EDITORIAL.

Man is a queer creature; he spends the best years of his life trying to get passes on the railroad and when he gets them they cost him more than the railroad fare would cost five times over. He spends a great deal of time making a home for himself, and when he has made it he spends more time inventing excuses to stay away from it. He will raise a great row at home if he is given a spoon that has been used by one of the children since it was washed, and then he will go to the free lunch counter, shovel saur kraut into his mouth with an iron fork that has been used by guzzlers of all nationalities. He tells his children it is foolish to go to circuses and then stands two hours at the railway depot to see the elephants unloaded. Man is a queer animal.

County Cour .

Petition for Rebuilding the Sanderson Bridge Will Be Granted.

In the applications for a new bridge at the site of the old Sanderson bridge, the County Court heard the petitions and will visit the place on Friday. The court has not acted officially in the matter, but the members all favor a bridge. They have consulted with F. J. Miller concerning the style of the structure and will build one that will stay. The span will probably be over 400 feet long and the approaches will make the whole length nearly 700 feet.

School Entertainment.

The Scio Public School will give a closing entertainment Thursday evening, May 14th, at the Assembly Hall.

Teachers and pupils are taking much pains in the preparation of the programme and insure the public a pleasant evening. An admission fee of 15 cents will be charged for adults and 10 cents for children.

The pupils are arranging a novel social entertainment to follow the rendition of the programme. Proceeds to be used for the Library.

A Sure Thing.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. VanMetre of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Grip, Whooping Cough Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by E. C. Peery, Druggist. Trial bottles free. Reg. sizes 50c, $1.00.

Notice of Public School Examination.

Notice is hereby given that the final Eight grade examination for the public schools of Linn county, will be held in compliance with the rules of the State Board of Education on the following dates, April 7 8 and 9, May 20, 21, and 22, June 17, 18 and 19.

Teachers having pupils who have completed the work in the Eight grade should make application for the question thirty days prior to the examination. W. L. Jackson, Co. Supt.

Too Great a Risk.

In almost every neighborhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. For sale by All Dealers.

To Invoke Referendum.

La Grande, Ore., May 5—The State Federation of Labor today passed a resolution calling upon laboring men to invoke the referendum on the Lewis and Clark fair appropriation bill and asking the American Federation of Labor to petition congress not to appropriate money for the fair.

The X-Rays.

Recent experiments, by practical tests and examination with the aid of the X-Rays, establish it as a fact that Catarrh of the Stomach is not a disease of itself, but that it results from repeated attacks of indigestion. "How Can I Cure My Indigestion?" Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is curing thousands. It will cure you of indigestion and dyspepsia, and prevent or cure Catarrh of the Stomach. Kodol digests what you eat—makes the stomach sweet. Sold by E. C. Peery.

TWO COON STORIES.

"It's funny," said Deacon W. H. Nearpass, of Chester, N. Y., "how I found out in what part of the country Jim Bennett had been on one of his trips. Jim doesn't often go on trips, except in warm weather, when snakes are out and are ready to let him discover something new about 'em. But this time the season must have been pretty well along, for Jim said folks were gathering their chestnuts where he was.

"He was driving along, thinking how lovely nature was and yet how queer. He didn't tell me where it was where he was driving along, and he came to a man working away in a field like all possessed, with a pick and shovel. Jim Bennett says he stopped and hollered to the man.

"'Hello, neighbor! Short o' meat, eh?'

"The man quit digging and leaned on his pick.

"'No,' said he, hollering back at Jim. 'I dunno as I'm any way short o' meat.'

"Then Jim says he hollered back at the man:

"'Why, you're digging to get a groundhog out, ain't you?'

"The man hollered back at Jim:

"'No, I ain't diggin' to git a groundhog out. I'm diggin' to get a 'coon in.'

"'Digging to get a 'coon in?' he says he hollered. 'Why, that's kind o' queer, ain't it?'

"'Maybe it is and maybe it hain't,' the man hollered back at Jim. 'That's accordin' to how folks look at it.'

"'But where's the 'coon?'

"'Come over here and I'll tell you,' the man hollered back at Jim.

"So Jim says he tied his horse to the fence and went over into the field where the man was. The man leaned on his pick and looked at Jim awhile and then said:

"'The 'coon is dead!'

