Poultry for Pleasure.

Poultry for pleasure should never be confounded with poultry for profit. If we are able to indulge a hobby, and find pleasure therefore, it matters not what the cost of returns may be. Many who keep poultry find in them a recreation, a relaxation from the routine of everyday life. To such the cost is not considered, and to such invariably are smaller than the outlay. To those, though, who keep poultry for profit, the question of cost should be the first of all considerations.

As with business, each and every item should be carefully considered, the little things often amount to large sums when figured together. Watch the small things and the larger ones will take care of themselves. Allow nothing to go to waste, and remember that a little profit from each hen will mean much when applied to many.—Home and Farm.

So far the tariff war with Russia is jug-handled. We make the comparatively small amount of Russian sugar we buy pay a countervailing duty of about one cent a pound, and Russia adds 50 per cent to its tariff on American steel and iron goods, the value of which runs away in the millions and has been rapidly increasing.

The bank, though small, does a large business, and the then new behind it are among our best known citizens, which fact gives assurance that its affairs will always be found in good shape.

The Scio creamery company wish us to state that the creamery in this city will be operated during the coming season, and will be prepared to receive milk as soon as the farmers are prepared to furnish a sufficient amount of it to keep the creamery busy. They have about perfected plans which will give the farmers an equal if not a better price for their milk than they have received in the past. The impression may have gained circulation that the creamery would not be run the coming summer, and it is to lead off such rumor that this item is published. Do not hesitate about taking your milk to the creamery. Prepare for it, and milk as many cows as you can, and patronize the creamery, and you will be well paid for it. It is the means of distributing more money among the farmers than any enterprise in the city, and all should take hold of the matter with a will, and do what they can to help it along. The creamery will be operated—that is settled fact, and one which we are glad to note.

The Brownsville Times says it is reliably informed that a proposition will be made to the stockholders in the Poorman Mining Company at the annual meeting, soon to occur, to place a ten stamp mill on the company's mine in the Blue River district. The property is located on the Calapoosia side and can only be reached by a road up the Calapoosia river from Brownsville. It is a fine piece of mining property and the experts and capitalists have had their eyes upon it for some time. This indicates that a road will be built up the Calapoosia whether the country line is changed or not.
