S. Morris, and the land was purchased with the money paid Mrs. Mack by the A. O. U. W. Mr. Smith having a policy in that order for $2,000, payable to her. Prior to the sale he requested that the money be turned over to Messrs. Shelton and Morris, and that they purchase for Mrs. Mack a home and stack the same for her. This they have done, the place being a good one, and joining the small home place upon which Mr. and Mrs. Mack have resided for some time past.

Many of the farmers in this section have completed their harvest, and in many cases the yield of grain was away below the average. The flax crop is about the only cereal in this vicinity that really came up to the standard, and in many cases the flax crop was worth more money to the farmer than all the other crop put together. Flax is good ground and on favorable years will undoubtedly beat any other crop, and where it is raised for the straw as was the case this year it will pay good deal better than any other crop. The sooner the average farmer gets the one crop idea out of his head the better. A few cows, a small band of sheep and a few hogs, along with several dozen chickens, ducks and turkeys, all properly managed and cared for will pay more interest and lift a larger mortgage than all the wheat the land can produce.

ACHER'S ENGLISH REMEDY

Will stop a cough at any time, and will cure the worst cold in twelve hours, or money refunded. 25cts and 50 cts. Peery & Peery, druggists.

A FEW FARM NOTES

A carload of Eastern eggs arrived in Portland last week. It will take a dozen carloads of Oregon wheat to pay for them.

It is always to be remembered that honey should be stored in a warm, dry place. A cool, damp atmosphere tends to spoil it.

A good many farmers mix some alkali with their red clover. When this is done it is a great help to the beekeeper, as alkali is a fine honey plant.

The Polk County Dentist says it is estimated that the output of cured prunes from the vicinity of Dallas, Ore., this year will be 25 carloads.

The circular soil was still looked upon with much suspicion elsewhere, but it is now becoming very popular everywhere.

Silver prune trees are well loaded and the fruit is looking remarkably fine so far as size and color are concerned. The varieties promises to be very high this year.

The Portland Packing company is paying $12 to $20 per ton for Bartlett pears for canning. Perhaps they are giving too much for choice lots, but if so the fact is not made public.

The Leganberry appears to be giving very poor satisfaction in the East, but it is all right on the Pacific coast. At San Francisco, at least, the berries are quoted higher than any other small fruit.

We find that curl leaf of the Italian prune is quite general throughout the Willamette valley this year, although not so severe as in some previous years. Aside from this, fruit trees of all kinds are looking unusually well.

The seventh annual exposition at Spokane will be held October 2 to 16. The management is assured of large and varied exhibits of fruits, grains, grasses, vegetables, poultry and minerals. There will be a number of attractions including the Royal Marine band of Italy.

Assistant Dairy Commissioner White, of Minnesota, recently said: "The success of the dairy industry is the result of evolution. It doesn't come all in a minute. Some of the best creameries in the state (Minnesota) today were built up on the foundation of one or more failures."

The cutworms appear to have done more damage in Coos county than in any other county in Oregon. The dairywomen were the principle sufferers. Clover pastures were eaten up by cutworms, and an extent of four or five acres of the amount of butter made by the creameries of that county.

There appears to be more electricity in the air than usual in western Oregon this year. Any kind of thunder is a rare thing west of the Cascades and the article ordinarily heard here suggests the idea that it is nearly dead to one who is familiar with the squall which sweeps westward from the coast, and respectable thunder showers at Portland.

The price of good creamery butter is now up to 25 and 24 cents per pound in Oregon and at the Sound cities. This is a very satisfactory price and the dairywomen who plan to keep up an even supply of milk all through the year will have a big advantage for the next few months over the dairymen who get most of their milk in the spring and early summer.

Although the cutworms attracted a great deal of attention in Oregon and Washington this year than the Hessian fly, the latter is to be regarded as the more dangerous of the two. It is possible that the climatic conditions here may not be favorable to the coming of the pest if it should thrive here as it does in most of the winter wheat states it will prove a serious enemy of the wheat grower.

Damage to last year's wheat crop by rain and low prices left the wheat farmer in poor condition, financially, on the start this year. The crop this season hardly pays for harvesting and the farmer is discouraged, although very much disappointed. The change from a crop of farming to a system which will include live stock and the growth of forage plants in rotation with grain will include much more money to the farmer.

Creamery at Lyons.

The Salem Creamery company is to have a branch at Lyons, in Linn county, about September 1st. The Lyons Creamery association has been organized there, and this organization will construct buildings, from popular subscriptions, to be turned over to the Salem Creamery company, and to become the property of that company at the end of the year, in case sufficient cream is furnished to make an institution of that kind profitable there. There is little question concerning the success of the institution, as that is a good dairying country, and now a heavy patron of the Salem creamery. The transportation charges are found to be too high. The latest improved machinery will be put in and either George D. Goodhue, the manager of the Salem Creamery, or R. A. Goodhue, his son, will be at the Lyons institution constantly.—Salem Statesman.
