There Are 2400

Disorders incident to the human frame, of which a majority are caused or promoted by impure blood.

The remedy is simple.

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

That this medicine radically and effectively purifies the blood is known to every druggist, known to hundreds of thousands of people who themselves or by their friends have experienced its curative powers.

The worst cases of scrofula, the most agonizing sufferings from salt rheum and other virulent blood diseases, are conquered by it, while those cured of boils, pimples, dyspeptic and bilious symptoms and that tired feeling are numbered by millions.

Scrofula

THE OFFSPRING OF HEREDITARY BLOOD TAINT.

Scrofula is but a modified form of Blood Poison and Consumption. The parent who is tainted by either will see in the child the same disease manifesting itself in the form of swollen glands of the neck and throat, catarrh, weak eyes, offensive sores and abscesses and oftentimes white swelling—sure signs of Scrofula. There may be no external signs for a long time, for the disease develops slowly in some cases, but the poison is in the blood and will break out at the first favorable opportunity. S. S. S. cures this wasting, destructive disease by first purifying and building up the blood and stimulating and invigorating the whole system.

J. M. Seals, 115 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn., says: "Ten years ago my daughter fell and cut her forehead. From this wound the glands on the side of her face became swollen and bursted. Some of the best doctors here and elsewhere attended her without any benefit. We decided to try S. S. S., and a few bottles cured her entirely."

SSS makes new and pure blood to nourish and strengthen the body, and is a positive and safe cure for Scrofula. It overcomes all forms of blood poison, whether inherited or acquired, and no remedy so thoroughly and effectively cleanses the blood. If you have any blood trouble, or your child has inherited some blood taint, take S. S. S. and get the blood in good condition and prevent the disease doing further damage.

Send for our free book and write our physicians about your case. We make no charge whatever for medical advice.

CONSUMPTION

LIVING ON MONKEY MEAT.

Straits to Which an American Prospector Was Reduced in Mexico.

Living in Mexico is often a disastrous experience to the foreigner who is not acquainted with localities and customs. In the case of John Bascon and his companion, an Englishman named Martin Hayes, their experience was such, but it is also interesting. In conversation with Mr. Bascon that gentleman stated the following to an Enterprise reporter:

"Not long ago I came up from Guatemala with an Englishman named Martin Hayes, and we had three burros laden with goods. We prospected all along the line to Tonelado, and stopped for one week with an Indian at Tehuantepec. While there we learned that in the district up to Tonelado there was plenty of gold, as another Englishman had passed through there with $8,000, which he had panned out at a certain point somewhere in the region of San Pablo, in Oaxaca. We traced the gold along the streams for sixty miles, and reached as far as San Miguel. We were very hungry by this time, having run short of provisions, and, going across the mountains, were told that we should be careful, as banditti were numerous. Soon after two men met us not far from San Miguel, and the both had rifles. They ordered us to halt, but I pulled a revolver and took their guns away from them and marched them on in front of us. When we arrived at San Miguel one of them entered a complaint before the jese politico charging us with holding them up, but the jese knew the men too well to listen to their story, and the result is one of them is still in jail at that place.

"When we left San Miguel we secured a mozo to guide us to where the Englishman referred to found his gold, but when we got there the mozo would not stay, as it was known the Englishman had returned and died there. We found his skeleton, with the legs and arms eaten off, and the mozo, being fearful he would see the ghost of the dead, left us to ourselves. We went across a river and camped in the adjacent woods. Along the stream we prospected for gold, and in two weeks we found gold which went about 25 cents to the pan. We remained there about six months, and all that time we lived on monkey meat and green bananas, and both, too, without salt. Just think of it! Nothing but monkeys, and occasionally a fowl or two, and not a tortilla or common hot cake. Well, sir, my partner, Martin Hayes of London, England, died four months after from the privations suffered during that time, and I don't suppose his wife or family ever heard of it. But we got some gold, all right, and monkey meat would have been all right for me, if we only had some salt.—Chihuahua Enterprise.

HE FEARED ONE-MAN POWER.

That Was Why a Detroit Man Got Out a Warrant for a Neighbor.

After the applicant for a warrant had been admonished two or three times to stick to the text he was induced to present his grievances in a connected manner.

"What I'm claiming, judge, is that the main thing we've got to guard against in this country is one-man power. We've got it in the nation, we've got it in New York, we've got it in Philadelphia and Pennsylvania and it looks to me very much as though we had it in Detroit. Do you believe in it, judge?"

"Certainly not, but what has that to do with the case?"

"I'm coming to that. I only wanted to get a general expression of principle from you. You are right, judge; entirely right. What is wrong in national, state or municipal government, is wrong to the end of the logical sequence, is it not?"

"Yes, if I take your meaning."

"Oh, you've got my meaning, judge. One-man power is wrong when it gets beyond the individual, or the family, say. Now, judge, we have one of these obnoxious bosses up in our block. Yes, sir, precisely the sort of fellow we've been condemning. He tells us all how to raise our children, makes them keep quiet when he wants them to, dictates to the women about the garbage, raises ned if a dog barks, protests if anyone wakes him up by getting home late, tells the mail man his business, censures all who have any doctor but his, tells us when to trim our trees, and rushes to the fire marshal when any of us want to make some slight improvements.