"Jim Bennett says this gave him a real start, because he thought he was face to face with a crazy man; but he stood his ground, and the man said:

"'I'm digging his grave!'

"Then the man proceeded with his talk, and Jim says it wasn't long before he found that the man wasn't crazy, not by a jug full, but was simply a kind and observant citizen, relating strange facts.

"'Yes, sir,' the man said to Jim Bennett, according to what Jim tells me, 'he was a 'coon among 'coons, and I'm going to plant him here because he was so all-pervadin' smart that he deserves to have a gravestone. He made one sad mistake to be sure. I didn't want him to go out after the chestnuts. The boys was to blame for his goin'. And I'll lick old Jim Carter till he can't see first thing I run ag'in him.

"'My boys is full of action and vim, and they move around this district consider'ble getherin' apples and chestnuts and sech, like boys with vim gener'ly does. Jim Carter has got a chestnut tree on his place, j'inin' mine, that beats all the trees I know of, and my boys always gits a hankerin' after that tree 'long about this time o' year; but Jim Carter keeps his eye onto it outrageous close, and my boys have got to put up with a good deal of botherin' by him if they let their hankerin' for that tree git the best of 'em.

"'I've got a spy glass at home, a slammin' good one. Jim Carter he lives a mile from that chestnut tree o' his'n, but he keeps comin' toward it every chance he gets to see if it's bein' tampered with, so what does my boys do but take to leggin' that spy glass with 'em and sweepin' the country with it, so if Jim is comin' from any direction they kin see him long before he gits within any sort o' sight o' them, and kin keep on getherin' chestnuts till he gits too close for it to be safe for 'em.

"'This mornin' that 'coon o' mine, after he had rocked the baby to sleep and fed the chickens and the pigs,' so Jim Bennett tells me the man said, 'took down that spy glass and started out. Now, I didn't know this then, or I'd 'a' found out more about it, and either stopped the 'coon or give him some p'ints. But I know it now.

"'He took that spy glass 'cause he had been with the boys durin' one or two of their hankerin' trips, and went over to Jim Carter's tree chestnuttin'. He chestnutted and chestnutted, sweepin' the country every now and then with the spy glass to keep track o' Jim.

"'He seen Jim by and by comin' toward the tree. But that 'coon kept on chestnuttin'. He kept on chestnuttin' so unfortunate long that Jim Carter got there and loaded him with a half a dozen buckshot, and the 'coon came out of the tree dead.

"'He has made a sad mistake, smart as he was. He had been sweepin' the country through the big end o' the spy glass. Of course, that made Jim Carter look more than a mile away when he wasn't 50 yards from the tree, and—well, this is that 'coon's grave, and I'm goin' to plant him in it.'

"Jim Bennett says that was more than he ever learned about 'coons before, and he was glad he had stopped and talked to the man. Jim drove along and by and by, he says, he came to a nice, smart little village, where everything looked prosperous and pleasing, except one tall, stoop-shouldered, neglected-looking man who was going down the street with a yaller dog at his heels. Jim gazed after the man kind o' pitying, he says, and another citizen, a spruce, jolly-appearing individual said to him:

"'That's Sam Fleming. And a real decent, good-actin' citizen he would be, too, if it wasn't for that one bad failin' o' his'n. He hunts 'coons.'

"Jim Bennett says he couldn't say a word.

"'Every night Sam and that yaller dog o' his'n is out huntin' 'coons,' Jim says this citizen said, sorrowful as could be. 'And he skins 'em, and nails them skins to his barn door till you'd think he was runnin' a tanyard. And he eats them 'coons!

"'Jest think of it! Now, we all like Sam, and we've been doin' all sorts o' things to try and wean him out o' that failin' o' his'n, but we can't seem to do it. Now, if he'd only lift somebody's chickens or steal a sheep, we might do somethin' for him. Then we could take him up and send him some'r's where they'd keep him out o' harm's way.

"'There's one more thing we're goin' to try. If that don't shame him into reformin', then he'll have to move some'r's else. He'll have to move!'

"Jim Bennett says he asked the man what they intended to do to Sam Fleming next.

"'What be we goin' to do to him?' said the man. 'Why, sir, we're actu'ly goin' to elect him to the legislatur'!'

