An undertaking for attachment was filed and real estate in Jordan, together with personal property, was attached. SEAWEED GATHERING

Popular Diversion on the Beaches of Summer Resorts.

Prettily Mounted Specimens Are Taken Home by Sojourners as Souvenirs of the Season at the Seaside.

Seaweeds can be gathered at all seasons of the year, but are at their best in the summer and early autumn. Some of them float free of anchorage in the ocean and others are attached to rocks and other stationary objects by parts which are known as "holdfasts" and look like roots, but furnish no nutriment to the plant. An advantage of the work is the fact that the plants may be collected in the summer and not be pressed until it is convenient. Even the sun-dried products picked up on the seashore and carried home will respond to a salt bath and unfold their tangled and meaningless masses into delicate traceries of pretty green, brown and red hues, says an eastern exchange.

In order to make the specimens of value, either as displays of nature's handiwork or as motifs for china and other decoration, they must be mounted. Stiff cards are excellent for the purpose. They can be white or tinted, as taste dictates. With the cards and seaweeds and a couple of deep basins of salt water one is ready to begin work. A pair of tweezers with which to pick up the delicate structures will be found useful. Float a small mass of specimens in one of the basins.

Then with the tweezers, as it separates into its parts, pick out a single plant and wash it free from all sands and impurities in the second basin. When this is done plunge one of the cards under the water and bring it directly beneath the cleansed specimen. Holding the card at a sharp angle, arrange the base of the specimen in the desired position with a camel's hair brush, needle or wooden toothpick. This work must be done under water. When the delicate filaments are spread out to the best advantage withdraw the card a little way from the water and observe the result. The seaweed will adhere without any difficulty. As the arrangement progresses the card is gradually lifted from the water until every portion is complete. If a change in the arrangement is desirable plunge the card into the water carefully and make the alterations. When the work is finished the midrib should have a natural shape and from it the filaments should branch on either side. Drain off all the water possible and cover the mounts with white cotton cloth to prevent the seaweeds from adhering to anything else. When all the mounts are ready press them under heavy weights for several hours. If the effort has been painstaking beautiful souvenirs will result.

Persons who have never collected seaweeds are sure to find in the occupation relief from the conventionalities with which seashore resorts abound and a pleasant resource for leisure hours when fancy work and summer novels have lost their charms. Then, too, with the work there are sure to come delightful surprises, for the inconspicuous water growths develop under proper treatment unsuspected charms of form and color. To know the names of the plants is of benefit, of course, but without a botanical term at hand one may still claim the title of collector.

Lake of Perfume.

On the Mangishlak peninsula, in the Caspian sea, there are five small lakes. One of them is covered with salt crystals strong enough to allow a man and beast to cross the lake on foot; another is as round as any circle and a lovely rose color. Its banks of salt crystal form a setting, white as the driven snow, to the water, which not only shows all the colors from violet to rosy red, but from which rises a perfume as of violets. Both the perfume and the color are the result of the presence of seaweeds, the violet and the pink [illegible]

SHIED AT THE CLASSICS.

Embarrassing Trap That an Unfinished Missouri Lawyer Led Himself Into.

In speaking of the humorous incidents that have come under his notice, Judge Gates, of the circuit court, tells this story, says the Kansas City Star:

"While I was in practice," he said, "I was before the supreme court on one occasion. While waiting for my case to be called I listened to a lawyer from the southeastern part of the state arguing his case. He was at least six feet seven inches tall, and had a voice so deep that when he spoke it seemed like the rumbling of Niagara. 'I will read,' he said, 'from a work with which your honors are no doubt familiar—Blackstone.' The judges did not smile, although there was a decided twinkle in their eyes as they glanced at each other.

"The man read a few lines and then said: 'There is reference here, your honors, to a foot note by Lord Granville. I would have your honors pay particular attention to this note, because it is by Lord Granville.' The judges waited expectantly. The lawyer held the book in front of him, glanced at it two or three times, and then coughed as many times in rather an embarrassed manner. Everybody waited for several seconds. Finally he said: 'Your honors, I see on closer inspection that this foot note is in Latin, so I reckon I'd better skip that.'"

REGARDING THE CORONATION.

An Advertising Expert Tells Something About the Effects of the Great Event.

The coronation of Edward is one of the greatest subjects for advertising at the present time. There are few trades or manufacturers that are not going to be benefited by it. For months to come the goods to be used, the jewelry to be worn, the colors to be fashionable, and the shapes of shoes and hats that will take their complexion from the coronation event, will be the subject of discussion and description throughout the world, says the National Advertiser.

Go to any steamship office to-day in this city and you will find that even at this early date staterooms, cabins and choice places are being spoken for the early summer and coming royal event. Speak to any of the prominent society people, and all their arrangements are made with due regard to the great fashionable display of the coming year. And when the pageant is over there will be more coronation gloves, coronation scarfs, coronation collars, coronation hats, coronation everything in fact, from souvenirs of the memento order to a good article of the king's own whisky, than can be figured on just now. That is why the coronation of Edward is going to be a good thing in its way, apart from its royal import.

8 Cents

Eight cents a pound is what a young woman paid for twelve pounds of flesh.

She was thin and weak and paid one dollar for a bottle of Scott's Emulsion, and by taking regular doses had gained twelve pounds in weight before the bottle was finished.

Eight cents a pound is cheap for such valuable material. Some pay more, some less, some get nothing for their money. You get your money's worth when you buy Scott's Emulsion.