"Now he knows better than you do how I feel on this one-man power business and when he rushed over before breakfast to tell me that the snow was not properly cleaned from my walk, I just turned loose and kicked him half the length of the block. He'll be out tomorrow and I want to get a warrant for him as a one-man nuisance before he can get at me for assault and battery."—Detroit Free Press.

Where He Was Weak.

Mr. Jowders looked gloomily at the letter to which he had just painfully affixed his signature, and then cast a dubious glance at his wife.

"Do you want to just run this over before I send it to son James?" he inquired; and when Mrs. Jowders shook her head, he hastily folded the sheet, which bore the marks of hours of toil, and thrust it into an envelope, which he sealed with trembling expedition, and then leaned back in his chair with an air of relief.

"I was afeard you'd want to read it, and then most likely 'twould be all to do over again, mother, like the last one," he said. "But I'm glad James wrote he didn't mind a word misspelled here an' there. There's some things I can do, but I never could seem to get a good purchase on the system of spelling, someway.

"As I view it," continued Mr. Jowders, "there's some words you can spell by the looks, and some you can spell by the sound; them I can most gen'lly manage. But when you come to spelling by judgment and main stren'the, my chances are about as slim as they make 'em."

AFTER TWENTY YEARS

WONDERFUL CURE IN A STUBBORN CASE OF RHEUMATISM.

The Evidence Is Furnished by the Secretary of the Board of Trade of Wellsburg, New York, and Cannot Be Doubted.

The popular secretary of the Wellsburg, N. Y., board of trade is Mr. W. J. Dalton, and his statement to a reporter regarding one of the most important events of his life carries with it the greatest weight. It is unusual for a person to be afflicted from childhood with rheumatism but it is even wonderful that there is a remedy so exactly suited to the tratment of this stubborn disease that one hundred doses were sufficient to eradicate it in a case of twenty years' standing. The proof that such a remedy is within the reach of all rheumatic sufferers is found in Mr. Dalton's own words. He says:

"I had been troubled with rheumatism all my life, even when a boy. It attacked me in the legs, arms and shoulders. The pain in the latter was particularly severe. I, of course, took medicine for it, but did not obtain permanent relief. One day about three years ago while reading a newspaper, I saw an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and determined to give them a trial. I had taken but three boxes of the pills when the trouble, which had been my affliction from childhood, entirely disappeared.

"About a year later I had another attack of rheumatism which was brought on by working in a damp place. I remembered well what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People had done for me, so I immediately purchased some. Strangely enough, just three boxes again cured me, and I have been entirely free from rheumatism ever since. I have told a number of people about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and they have taken them with most beneficial results."

(Signed) W. J. DALTON.

WOMEN OF THE UNITED STATES

Regard Peruna as Their Shield Against Coughs, Colds, Grip and Catarrhal Diseases.

Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood, Late Candidate for the Presidency.

Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood, late candidate for the Presidency.

Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood, the eminent barrister, of Washington, D. C., is the only woman who has ever been a candidate for the presidency of the United States. She is the best known woman in America. As the pioneer of her sex in the legal profession she has gathered fame and fortune. In a letter to the Peruna Medicine Company she says:

"I have used your Peruna both for myself and my mother, Mrs. Hannah J. Bennett, now in her 88th year, and I find it an invaluable remedy for cold, catarrh, hay fever and kindred diseases; also a good tonic for feeble and old people, or those run down, and with nerves unstrung."

Yours truly,
Belva A. Lockwood.

Peruna cures catarrh by removing the cause, inflamed mucous membranes.

Dr. Hartman, the compounder of Peruna, once said, in a lecture to women: "A great number of women consult me every year. I often have occasion to say to these patients: 'I fear you have catarrh, madam.' They will generally reply, 'Oh, no, I never had catarrh. My nose is perfectly clear, and my breath is not bad. I am not troubled with coughing or spitting, or any other disagreeable symptom of catarrh.' 'But, my dear madam, you may have catarrh all the same. Catarrh is not always located in the head. You may have catarrh of the lungs, or stomach, or liver, or kidneys and especially you may have catarrh of the pelvic organs."

Mrs. T. J. Ballard, Eureka Springs, Ark., cured of a severe case of catarrh by Peruna.

The doctor went on to say: "I have been preaching this doctrine for the last forty years, but there are a vast multitude of women who have never heard it yet. Catarrh may attack any organ of the body. Women are especially liable to catarrh of the pelvic organs. There are one hundred cases of catarrh of the pelvic organs to one of catarrh of the head. Most people think, because they have not catarrh of the head, they have not catarrh at all. This is a great mistake, and is the cause of many cases of sickness and death."

