A DANGEROUS PRECEDENT.

President Roosevelt is certainly a fighter and he is no sense a quitter. When Congress assembled last Fall he made several recommendations, of which was the regulation and governmental control of railway freights. The President is not content with simply recommending legislation on this subject to Congress, but immediately proceeded to bring the weight of his influence to bear upon that body to enact the legislation he desired. He wielded the "big stick" so effectively that Congress enacted about such a law as he had dictated in his message. He thus demonstrated that he is greater than Congress.

He has also made certain recommendations looking to the inspection of the product of the great packeries. Congress has again done his bidding. True, in order to bring about the desired result, at the request of Congress, he submitted an evidence as he had to show the great need of such inspection.

Again, the President desired that Congress should decide on the lock plan for building the Panama Canal. The House of Representatives with but little opposition complied with his wishes, but so with the Senate. Nothing but a sea level would suit our American House of Lords. Again the "big stick" is brought into action. The very old Senators, though the dose was, to them, bitter one, have at last taken the medicine and lock canal it is to be.

His latest and probably the most satisfactory to the people, menace of the "big stick," is against Standard Oil Company. The courts are to do the bidding in this instance. Win? Of course he will win. President Roosevelt, as before stated, is not a quitter. If he does not reach the desired result in this way he will try another. His resources seem unlimited, and Mr. Rockefeller may as well walk up the Captain's office and settle first as last. The reason that President Roosevelt is able to wield such great power is because he is supported in all these undertakings by the great force of public opinion. These hoary-headed old Senators hate him and, were it not that nine-tenths of the American voters will and do support the President, the Senate would defy him. The railroads and trusts fear him and will do anything they can do to de throne the President from his position of power.

President Roosevelt wields more power today than any prince or potentate on the earth. The people submit to his assuming so much power because the "big stick," so far, has been wielded in their interests. But suppose that this power had been wielded in the interests of the railroads, of the trusts, and of the money power, what would have become of American liberty in a jiffy? Suppose he should wield the "big stick" to further and protect the interests of the trusts, beef packers, etc.? The simple thought of such a condition would cause one to shudder.

Undoubtedly President Roosevelt is establishing a dangerous precedent. Dangerous because no one man should be permitted to exercise so much power. So long as this power tends to promote the people's interests the people will give their shouts of approval. But President Roosevelt cannot hold his present official position always. Somebody else will be elected president one of these days and having the precedent of Mr. Roosevelt's "big stick" before him, may wield a similar power and not in a way to suit the people. How about it then?

President Roosevelt, in assuming almost the power of a dictator, because this power is exercised in the interests of giving everybody a square deal, is hailed as a patriot and the savior of the Nation from the clutches of plutocracy. If this power should be used in the interests of plutocracy, the people would pronounce him a despot.

We believe that Abraham Lincoln advised one of his legal associates, in the days when lawyers were circuit riders, "not to cross Fox River before he gets to it." So, as a people, will not cross Fox River until the proper time comes, when, let us hope, we will be equal to the occasion. Let us hope that when President Roosevelt lays down the presidential baton it will be taken up by a successor equally a friend to the people. Let us hope that the people, the real source of power in this American nation, will have discernment and patriotism enough to select as our next president, if not Mr. Roosevelt, a man of Rooseveltian thoughts and purposes.

Now that the type of canal has been decided upon the people will expect that the dirt will soon be flying down at Panama.

A GOOD WAY TO KILL A TOWN.

One would ordinarily think that people who live in a town, who build themselves homes and business houses therein would, from a selfish viewpoint if for no other reason, desire that their home town should develop and grow. But judging from their actions, the people of some of the towns not a thousand miles from Seio do not have this desire. To such persons we commend the following as a sure way to prevent your home town from growing.

If you, as a consumer, wish to purchase a suit of clothes or other family supplies, go to some other than your home town to do so. The merchants of these other towns, to encourage you, will shave the price of their goods a few cents. No matter if the trip to the other towns has cost you three or four dollars in incidental expenses, you have saved perhaps one-half that amount in the purchases you have made. You have also prevented your home merchant from making a profit on what he might have sold to you.

If you are a merchant figure just in this way: "Now these people who, from their location should be my customers, cannot go to this or that town to buy their supplies without incurring some expense; hence I can attach a little larger profit to my goods." Also, if produce is brought to you, don't pay quite the market price for it, because your customer cannot afford to drive off ten or fifteen miles for the few cents you are below the market price.

