The flax company are distributing a good deal of money around this section of the county these days. They have a large crew of men at work at the mill, and also a crew of men and women at work in the field spreading flax that has been threshed. They have installed a new kind of roller, which consists of smooth rollers running together, and it does much better work and more of it than the one employed last season. A large amount of flax has been delivered, and there is more yet to come. Several large stacks of straw have been made near the mill, and the large building is piled full.

The Scio roller mill has been leased to Henry Miller, of Marion county, who will take immediate charge and operate the mill at once. He will be prepared to purchase grain and pay the top market price therefor, and will also take grain on storage, giving the usual accommodation to patrons. He is a practical mill man, and has had many years' experience in the mill and grain business, and comes among us well recommended. He has a large number of sacks on hand, and those wishing sacks can get them any time. We are pleased to note that Mr. Miller has secured the mill, and trust that our people will do what they can to help him make a success of his undertaking.

Miss Anna Messelt died at the home of her brother, Fred Messelt, near Crabtree, Monday morning, and was buried at the Masonic cemetery Tuesday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. Sterilant, of Albany. The young lady was twenty-nine years of age, and was born in Iowa. She came to Oregon with her parents when a small child, and after she had become grown she entered the Baptist Missionary school, at Chicago, from which she graduated three years ago, but after about a year's work as a missionary she contracted a cold, which resulted in a consumption, and for the past two years she had been in a constant grasp. She was taken to California, but the change did not prove beneficial, and six weeks ago she returned home, and died soon thereafter, suffering. She leaves a mother and several relatives, beside a host of friends to mourn the death of one whom it was a pleasure to call friend. Mrs. Messelt and her children request us to extend their sincere thanks to those kind neighbors who so willingly assisted in caring for the unfortunate young lady during her long illness and at her death and burial.

Slightly Embarrassed.

The father of a 17 year-old Jacksonville young lady, in town this week, told the following story on a young man who stopped at his home one night lately. The young man called on his daughter to spend the evening, and when he got ready to leave he realized that a heavy rain storm was raging. He had no umbrella or rubber coat and when the girl's father asked him to remain in the house he readily consented. He is a very bashful young man, and next morning when he was invited to a seat at the table very reluctantly accepted. He was very nervous and agitated. He sat opposite a mirror and discovered that he had forgotten to comb his hair; then he dropped his fork on the floor and as he stooped to pick it up, he upset his coffee. Matters went from bad to worse until finally in despite the young man quit eating and put his hands under the table. The loss of the table cloth was lying in his lap, and when he touched it he turned pale. He thought it was his shirt, and in his nervous excitement had forgotten to put the garment inside his trousers. That accounted for the smiles and his embarrassment. There was no time to lose. He hurriedly stuffed the supposed shirt inside his trousers. Two minutes when the family arose there was a crash. The dishes lay in a broken mass on the floor; the young man pulled two feet of table cloth out of his trousers and fled through the door. He is yet in the woods back of his home near Jacksonville. The young lady he called on is open for engagement to a less nervous young man.—Ashland Town Talk.

Memorial.

Lester Albert Miller, son of T. F. and Mrs. W. J. Miller, was born near Scio, Lincoln County, Oregon, on March 7, 1883, and died at his parents' home two miles south of Lebanon, August 19, 1901.

Typoid fever made its lustidious attack on his constitution and on July 13, his condition became serious. For twenty-six days all that was in human power was done to save him from the dread effects of this subtle disease, but all the ministrations of skilled physicians and of loving friends availed nothing, and on Thursday afternoon, when the old clock struck five, he passed from his suffering to the infinite rest.

He was a member of the class of four boys who graduated from Crawford Public School, June 25, in thirty previous years. His illness, despite his frequent ill-health, he was a bright pupil, and he had won the respect of his teachers by his quiet bearing and good scholarship. He was popular with his friends and schoolmates, and the untimely ending of this promising life leaves a void in his home and in the hearts of his friends.

He leaves his sorrowing father and mother, an aunt, an uncle, two sisters and three brothers.

The funeral services were conducted at the home by Rev. J. W. Maguire, who gave beautiful words of consolation and hope. A large number of friends and schoolmates was present to pay the last tokens of respect. The burials were the broken class of boys with whom he had graduated, and three of his schoolmates.

The interment was placed in a sunny spot in the Massene cemetery. Gentle hands covered the grave of one who had died in the bloom of youth, with the flowers he had loved so well, it was a heap of blossoms.

The stricken family have the sympathy of the entire community in their great affliction.

CHANCES OF MARRIAGE.

What useful knowledge the facts constituting marriage and are constituting for women who are unmarried? They clearly indicate to the woman whose age is from 20 to 24 that she shall particularly favor the attention of men from 25 to 24, or 23 to 25. She had best pay particular attention to the former, because the sterner sex marries much more frequently at that age than after reaching the age of 25. So a spinster from 25 to 29 years old has the surest chance of men aged from 30 to 34 and 35 to 39, the former group supplying the better chance to her.

Out of every 100 women on the average only 32 remain unmarried.

Now, then, how is it as to what may be called the marriage combinations? Naturally these are only four in number—widows and widowers, bachelors and maids and vice versa.

The fact shows that 85 out of every 100 marriages are those of the bachelor and the widow rarely wed. This is by no means to be construed, however, that the widow is unpopular. On the contrary, she holds her own with the maids, apparently without difficulty. There are, in these modern days, apparently as much cause for taking the advice of the older Mr. Weller to "act as ever."
