A special meeting of the taxpayers of Scio school district was held Monday of this week for the purpose of voting a tax to pay interest on bonds and for school purposes. The district is in debt a few hundred dollars for money borrowed for the purpose of maintaining the school during the last two years, and it was proposed to levy a tax sufficient to liquadate this indebtedness as well as to pay the interest on the bonded debt. The matter was put to a vote, and the result was that a motion to levy a five mill tax for the sole purpose of paying the accrued interest on bonds carried, and the future of the school was thus left in doubt.

There is no use trying to maintain a school equal to the one we have been having for the past two years unless we levy a small tax for the purpose, as the money received from the state does not amount to a sufficient sum to pay the running expenses of the school. The property value of the district is considerably more than a hundred thousand dollars, and a small tax would raise sufficient revenue to keep the school up to the high standard which it has maintained for years.

Another school meeting will be held on January 27th, for the purpose of levying a tax for school purposes, and it is hoped that our people will then decide to vote a small tax, and thus insure the continuance of the school in its present high standing.

EDITORIAL HASH

The campaign is approaching. Let us remind our readers of this fact, as well as the fact that candidates for the numerous offices are growing more numerous every day. Many of them are seeking favors at the hands of the people for the second and in some instances the third time; while others are new in the art of politics. Two years ago THE NEWS took part in the campaign in a strictly independent manner, and we do not think there are any who can say that we overstepped the independant line in a single particular. We followed strictly in the path of an independent journal, and our work was not critisized in any manner. We done just what we were paid for, and served all alike. In this particular we might truthfully say that we advertised the wishes of the politician as we did the merchants goods. It is just as legitimate for an individual to advertise his own personal wishes and desired as it is for the merchant to say through the same columns that he has goods for sale. During the coming campaign we shall follow out the same rule that we did two years ago. We shall not do much in this line until the nominations have been made, although any prospective candidate can have the privalege of making his wishes known to the people of the county through these columns by paying for it, just the same as any other legitimate advertiser. Our rates will be the same to everyone regardless of party.

The appointment of a county roadmaster has been pasponed by the county court until the regular meeting in February. The appointment was to have bee announced at the last regular meeting of the court, and there were a number of petitions filed by different aspisants for the position, but the county court deferred in making the appointment. The office is an important one one to the taxpayers of the county, and a good man should be chosen for the position. It is not necessary that he should be a lawyer or an architect, although he should posess a thorough knowledge of modern road building. No wornout politician should be given the position to get him out of the way, but he should be a wide awake up-to-date citizen, ready at all times to work for the best interests of the county regardless of localities or personalities.

Last week we received a communication mailed at Scio which described the advantages and benefits of the Y. M. C. A., but the letter was not signed by the writer, therefore we could not give it space in our columns. We do not print letters of any nature unless the writers name accompanies the communication. It does not necessarily follow that the name of the writer is to be made public, but it must be known to the editor to insure publication. There is no excuse for not signing ones name to a letter for publication, and no person should be permitted to make an utterance in print that he would not make in public before everyone. THE NEWS is always pleased to print communications of this or any other nature, but their origin must be known to the publisher before they will appear in these columns.

Scio's public schools are daily becoming of greater credit to the city and the patrons of the school. Last week another teacher was added to the already afficient corps, making four at present. There are a large number of outside students attending the higher grades and taking the business course, and this of course adds to the importance of the schools, as well as to the credit of the teachers. Great credit is due Prof. Geddes for this state of affairs, as his untiring efforts have in a great measure been responsible for the increased popularity of the schools. The board of directors have worked hard to bring about this very pleasant condition, and in their efferts they have at all times been assisted by the teachers in charge of the various departments.

At a special meeting of the city council held at the city hall Thursday evening of last week it was decided not to levy a tax in the city the present year. There is available assets to cover all expenses, indebtedness and proposed improvements, and the tax would simply be additional burdons unnecessarily thrust upon the taxpayers. A meeting of the taxpayers of the school district is called for the purpose of levying a tax for school purposes, and the city conncil thought it would be better to refrain from levying a city tax and in so doing the school tax might be made a little heavier without adding a much greater burdon.

Scio has some of the best boys and girls in the country, and we also have some who do not use very good judgment in the way they conduct themselves at public gatherings. We have often spoke of this matter before, but without seeming effect, and there is a probability that the strong arm of the law will have to take some of them in charge before they will learn the lesson of propriety sufficiently well to be able to behave themselves properly in public places.

SCHOOL NOTES

Mr S. I. Shore took part in the institute discussions, and gave an interesting talk on tact.

Prof Bushnell of Albany College visited the higher department last week, and took part in the recitations.

Wonder what we would do without Mr. and Mrs. Abbott who are always so willing and helpful in taking the lead in all musical enterprises.

County Supt. Jackson visited all departments of the school Friday, and took a decided interest in the work. Seperintendant Jackson is proving to be the right man for the position he holds.

It will take to much space in THE NEWS to give a senopsis of the work of the institute, but suffice to say that it was a vast improvement over the institute of last year as to interest manifested, attendance and character of work. There were 23 teachers present besides enough student teachers to make the enrollment 30.

The institute unanimously passed the following resolution.

Resolved;—That we the teachers enrolled in the Scio Institute, extend our heartiest thanks to County Supt. Jackson, Prof. Jones, editor of the Oregon School Journal, Prof. Bushnell of Albany College, Mr. and Mrs. Abbott, and others who aided in making the institute a succes.
