

AN INTERNATIONAL TOWN.

Facilities of Nogales, on the Mexican border line.

It would be incorrect to date a letter from either Nogales, Ariz., or Nogales, Mex., alone, for the town belongs to both countries equally, completely to both that neither half is a town at all. It is the most completely and curiously international place that can be conceived of. There is no separation of the two parts visible as you look down on the town from the hills, and the life and the ordinary traffic of the place flow back and forth with no one apparently to say them so. However, it must not be supposed that there is free trade across the thoroughfare, which on one side is the Mexican and on the other the Calle International.

In the middle of the street, where the Calle Texas, or main business street, crosses the international avenue, stands a stone obelisk about twelve feet high, and in the vicinity of this are always one or two guards in civilian dress, who pay no attention to empty handed passersby, but will stop any carriage or any person who offers to cross with a burden that might contain dutiable material. Occasionally on the Mexican side one sees a Mexican soldier in uniform, but the guard near by is too small to hold more than a small detachment, and neither soldiers nor uniformed customs guards are ever in evidence along the border.

The Americans live apart from one another in individual houses of all grades, most of which are very neat and some of which are quite fine and must have been costly. Their streets run up the sides of the mountain side in which the town is situated. In among their houses are the adobe cabins of the Mexicans, who are their neighbors of wood and drawers of water these terms being literally correct here, for the fuel of the country is knotted and gnarled wood, brought from the hills on donkey backs, and the town water would run up to the higher elevations.

OLD FASHIONED.

What has become of the old fashioned child that "made faces"?

What has become of the old fashioned man who hung his lodge sword in a conspicuous place?

What has become of the old fashioned man who said a kindly, industrious man was "full handed"?

What has become of the old fashioned man who wanted to put his enemies where the dogs wouldn't bite them?

What has become of the old fashioned father who took a whip and held heart to heart talks with his son on the barn?

What has become of the old fashioned woman who didn't think it proper to appear on the streets with her husband unless she had had of his arm?—Attison Globe.

Jefferson as an inventor.

Not many people know that Thomas Jefferson was a great inventor. His inventions were all of articles of everyday use. He devised a three legged folding camp stool that is the basis of all camp stools of that kind today. The stool he had made for his own use was his constant companion on occasions of outlaws. The revolving chair was his invention. He designed a light wagon. A copying press was devised by him and came into general use. He also invented an instrument for measuring the distance he walked. A plow and a hemp cultivator showed that his thoughts were often upon agricultural matters. His plow received a gold medal in France in 1790. Jefferson never benefited financially by his inventions, but believed they should be for the use of every one without cost.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

WHY NOSES POINT EAST.

A Theory Which is Plausible, but Rather Ridiculous.

Very few people's noses are set properly upon their faces. Any observant person who will go along the street and take notice of the nasal organs of the passersby may easily convince himself on the subject. Not one individual in a hundred, whether man or woman, is above criticism as to the arrangement of his or her nose.

One might think that nature is a bit careless about this matter. When the nose turns off at an angle instead of assuming its just and proper attitude, it tends, at all events in extreme cases, to give a disordered effect to the features as a whole, but if nature really does not care which way a nose points there ought to be as many noses turned one way as are turned the other.

But is this the case? Not a bit of it. As you walk down the street look at the people as they go by, and you will discover that the noses of ninety-nine out of every hundred turn to the right. When once you have begun to notice this fact, it will constantly attract your attention. In truth, the objection to starting in upon a study of this kind is that you cannot get away from it afterwards. It haunts you steadily and persistently. Whenever you meet a friend you look at his nose to make sure whether it turns to the right or not.

Now, the phenomenon being as described, what is the reason behind it? Why should nearly everybody's nose turn to the right rather than to the left? There seems to be only one way to account for it, and that is that at first, everybody is right handed and uses his head/cheek correspondingly, so from infancy to old age the nose in the process of being blown and wiped is persistently twirled to the right; hence as the infant passes through childhood and later youth when the nasal organ is flexible and in process of formation, so to speak—it is obliged gradually but surely to assume an inclination eastward.

If this theory is correct, the noses of left handed persons ought to turn eastward to the left. Such, in fact, appears to be the case, but data on this interesting branch of the question are not sufficiently complete to afford a final conclusion.—Saturday Evening Post.
