When you get harness of me you know that it can be depended on, and that just when you are busiest it will not be breaking. Saddles, Blankets at Robes always on hand.

Served Them Right.

A Corvallis youngster was arrested the other day for disturbing a Salvation Army meeting. He stood trial in the police court, and a jury of six men listened to the testimony. Two of his young friends testified in his behalf, and in their effort to clear him, swore that they made as much racket at the meeting as he did. Then the officials arrested them on their own evidence and the court pronounced them guilty. The jury found the first one guilty also, and a fine of $10 each were assessed against all.—Times.

The case has been tried at McMinnville and the plaintiff recovered $400.
