Dr. Burmester states that very much of North Bend's development is due to the efforts of Mayor L. J. Simpson. The mayor is ever ready to assist any one who wishes to build a home at North Bend. He construes every working man to be a lot and build a home there, and usually makes it possible for the aforesaid w. m. to do so. Dr. Burmester states that, at least, 500 seagoing vessels arrive and depart monthly at Coos Bay points. Dr. and Mrs. Burmester will visit Portland before their return to their home.

Leg Broken.

Last Sunday Samuel Kunz was picking some cherries, using a step-ladder upon which to stand. By some means the ladder tipped to one side and the who's business—cherries-ladder and K. n. z. all came down in a pile. In falling, Mr. Kunz's right leg was thrust through the ladder and the fall gave it such a wrench that the small bone was broken just above the ankle and the ligaments about the ankle broken loose. Dr. Prill adjusted the fracture and made Mr. Kunz as comfortable as possible. It will be several weeks before he will be ready for work again.

Leonard Gilkey Weds.

A quiet home wedding took place at the home of D. S. Buckley of Tulare, Cal., on Sunday, when the foster daughter, Miss Edna Isabella Smith was married to Mr. Leonard Ernest Gilkey of Scio, Oregon. Only immediate members of the family were present. After the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. B. M. Davenport of the Congregational church of this city, a wedding supper was served, many of the dishes showing the superior ability of the bride as an accomplished cook.

Miss Simi is highly esteemed among her acquaintances and has chosen Mr. Gilkey a man of sterling moral worth and fine character. Mr. and Mrs. Gilkey were schoolmates in Oregon a dozen years ago, and have kept the acquaintance until it has ripened into a life partnership. All wish them well. Mr. and Mrs. Gilkey take charge of Mr. Buckley's ranch for the summer, while he and his wife visit a married daughter in Iowa.—Tulare (Cal.) Advance.

Who is the man? The Moral Observer says: A man came all the way from Scio to pay A. C. Thompson $137.50, for a mare and colt. In condition she would tip the beam at 1,700 pounds and the buyer wanted her to mate with one at home, giving him a $1000 work team.

Two games of base ball were played last Sunday on the Fair Grounds. The first was between Scio's first nine and a team from Lebanon. The game was a very listless affair after the first three innings, resulting in a score of 26 to 6 in Scio's favor. If Lebanon has any ball players the should send them over next time. The game was too one-sided and became tiresome before the ninth inning was played. The only unusual feature was the presence of two autos—Dr. Hill's of Albany and G. W. Hoyt's, of Jefferson.

Teams to Be Admitted.

Beginning Sunday, June 30, the Scio Fair Grounds will be open to teams. All classes of rigs will be permitted to drive into the grounds during ball games, but no driving on the track will be allowed during the progress of the game. When a game is not in progress, any person who holds a driving ticket is welcome to drive on the track.

"Stainless Flag" Sunday.

"Sunday, June 30th, has been designated 'Stainless Flag' Sunday by the Anti-Saloon League of America. On that day about two hundred ministers in the State of Oregon will speak on some phase of the drink evil and distribute to their congregations twenty thousand copies of Dr. E. S. Chapman's 'Stainless Flag' Address. Which are to be furnished free, by the Oregon State League.

This is a movement of wonderful possibilities and no doubt, public sentiment on the drink question will be lifted to a higher level thereby."

Sincerely yours, OREGON ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE, By E. F. Zimmerman, Supt.

Petitions To Be Filed.

Considerable interest has existed as to what the fate of the referendum petitions relative to the acts of the last legislature would be. Judge Tilson Ford, in his argument for the grants before Judge Galloway, showed conclusively that the old law was in force when the endeavor to file the petitions was made, and that the petitions complied with the law in every respect. This view of the case being correct, and it is not believed that Judge Galloway will construe the law differently, the secretary of state will be compelled to file the petitions. The work henceforth necessary will be to apportion the people to the importance of sustaining what was asked for in the petitions.

Homicide as a Remedy.

"He was the dispenser of my home, and I have killed him." It has become a frequent remark. But it never is spoken by a man who has a sense of his own dignity, and probably never by one who has been to his wife what a husband ought to be.