"When Jim Bennett told me that, I was surprised and said:

"'Why, Jim, how could that be? Men strain and struggle and buy things to get elected to the legislature, and folks look up to 'em.'

"'Yes,' said Jim. 'Some places they do, I know. But this was the Pennsylvania legislature.'

"And that's how I come to find out what part of the country Jim had been on his trip in. And very likely he learned a whole lot more about 'coons, but that is all he told me."—N. Y. Sun.

SEAWEEDGATHERING

Popular Diversion on the Beaches of Summer Resorts.

Prettily Mounted Specimens Are Taken Home by Sojourners as Souvenirs of the Season at the Seaside.

Seaweeds can be gathered at all seasons of the year, but are at their best in the summer and early autumn. Some of them float free of anchorage in the ocean and others are attached to rocks and other stationary objects by parts which are known as "holdfasts" and look like roots, but furnish no nutriment to the plant. An advantage of the work is the fact that the plants may be collected in the summer and not be pressed until it is convenient. Even the sun-dried products picked up on the seashore and carried home will respond to a salt bath and unfold their tangled and meaningless masses into delicate traceries of pretty green, brown and red hues, says an eastern exchange.

In order to make the specimens of value, either as displays of nature's handiwork or as motifs for china and other decoration, they must be mounted. Stiff cards are excellent for the purpose. They can be white or tinted, as taste dictates. With the cards and seaweeds and a couple of deep basins of salt water one is ready to begin work. A pair of tweezers with which to pick up the delicate structures will be found useful. Float a small mass of specimens in one of the basins.

Then with the tweezers, as it separates into its parts, pick out a single plant and wash it free from all sands and impurities in the second basin. When this is done plunge one of the cards under the water and bring it directly beneath the cleansed specimen. Holding the card at a sharp angle, arrange the base of the specimen in the desired position with a camel's hair brush, needle or wooden toothpick. This work must be done under water. When the delicate filaments are spread out to the best advantage withdraw the card a little way from the water and observe the result. The seaweed will adhere without any difficulty. As the arrangement progresses the card is gradually lifted from the water until every portion is complete. If a change in the arrangement is desirable plunge the card into the water carefully and make the alterations. When the work is finished the midrib should have a natural shape and from it the filaments should branch on either side. Drain off all the water possible and cover the mounts with white cotton cloth to prevent the seaweeds from adhering to anything else. When all the mounts are ready press them under heavy weights for several hours. If the effort has been painstaking beautiful souvenirs will result.

Persons who have never collected seaweeds are sure to find in the occupation relief from the conventionalities with which seashore resorts abound and a pleasant resource for leisure hours when fancy work and summer novels have lost their charms. Then, too, with the work there are sure to come delightful surprises, for the inconspicuous water growths develop under proper treatment unsuspected charms of form and color. To know the names of the plants is of benefit, of course, but without a botanical term at hand one may still claim the title of collector.

Quite Satisfactory.

The king of the Belgians went out for a walk the other day, and entered a farm to ask for a glass of milk. When he had made a remark in English to his companion, he heard the hostess say to her husband in Flemish: "I wonder what that long-nosed Englishman will give us for the milk?" Whereupon the king took out a five-franc piece and gave it to the woman, saying in Flemish: "Allow me to offer you the portrait of the long-nosed Englishman."

Parting.

"We must part!" faltered Gabrielle.

"No! No! No!" cried Hermann, looking at his watch. "I have but ten minutes!"

She regarded him wonderingly. Mere child that she was, she had yet to learn that fond hearts may not part and do it right in less than two hours, at the least.—Puck.

"After my first baby was born I did not seem to regain my strength although the doctor gave me a tonic which he considered very superior, but instead of getting better I grew weaker every day. My husband insisted that I take Wine of Cardui for a week and see what it would do for me. I did take the medicine and was very grateful to find my strength and health slowly returning. In two weeks I was out of bed and in a month I was able to take up my usual duties. I am very enthusiastic in its praise."

Wine of Cardui reinforces the organs of generation for the ordeal of pregnancy and childbirth. It prevents miscarriage. No woman who takes Wine of Cardui need fear the coming of her child. If Mrs. Unrath had taken Wine of Cardui before her baby came she would not have been weakened as she was. Her rapid recovery should commend this great remedy to every expectant mother. Wine of Cardui regulates the menstrual flow.
