Public Schools of Linn County.

In the selection of a man for the position of county superintendent of schools the democratic convention did a wise act in naming the present incumbent, Prof. W. L. Jackson, for re-election. Mr. Jackson has held this important position during the past term, and has proven by every act that he was fully qualified for the place. He is a progressive school man in every respect, being well qualified from a classical standpoint as he has been a close student all his life. He has had special training for school work and now holds a state life diploma, the best the state can grant. He has taught in the schools of Linn county for sixteen years, six years of that time being spent as principal of some of the best graded schools in the county. During his administration of the office he has given much time to the rural schools of the county, paying special attention to the upbuilding of the smaller schools of the rural districts in an effort to bring them up to the standard of other and larger schools. He has made special efforts in the matter of 8th grade examinations of the schools in the county, paying out his own money and devoting much time to the work, as there is no special fund for the work, and the result has been that there is a larger per cent of the schools of Linn county sending in eighth grade examination papers than any other county in the state. This work alone has cost Mr. Jackson a good many dollars and much labor and the result has been to place the schools of the county on a footing never before attained. He is a prominent member of the K. O. T. M. and K. of P., a man of true moral worth and his record will insure a safe, wise, and progressive administration to the school affairs of Linn county. His card will be found on this page.

Among the promises candidates for representative are making is that of not voting for any money to be appropriated to the Lewis & Clark Exposition and they say they would not have voted for the appropriation at the last legislature. We have no use in the legislature for men who have no more pride than that to them, they are to be zealous altogether. The Lewis & Clark Exposition is to commemorate a historical event dear to the people of Oregon and to the hearts of all American citizens, and when the exposition is held next year it will prove to be one of the greatest aids ever devised for the permanent future and recognition of our state, for through this exposition thousands of people will make their homes in Oregon. Candidates will please bear in mind that the tax payers of the state are in favor of appropriations for the Lewis & Clark Exposition.

THE LIMIT.

BY FRANK Y. BECKERS.

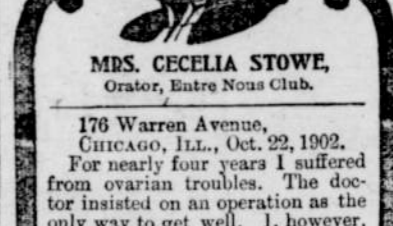

He had been known as a hopeless drunkard and "good for nothing" for so long that he believed it himself. His friends had argued with him until, at last, they had abandoned further effort and decided to let him drift on as he would. They were disgusted with him, and even he admitted they had cause to be. And yet, they still found something fine in his nature—perhaps it was his frank manner of confessing his faults or his humanity in the face of criticism, or, perhaps, his sincere, if futile, desire to reform and, as his friends would urge, make something of himself—or, perhaps, with some, it was the only way he had of smiling under fire. His friends told him he was weak and not viciously bad, and he himself believed he was weak and was very doubtful about the latter.

Finally there came one who had faith in him, abundant enough, he began to think, for both of them. He remembered their first meeting, in her own parlor; she standing at the side of the fireplace, with its glow illuminating her face. He remembered that she did not impress him as being so very pretty then—neat, sweet, and attractive, certainly—with a pleasant and sympathetic

MRS. CECELIA STOWE,
Orator, Entre Nous Club.

178 Warren Avenue,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 29, 1902.

For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disinclined as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disagreeable place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

"I realize I've made a mistake. I've been wanting to tell you for some time, but did not have the courage. I'm so sorry—but I think it best to break our engagement, don't you? You know you don't like hypocrites." You found yourself trying to remember what the play they had just seen had been about. The moment had lengthened silently, as usual, when she said:

"Why don't you say what you are thinking? Why don't you abuse me, as I deserve?" she added.

He stood looking at her dumbly, numbly. "I suppose," she continued, "you will go back to your dreadful drinking—to your old life?"

"I don't know," he murmured. "Good-night."—Mirror.