It is conceivable that there may have been faithless wives, in cases where the husbands were wit-out fault; but every person of judgment and fair mind knows that such cases are extremely rare. Nor are the thoughts of such husbands apt to turn to homicide as a remedy, for it is no remedy at all. Besides, this species of homicide is often the consequence of a jealous suspicion, as unreasoning as unkind, and the thought of which such a man may have been "despoiled" must have been anything but a paradise.

Of the man who actually enters the home of another to debauch it, it must be said that he deserves any fate. But blind jealousy, acting on mere suspicion, is not sufficient to pass judgement and to set upon it. Moreover, no man ever became the dispenser of the home of another unless the woman were as much to be blamed as he possibly could be.

If, then, the husband is to be allowed, to set himself right, is to take the life of one of them, why do we not make his justification obsolete by taking the life of the other also?

The husband has a right to expect fidelity in the conjugal relation, and so has the wife. Yet the husband is much more often the sinner. But fidelity in the conjugal relation is not to be enforced with implements of death, nor is vengeance so to be taken in breach of it.

What kind of husband a man has been to his wife may be judged with approach to infallible certainty by the accuracy he discovers in taking the life of the man whom he suspects of improper intimacy with her. Even if his suspicions are well-founded, it is not the remedy to which the manly man even will resort. For it is no remedy; the injury, indeed, is remediless, and insane vengeance only recoils on him who executes it.—Oregonian.

An Excellent Investment.

The News has heretofore understood that a milk condensing plant was a rapid money maker, but did not suppose the profit was so great as was explained by Mr. Olmstead of Albany, when he met our citizens at the city hall last Saturday evening.

The purpose of Mr. Olmstead's visit was to enlist cows to furnish milk for a condensing plant, which it is proposed to erect in Albany, on the site of the old woolen mills. He stated that, unless 4000 cows were promised the enterprise would not be undertaken. He has about concluded a canvas of the territory within a radius of twenty miles of Albany, and has enlisted the milk of near 10,000 cows.

Mr. Olmstead stated the cost of condensing, canning and packing in cases of the milk was $1.08 cents per case. Allowing the farmer $2.40 per cent, for the milk, the creamery, which is from the selling price of the cream—$1.25 per case—would leave a profit of $1.17 on each case. The milk of 10,000 cows would produce, approximately, 2500 cases, resulting in a profit of $2925 daily. It can at once be seen what an enormously profitable investment a plant of this kind would be. Nearly $24.50 on each of the 120 shares daily. The plant would pay for itself, on such a basis of profit, every month in the year.

It is understood that the elements and ground formerly used by the woolen mill can be obtained very reasonably, and the location would be ideal for a condensing plant.

Mr. Olmstead stated that all of the capital stock had been subscribed but about $10,000, or 20 shares. Before he left town 12 of the 20 was disposed of. Some 500 or 600 cows were enlisted, and the number will be in raised to 1000 or more within a year after the plant is in operation.

As a money making proposition, both for the dairyman and the speculators, it surpasses the most extravagant of dreams. Should Mr. Olmstead's words be made good, our farmers will soon be wearing diamonds.

They Need Protection.

The president's public land policy may not be exactly the best thing for the country in all respects, but his purposes are good, and in some points at least, he is undoubtedly on the right track. This is especially the case with regard to coal lands. The forest reserve policy has been carried so far, but has been in part corrected. The whole business is a complicated one, and any kind of a general statement is of little interest. It is these interests rather than the whole people that are represented in congress. The president stands for the people's interests, but it is difficult for him to move in any direction without favoring some special interests as against others. The forester convention is principally a conflict between different special interests. What the different kinds of land grabbers used as a law, if one were possible, that would permit them to rob the people and give to the sportsmen and to themselves, something to the nature of the protective tariff law, and make this species of robbery, like protection, a "principle of our government." They will rob the people of most of the public lands that are left, and the timber and coal, all right, but they cannot do so with admirable and serene peace among themselves, as the tariff robbers do. It is too bad that some law cannot protect all of them together in their robberies, and so establish a great national policy that a grand old party could stand upon and point to with pride, as something that protects American labor.—Oregon Journal.