If you have been reasonably successful in your business undertaking, whether upon the farm, in the shop or in the store, and have a little surplus cash to invest, go to some other town to invest it, because if you invest it in home property or home enterprises others will very likely do the same. In consequence property in your home town will increase in value and your taxes will be higher.

If you want to educate your children, the schools of this or that town are much better than your home school and the right thing to do is to send your children there. It would not do to bring your home schools up to the required standard. That would cost you a few dollars more in the way of taxes. It is much better to spend four or five times as much in sending your children to these other schools; besides Bill or Mary, as the case may be, will have the credit of being educated at this or that school or college.

If a stranger comes to your town and talks of instituting a business enterprise, knock in every way you can. He would probably make some money in the operation and that would never do. He would bring some new blood into your town and you might not be able to dictate to him what or what not to do, as you have your townsmen in the past.

If you have a local newspaper in your town, don't subscribe for it; you can hear all the news without doing so, besides you have a telephone and can hear all the news in that way by simply taking down the receiver and listening.

Finally, if you have made a reasonable competence—have accumulated enough money to live upon in a moderate way, go to some other town to spend the sundown of life. It may cost you a little more, but what of that? Your are keeping your home merchant, who has helped to build your churches, your schools, and your town in general, from getting any of your hard-earned money and that is something.

If the above is strictly adhered to by the citizens of a town, the NEWS will guarantee that such a town will dwindle and finally die because of the lifeblood you have assisted to draw from it.

There are several things that will call for the wielding of the "big stick" before President Roosevelt rights all of the people's wrongs—enough to keep him quite him quiet busy during the two and a half years yet remaining of his administration. In addition to the completion of the prosecution of the trusts, the remodeling of the tariff is calling for attention. The immigration evil also demands strenuous action. Then the railroad question is not finally settled. The new law is yet to be tried. It remains to be seen whether the proposed regulatory legislation will regulate. Nor is the canal yet completed. The President will probably be a very, very busy man during the remainder of his term.

There certainly ought to be some way to prevent those bloody Russians from murdering by the wholesale, those seemingly inoffensive Jews. Religious fanaticism has been responsible for the spilling of much blood in the past and, with such peoples as the Russians, it seems the end is not yet. All really civilized peoples should unite and once for all time put a stop to such butcheries. The cruelty of Spain to the Cubans was a trivial circumstance compared with the ferocity of the Muscovites. Yet Cuba's misfortunes were enough to cause every American citizen to shoulder his musket if necessary to make Spain be good.

Congress will adjourn this week leaving the unjust tariff discriminations undisturbed. A little more pressure of a heroic nature will have to be brought to bear. There is no just reason why the American consumer should be required to pay one-third more for American manufactured goods than the citizens of foreign countries are required to pay for the same goods: The people will not submit to this injustice very much longer.

Probably no private citizen in making a tour around the world, who has not achieved success in statecraft or distinction as a great soldier, has received so much attention as has William J. Bryan. Mr. Bryan has the distinction of having been twice defeated as a candidate for President of the greatest Nation on earth. Yet he is more popular today and more believed in by the people than ever before.

WHEAT CROP WILL BE LARGE.

The present prospect is that the wheat crop of 1906 will be greater than that of 1905. The acreage in Spring and Winter wheat is larger than it was last year, therefore, the condition is quite so good. This is the prospect which is held out by the Department of Agriculture. The country wants to see a big wheat crop, as it does a big crop of all the rest of the important products. Probably the country will be gratified as regards most of them. That, at least, is the present outlook.

In 1905 the wheat yield was 983,000,000 bushels, which was the largest crop ever harvested, except that of 1901, which was 748,000,000 bushels. From the present indications the 1906 crop may go up to or above the 1,000,000,000 mark. The farm value of the wheat crop of 1905, on December 1 of that year, was put at $1,500,000,000 by the Secretary of Agriculture. From the recent average of prices the farmers ought to get about $300,000,000 or $400,000,000 for their crop in 1906.

