THE "BEST" IS NOT GOOD ENOUGH

RESIDENT TAFT is authority for the statement that the Payne-Aldrich tariff measure "is the best tariff measure ever enacted by a Republican congress." Yet he criticizes some of the schedules, at the same time. As a Republican congress has enacted, at least, four tariff measures since the civil war, including the Morrill war tariff, the earlier tariffs must have been bad.

Our present tariff law is said to be a compromise measure—a compromise between tariff beneficiaries and consumers—a compromise between right and wrong. As such, the present law is neither wholly bad nor wholly good. But the president's declaration that the bill is "the best ever," requires explanation. It cannot be best for the consumer, for he will not be able to buy what he consumes any cheaper under the new law than under the old and some things, notably, manufactures of woollens, will be dearer. It cannot be best for the nation, for it will produce no more revenue than was produced by the old law. Then wherein and for whom is it the best? As tariff beneficiaries are not registering any kicks against the new schedules, we can conclude that their interests have not suffered materially from the change. So now we have found to whom the president's "best" refers.

The people were dissatisfied with the old tariff schedules, nor will they be satisfied with the manner in which they have been buccined in the enactment of the new law.

The American people consume an immense amount of clothing and other products made in whole or part of wool. By virtue of the president's "best ever" tariff bill, they will pay more than 50 per cent. higher for these wool products, than the people of England are required to pay. That is to say, a suit of clothes for which we Americans have to pay $15, a like suit is sold in England for $10. All other wool products are in like proportion. And who or what is benefited by this advanced cost of wool products? Not the government, for the revenue derived from imported woollens, scarcely pays the cost of collection. Not the consumer, who is compelled to dig up an extra $5 more than his English brother for the suit of clothes. The wool grower and manufacturer, yes, for they are growing inordinately rich from the extra profit protection enables them to put down in their pockets. As there are, at least, ten people who neither produce wool nor manufacture woollens, to one that does, it is manifestly unjust that the ten should be taxed so heavily, that the one may grow inordinately rich.

Nor are the woolen schedules the only ones wherein the consumer is compelled to pay tribute to the manufacturer and other tariff beneficiaries. We pay tribute to the steel, sugar and other trusts, just in about the same proportion. Why, if sugar was on the free list, our people would not be required to pay more than $4 or $4.50 for a sack of the best grade of sugar. The $2 or $2.50 extra they pay, goes into the coffers of the sugar trust.

But it is needless to multiply examples. The American consumer because of this "best ever" tariff, trusts and combines, is forced to pay from 25 to 100 per cent. more than he justly ought to pay. Is it right or just that these unfair conditions shall continue? From the declarations of President Taft, we must conclude that such conditions will prevail so long as the government is controlled by the Cannons, the Aldriches and men of that class.

The average rate of duty under the present law does not differ very materially from the old, but the president can, arbitrarily, add 25 per cent. there to after January 1 next, if he chooses, by proclamation. So we now or will be, after January 1, enjoying the benefits of "the best tariff law ever enacted by a Republican congress." This is President Taft's opinion. The NEWS believes a vast majority of the American people think differently. They know that the protective tariff is, essentially a selfish policy and they soon will, if they have not now, concluded that selfishness may as well be invoked in the interests of the American home, as for the American manufacturer.

The question which should appeal to every American consumer, is now and should be until the matter is finally settled upon a basis of justice and right: Shall he continue to vote for the trusts and tariff barons as he has been doing in the past, or will he vote for the American home?

Every Oregon voter should remember next year, when Congressmen Hawley and Ellis ask for re-election, that they both voted to retain Speaker Cannon as the czar of the American congress and that they both voted for the present "best ever" tariff law, which compels him (the voter) to continue paying an extravagant tribute to the steel, sugar and other trusts.

But possibly, the president meant that the present was the best tariff law he could get the congress dominated by Speaker Cannon and Chairman Aldrich to pass? If so, the special session called in fulfillment of campaign pledges, was a complete fizzle. Instead of Revision of the tariff, they simply gave the country a rearrangement of the schedules, without reduction and, to appease the people, enacted a corporation tax law of one per cent, upon the net income. The Cannon-Aldrich crowd hoped this corporation tax might fool the people again and they knew that it would not materially injure the corporations. Seemingly they fooled President Taft, but the people are yet to hear from. The NEWS hopes and believes that the people, generally, will register an emphatic protest, at the first opportunity, against such balderdash. It is an insult to the people to suppose that they can be fooled again with such a pretense at tariff reform.

If the American people are ever to be released from being taxed to build up Carnegie and Havemeyer millions, they will have to elect a different class of men to congress. The Republican party promised fairly, last year, that if trusted again with the control of the government they, the friends of the tariff, would revise it in the interests of the people. Well, the people trusted these "friends of the tariff" again and we now have a specimen of the kind of revision these friends of the tariff has given us. Voter, how do you like it? Did you get what you voted for?

