ANNIE LAURIE

Across the sea a fragment, Blown with the spray and mist, Blownward from some distance, Where shade and shine hold true; An old song set in cadence, Of good and amethyst.

A ship on the horizon, Where safety eyes are still, Lightly to clear her way, Her sails of vision set; A schooner nearing the harbor— Listen! The sailors sing:

"Maxwell brags are bonnie, 'Twas three most Annie Laurie 'Gave me her promise true, 'Twas the rainbow fabric of boyhood, Kinde my skies anew."

"Maxwell brags are bonnie," How sweet that old refrain! Break into songs again, And on the long way I hear The music of the rain.

"Maxwell brags are bonnie," There's a mother at the door, The cattle down the dusky lane, And mounted on the pasture back, I swing and sing once more.

"Maxwell brags are bonnie," Oh, the world of distance, And the world of vision set, The world of love and shade, And living seems divine!

Across the sea a fragment, Blown with the spray and mist, Blownward from some distance, Where shade and shine hold true; A vision of the past, In old and amethyst.

The Dancing Teacher

THE peculiar thing about Marie Vanderpool was that she had an insatiable appetite for happiness.

She took to dancing slippers as naturally as one takes to shoes, and she was so skilful in her work that she was called a dancing teacher.

She discovered a chance for a frolic with the same enthusiasm that she had when she found an opportunity to be a dancer.

No one ever claimed that she was of any use, and she certainly never made any such claim herself. It never occurred to her that she could be useful.

She was a girl of a certain type, and she was not content to be a dancer, she wanted to be a dancing teacher.

All of the other members of her family were industrious, and several of them were wise. They won distinction along commercial and intellectual lines, and were noted for their philanthropies, and were solicited to lend their names to "causes."

They were associated with nearly all of the leading benevolent enterprises of the city. Now, it is impossible for any one to be a dancing teacher and to be a philanthropist.

One Notice is Served.

Due notice is hereby served on the public generally that DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is the only salve on the market that is made from the pure unadulterated witch hazel.

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has cured thousands of cases of piles that would not yield to any other treatment, and this has brought out many worthless counterfeits.

Those persons who get the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve are never disappointed because it cures.

The Benefit of Change.

We are like house plants. We need a change of soil now and then to be replanted. New scenes, new experiences, new surroundings—a change of climate, dry air instead of moisture, sunshine in place of cloud. This is sometimes essential to health.

There are conditions near at hand that are better than Europe can offer. Take a month or two in California. Plant yourself for a time where there are no irritations, where the hotel is beyond criticism, the landscape pleasing, and where warm sunny weather invites to walks and drives, pure and dry air, and the increased electric influences of sunshine are vastly helpful.

You can make this trip at very little expense, and enjoy a ride over the scenic Sierran and Shasta mountains, which at this time of the year with snow covered peaks, are unsurpassed for their grandeur.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver of Philadelphia as follows: I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow eyes sunken tongue coated with mucus.

My back and sides no appetite grew weaker day by day. Three physicians had given up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters to my great joy the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim. No one should fail to try them, only 50 cents, guaranteed at E. C. Peery's drug store.

"Come, come!" she cried, "I've invited you over here with a purpose. I wanted you to show us the mazurka. You dance it so beautifully!"

"You dance it so beautifully!" she called to the musicians to play a mazurka, gave the class permission to be seated, and poised herself delicately.

"Come, come!" she cried again, "I insist on your dancing the best you know how."

Kenneth Hadley, the dignified and reserved man who had thought himself a little better than others and had held himself somewhat haughtily aloof, bowed to his dancing and entered heart and soul upon his task.

"We must get it just right," Miss Vanderpool insisted. "You see, we are not learning in quite the usual way on account of a lack of the knowledge of the rudiments on the part of the teacher."

And she laughed. "But we propose to dance as well as those who have learned in the regular, old-fashioned way."

Hadley looked about him and saw in every face, whether it was that of a young man or young woman, of Jew or Christian, of German, Bohemian, Scandinavian, or Italian, of factory hand or worker in the stock yards, a look of admiration and respect for Miss Vanderpool. Moreover, her infectious happiness had brought vivacity and something akin to delight even into the heaviest face.

"I never liked your dancing so much as I do at this hour," he said to her, earnestly. "I wish I might help you now and then."

"Oh you could, you could! But for you perhaps I should not have realized that I had one talent. It never occurred to me that being happy and having light feet could be a talent."

There was a Virginia reel—just by way of diversion—and Marie Vanderpool danced through it like a spirit of joy—Chicago.