From the data collected by Secretary Wilson it appears possible that the oat and rye crop of 1906 will be somewhat below that of 1905, while barley will make an increase. As an offset, however, cotton and corn are likely to secure gains over last year. The present condition of the farmers and planters will be better than it was a year ago, and the country will be in a better position to meet the needs of the consumers and the carriers. The producers and the consumers are the persons entitled to the greatest consideration, but the carriers need to be kept in mind. With large crops the chances to corner the market are small. The higher prices of the carrying market usually go to the speculators, instead of the producers, though the latter, of course, sometimes are aided by the gamblers for a rise. With the failure in the Argentine wheat crop, which is reported, the prospect for American wheat is likely to be large. The farmers are justified in rejoicing at the prospect of a big crop. The wheat crop of these days—St. Louis, Mo., Globe—Democrat.

Troops Reject Canned Beef.

When some American canned beef was served at dinner to the Royal fusiliers, near London, the soldiers refused to eat it. They were going without dinner some days, but they would not eat the great indignation was expressed in this and other regiments at receiving rations of this character after the recent disclosures of American packing house methods. The foreign consuls of several European governments have been instructed to investigate personally the conditions of meat packing at Chicago and other American centers of the meat industry. Expressions of opinion in England and throughout Europe continue to be of the bitterest character in dealing with the packing house revelations. The consensus of opinion is that nothing will restore confidence in American meat products until the men responsible for existing conditions are actually sent to prison. The Spectator says the two worlds have been shocked and irritated, and that the Chicago packing houses "appear to combine pretty well all the characteristic evils which degrade our civilization." Never before has American commercial honor been so attacked abroad and the American people so criticized for neglecting primary public duty.

Press Censorship.

Under well-meant legislation for the suppression of vice and fraud there is growing up a despotic censorship in the postoffice department which is most dangerous. A man invests his entire property in a newspaper to incite ideas which he sincerely believes to be correct, and for the benefit of mankind. A department official happens to hold opposite opinion and proceeds to shut off mail facilities, killing the man's business and in effect destroying his property without any process of law. The condition of things is open to strenuous objection. Not only does it put a power which should be confined to the judiciary in the hands of irresponsible subordinate officials, enabling them to ruin a man's business without redress, but it is a gross violation of the rights of free press and puts into the department's hands the power to muzzle the press.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Volcanoes Due to Radium.

Maj. E. C. Dutton, in an article for the Popular Science Monthly, dissects the theory that volcanoes are the chimneys of the world, and is convinced that they are situated over lava reservoirs, "rarely over three miles deep." Proof for existing opinion is the study of earth tremors or quakes, which almost always accompany volcanoes. They are governed by the same laws as sound waves. The source of heat, which causes the gaseous eruption, is the radio activity of the earth's crust in limited tracts at a depth of from one to three miles, thus causing a melting of the rock.

Bad Stomach Makes Bad Blood.

You can not make sweet butter in a bad stomach. The stomach serves a complex office in the digestive system and disintegrates our food as it is being digested. If it be weak, sluggish and foul the result will be torpid, sluggish liver and bad, impure blood.

The ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery are such as best serve to correct and cure all such derangements. It is made up without a drop of alcohol in its composition; chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead of the commoner employed alcohol. Now this glycerine is of itself a valuable medicine, instead of a detestable agent like alcohol, especially in the case of weak stomach, dyspepsia and the various forms of indigestion. Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says of it:

"In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. It is one of the best manufacturing products of the greatest purity in its class. It is a most efficient purgative, especially in the case of chronic constipation, especially the bilious variety, and also in the case of chronic indigestion, stimulating the secretory and excretory functions of the intestinal tract."

When combined, in just the right proportions, with Golden Seal, Rose root, Black Cherry bark, Queen's root, Blood-purifier and Mandarilla root, or the extract of those as in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, there can be no doubt of its great efficacy in the cure of all stomach, liver and intestinal disorders and derangements. These several ingredients have the strongest endorsement in all such chronic conditions, from the University of Prof. B. B. Burdette, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, Chicago; Prof. Robert A. Hart, M. D., of the University of Pennsylvania; Prof. Lawrence Johnson, M. D., Medical Department, University of New York; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Medical College, Philadelphia; and Prof. John King, M. D., Authors of the American Dispensary, and keepers of the leading medical store of our land. We have the highest authority in the world for a medicine the ingredients of which have such a professional endorsement: "Constipation cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One or two a day."