President Taft, as he travels over the country in almost regal splendor, at the people's expense, says the revised tariff is the best law upon that subject ever enacted by a Republican congress. Best for whom? Let the voters of Oregon answer 13 months hence.

SELFHIEP IS THE REMEDY

IT SHOULD BE REMEMBERED that Scio has never obtained an enterprise of a public character, which tended towards development, except at the exertion and expense of her own people. Public philanthropists have left us severely alone and they will, probably, continue to do so in the future, unless they should come among us for the purpose of exploitation.

If we simply look over our past history, we can gather therefrom inspiration to encourage us to future achievements. Our united school districts with the erection of one of the finest school buildings in the county; the municipalization of our light and water plants and the entire rebuilding of the same, last year; the building and maintaining of one of the best, if not the best, county fairs in the State, and the building and successful operation of Linn county's only milk condensery, are all evidences that the people of Scio and vicinity can take up enterprises of a public character and carry them through to a successful conclusion. In fact, without boasting, the NEWS believes that no other community in the state, considering population and wealth, has accomplished more in the way of public enterprises, than Scio and vicinity has. Linn county was the second county to of the State to adopt the County High school. Again Scio can claim credit, for the agitation and primal move to bring this matter about, originated in Scio.

The one great handicap which prevents Scio from taking her place in the march of development with other towns, is direct railway connection. This has been denied her by the Southern Pacific system, nevertheless it would have been advantageous to the railroad people to have swung the line through town.

It, therefore, devolves upon us to help ourselves again, even to the extent of going into the railroad business in a small way. By building a fraction of over three miles a railway line, we can have rail connection with both the S. P. at West Scio and the C. & E. at Munkers. By extending this line two miles further north, we can make connection with the Willamette Electric, which is about to take up active construction south from Salem. The necessary amount of money has been subscribed to make a survey of this proposed line and the work will, probably, be done this week. After which, the right of way will be obtained, when active construction of the line will be undertaken.

As above noted, Scio has the habit of doing things and, the NEWS believes, the railway problem, like other public questions of the past, will be successfully solved. When we depend upon outside help we, heretofore, have failed; but when we undertake to help ourselves, we spell success with very large letters. This claim is not made with a boastful spirit, but with a view that selfhelp is the surest and, perhaps, the only method of overcoming the handicap which the Southern Pacific seems inclined to thrust upon us.

OUR PORTLAND LETTER

That Central Oregon will, within a few years, double the cereal crop of the whole Pacific Northwest is the belief of Theodore B. Wilcox, president of the Portland Flouring mills. When opened up by the railroads now building, an immense acreage will be thrown open to wheat raisers.

"In Central Oregon," said Mr. Wilcox, "there are millions and millions of acres of land which, unless I am greatly mistaken in the nature of the soil, will be excellent for grain growing without irrigation. Out of this vast territory there must be at least 2,500,000 acres available for wheat. There is as large an acreage as now in wheat in Oregon and Washington. All that is needed to open up this great territory is a railroad and with two lines now entering that section, it will be only a matter of a short time before the country will be developed. Nor will the increase yield reduce prices. With such a condition of affairs as now exists, there is no danger of lessened prices through the exportation of wheat fields in Central Oregon."

One ton of Douglas fir seeds, capable of making 80,000,000 big fir trees, will be planted within the coming fortnight by the national forest service in this state. Fully one-third of this will be planted in the Bull Run national forest. Reforestation in the Bull Run reserve is undertaken with a view to increasing the flow of Bull Run river, the source of Portland's water supply. Reseeding of the slopes along the river is expected to conserve the moisture and practically double the flow. The present water supply of the stream is sufficient for Portland, it is estimated, for the next 50 years, but with double the volume of water now secured from Bull Run, it is thought the stream will supply Portland for the next 300 years. The forest service will experiment in other forest reserves of the state in reforesting barren slopes. Officials have been handicapped in the work because of lack of seed. There are but two people in the West who are gathering Douglas fir seed for sale. The crop gathered by these two is purchased by the forest service, yet it is inadequate by far. From $1.50 to $2.50 per pound is paid for the seed and instructions to homesteaders and others who care to gather it will readily be furnished by the forest service.

The old John Devine ranch, located in Harney county, and comprising 15,000 acres, has been sold by J. O. Elrod, a local real estate dealer, to capitalists of North Yakima for $300,000. The ranch is one of the best known in this state and the sale just made carries with it a profit of about $100,000 for the seller, who bought it 18 months ago at a much less price. The coming of railroads to Central Oregon has resulted in increased values for the body of land lying east of the Cascade mountains.

Ground will be broken early in December for a big cement plant near this city that is expected to contribute largely to the supply of this building material used in this territory. The new industry will have a capacity of 1500 barrels daily at the start, with provision for enlarged facilities later. It will cost 1,000,000. The plant will consist of 12 buildings, covering about 12 acres, and will be located at Oswego a short distance south of the city. It is thought that the field for a cement factory here is unexcelled, because of the convenient source of raw materials and the big market for the manufactured product.
