PERKARED PRIDRY OF BROH WEEK .=

Eagene now comes to the front with a sickening story of wrong doing. It is an attempttat child murder, in which is young girl, in order to hide her shame, leaves her new-born babe to die in the woods. In it a guilty scoundrel is screened, the whole making a story beside which, barring the loss of life, the Sying bullets in the Corvalis affair present conditions less melancholy than are the details of the Eugene stery. As told by the Register, the Eugene affair is as follows: "With the salt tears gushing from its pitifol eyes of blue and the sun gleaming upon its pink little body, L. M. Beebe found a new-born girl baby about 7:30 last evening, hidden in a river benk a short distance below the Barker sawmill. Mr. Beebe, who resides in the vicinity, was was attracted to the spot by the p'aintive wailing of the waif. The ennatural mother had placed the Ditte one in the thicket of tangled shrubbery without placing a garment about it, and its tender body was scratched and torn by brambles and bruised by the rough earth. When found, the child had probably hin in its hiding place three hours, and had almost succumbed to the bore the little plak bun ile of femi. She had another advantage: That bore the little plak bun fle of femiminity to the home of Dr. Henry Hopkins. Restoratives were applied, and the good Samaritans were lewarded by seeing the infant subside into the peaceful slumber of bubyhood. Officers were detailed on the case, and although they would identity of the girl who gave illegitimate birth to the babe, and some sensational disclosures will result in the pext twelve bours."

There was hope in a tall, sparely built man named Bill Tunkey, about whom nobody knew much except that he was a good engineer who ran a rether clumsy ten-wheel locomotive not considered very desirable in a race. All the other locomotives had been eight-wheelers. Still, the new engine had one advantage: She carried water enough in her tank for and do things, whether they are possible or not. It was not possible, everybody vowed, to reach Buffalo key, quietly, and then-

A Head-Waiter Who Was Indignant at an Exaggerated Report of His Income.

Not long ago a morning newspaper discussed the earnings of the headwaiters in the fashionable up-town hotels and restaurants. It said that one headwaiter who raises milk, eggs, vegetables and poultry and sells them to his employer had made $100,000 the whole run, and need not slow out of his farm and the year's tips, says the N. Singular Illusion That Is Visible in Cedar Rapids Whonever the Sun In Shirelag.

Every day in the year when the sun s shining a mirage may be seen in this city, says a correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean. So far as is known this is the only place in the world where this phenomenon of nature can be so regularly observed, although there are many places where form mayor of Toledo, Ohio, died it takes place under certain atmospheric conditions. The mirage here s on one of the principal streets of the city and makes the street appear be first class and a number of Scio's as if there was a pond of water covering it. So natural is this appearance that many times residents of mirage have turned from the street to escape going through the water that they thought they saw in the distance. from is on First avenue, in front of Coe college, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets. On a bright day, by looking down the avenue four or five blocks away will be seen this lake there is no water there.

Prof. Bates, of Coe college, accounts for the mirage by the fact that the avenue is slightly inclined from the indicated point of view. A person, therefore looks down at the mirage at an angle of about 30 degrees, and his line of vision crossing the downcoming rays of light obliquely at that point produces this singular illusion.