Mrs. T. Pelton, 562 St. Anthony avenue, St. Paul, Minn., writes: "Peruna has done wonders for me. It has cured my headache and palpitation of the heart; has built up my whole system. I cheerfully recommend Peruna to all sufferers afflicted with catarrh. My mother is never without Peruna. When one is tired and generally out of sorts, if Peruna is taken it immediately removes that tired feeling."

OLD-TIME RAILROADING.

How Tracks Were Constructed and Trains Run Sixty Years Ago.

Irving D. Cook, who lives near South Byron, recently repaired a barn on the old Cook homestead that was built many years ago. In taking out a granary, some timbers found in its construction were recognized by Mr. Cook as a part of the first old New York Central Railroad roadbed that was built to Byron, which was for a time the terminus, about sixty years ago. These white oak sticks were 3 by 4 inches, as sound as when first used, and were what the first strap rail was nailed or spiked on. The imprint of the two-inch iron strap is plainly seen. Mr. Cook's recollection of the early railroading is very clear, as the road crosses his farm.

He says ties were first laid, and on these were placed long stringers, which were of any kind of timber that could be obtained from farmers near by. These stringers were hewn on the upper side, and on the under side were notched where they crossed each tie. On these stringers and running in the same direction white oak scantlings were fastened. When the ends of the strips of iron met, a short piece was placed so that the ends of the rail, if they might be called that, would not indent the wood.

There were no section bosses in those days, and handcars were unknown. The first repair gang consisted of three men, who carried a few spikes, a chisel, an auger, a hand saw, etc., in a handled basket. The few heavy tools, like a crowbar, adze and shovel, were carried on the men's shoulders. The men worked as they pleased, and during the hot summer days it was no uncommon thing for the gang to spend hours in the shade of Mr. Cook's sugar bush, adjoining the track. Trains were infrequent, and a roadmaster's pony was unknown.

Among the locomotives first used for freight and passenger service were the Louis Brooks, Whittlesey, Asa Sprague and No. 4, the last being known as the Iron Engine, because no wood was used in its construction except in the cab. These engines had only one drive-wheel on each side. The first Fourth of July after the road was constructed and in running order was observed by the railroad company by firing a cannon from the rear platform of the last car on approaching stations. The passenger cars were short and much like the body of a stage coach. Some of these passenger cars had an upper story, and from this upper deck Mr. Cook saw Martin Van Buren climb down to shake hands with a crowd when he was running for the presidency. The conductor was then called a collector, and passed along on the outside of the cars on a running board that extended the entire length of the car. The putting of names on engines was discontinued twenty-five or thirty years ago, the last to run on the western division being the Dean Richmond, which was No. 147; the Azariah Boody, James Whitney, James H. Kelley and Gen. H. H. Baxter.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

One of its aims is to make both spoken and written German simpler, not only by using shorter and less involved sentences, but by the elimination of the use of foreign words in the social, business and scientific worlds. Lighting a Lamp with a Snowball.

When a small piece of potassium, the size of half a grain of corn, is dropped into a tumblerful of water, some of the oxygen of the water leaves its hydrogen, owing to the intense heat which the chemical action produces, and combines with the metallic potassium, causing a violet bluish flame. When the piece of potassium is placed on the wick of a coal-oil or alcohol lamp, the flame produced by touching the potassium with a bit of snow, ice or water, will light the lamp.

Royal personages almost invariably marry young. Queen Victoria was not 21 at the time of her marriage; the Prince of Wales was rather less than 22 when he married the beautiful Alexandra. The King of Italy was 24 when he married his seventeen-year old bride. The King of the Belgians was first married at the age of 18, and the Emperor of Germany was 22 when he married the Empress, who is a few months his senior.

HEALD'S BUSINESS COLLEGE.

A Prosperous and Popular San Francisco Institution.

Among the institutions identified with the growth and development of San Francisco, Heald's Business College holds a conspicuous place. Both as a business enterprise and an educational institution, it has been ever since its organization, nearly forty years ago, extremely popular and eminently successful. It is in the class of those solid and substantial institutions in which a city takes pride. Citizens point to it as one of the old, reliable and thoroughly progressive establishments, an institution with a definite purpose and an unquestioned status.

In connection with commercial education the name of Heald's is a household word on the Pacific Coast and throughout the country at large. In its own field of effort it is as widely known as Stanford or Berkeley. For it enrolls students from the four quarters of the globe. In 1899 every county in California but four had students in Heald's Business College. The four represented were Del Norte, Lassen, Orange and Ventura. The register of the college shows that in 1900 students were enrolled from the following States and Territories outside of California; in many cases there were several representatives from each: Nevada, Iowa, Washington, Oregon, Montana, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Arizona, Kansas, Missouri, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Vermont, Virginia and New Mexico. In 1900 students came directly to the school from Mexico, Canada, Japan, the Hawaiian Islands, Yukon Territory, Siberia and Central America. Enrollments were also made from England and Sweden.

Its large body of alumni constitute a most formidable promoting force, and the steady growth of the college can be attributed largely to the commanding voice of those thousands of graduates, who know whereof they speak.
