T. J. Munkers, of Portland, came up Monday evening.

FOR SALE—Horse, buggy and harness. Fred T. Bilyeu, Scio, Ore.

Rich Mexicans come to the American horse markets to get choice well-broken carriage animals.

J. A. Bilyeu went over to Albany, Tuesday afternoon, to look after condensary business.

Lee Bilyeu says the wagon road from Scio to Lebanon, is almost impassable where it is near the new railroad grade.

Vetch, red clover, alsike clover, timothy, English ryegrass and orchard grass at reasonable prices for cash only at J. F. Wesely's.

N. I. Morrison can make you Mission furniture in oak, maple or fir. Call and see his book of patterns at the Scio Planning Mill.

While the funeral of the late L. E. Miller was in progress at the Miller cemetery, last Tuesday, another funeral cortege came in from the vicinity of Shelburn.

The farm houses of the Simmons brothers, are now approaching completion. It will be remembered, they purchased the south part of the A. L. Powell farm.

John W. Richardson has sold his farm to Charles Chrisman, of Quincy, Wash. consideration $10,000. Mr. Chrisman is a son of A. C. Chrisman of between this city and Stayton.

This is poultry week in Scio. Large numbers of chickens, turkeys, geese and ducks are being prepared and shipped to various points, for the thanksgiving feasts, next week.

The Farmers Meat Market will pay the highest market price for beef, mutton, veal, pork, hides and eggs. They don't want the earth, but they do want your produce and are willing to pay for it.

The condensary people express themselves as being well satisfied with the progress the condensary has made. The only hitch is to get a sufficient quantity of milk, when it will become a money maker.

Department No. 2, of the Linn County circuit court had only 21 divorce cases to decide, this week. Nevertheless the public costs of a divorce is considerable. They cost high but, seemingly, some people must have them.

We are still in the market for all kinds of produce, such as Eggs, Butter, Veal, Hogs, Bacon, Lard, Beans, Onions, Hides, Fats, Beeswax, Cas-cara lark, etc. Prices always on top for good stuff.

J. F. WESELY

A car load of fence wire is on the way from the factory. On account of this car, we will give you special prices on all the wire fencing we now have in stock. Now is the time to buy your fence.

Chas. Wesely.

America is becoming the home of the best bred horses in the world and European horsemen are coming over here to buy. Five standard bred Kentucky horses were recently sold to be taken to Italy, for breeding purposes. Nor will it be surprising if English cattle breeders come by here to get new and improved blood for their herds.

A few good bargains in two patterns of dishes that are closing out. A few odds and ends of dishes that must be disposed of at very low prices, in order to make room for our fine new and extensive stock of Christmas dishes that just arrived. They will be open for inspection in a few days. Come and see them. No trouble to show them, whether you buy or not.

Yours to please,
J. F. WESELY.

BORN—To the wife of S. F. Zysset, on November 14, 1909 a daughter.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the 2-column ad of J. F. Wesely. A comparison of prices of goods of a Portland mail order house, taken from his catalog and the regular sale prices at Wesely's. Read the ad carefully, for it contains food for thought. See whether it pays you to send your money elsewhere, when you can do equally as well at home. Mr. Wesely will guarantee that he quotes the catalog correctly and that he is ready to demonstrate that the quotations published are his store prices.

Ex-Meyor Miller Passes Away

Lionel Edwin Miller was born near Brownsville in Saline County, State of Missouri, on October 8, 1861 and died at his home in Scio, Linn county, Oregon on Sunday, November 14, 1909, at the age of 48 years, 1 month and 6 days. He resided on the old homestead with his parents in Missouri until 17 years old, then moving to Oregon with them and settled on a farm near Scio, where he resided with his parents until the 24th day of November, 1886, when he was united in marriage with Janie McDonald. The newly married first resided on a farm east of Scio for about two years, then moved onto their farm near Shelburn, and resided there until about 10 years ago, when they moved to Scio where they resided continuously up to the time of his death. He was converted under the ministry of Rev. John W. Osborn, about the year 1882, and united with the Missionary Baptist church at Scio, and ever thereafter endeavored to live a consistent christian life. There are left to mourn our loss his faithful wife, an aged father, mother, two sisters and two brothers, and a large circle of relatives, neighbors and friends.

In all his actions and dealings with his fellow man through life he always showed true honesty, consideration of the rights of others, and always gave the hand of mercy, love and sympathy when the same was necessary to be administered. He was a man of promptness, accuracy and a type of a model good citizen, worthy to be followed.

Funeral services were held in the Baptist church Tuesday, November 16, 1909, at 1 p. m., conducted by Rev. D. E. Baker, Baptist minister of Lebanon. Interment in the Miller cemetery, near Shelburn, attended by his many sorrowing relatives, friends and neighbors. Pall bearers were T. J. Munkers of Portland, S. Phillipi, P. H. McDonald, C. A. Warner, James A. Bilyeu and Riley Shelton of Scio.

Mr. Miller was by occupation a farmer, and was successful. Politically he affiliated with the Democrat party. Served as justice of the peace for this district for three years; was elected and served as mayor of Scio for four consecutive years, from 1903 to 1907 and was elected and served as alderman of Scio for the years 1907 and 1908.

So one more of our faithful husbands, neighbors, and friends has passed to the beyond, and we say good bye Edwin, may you rest from all your labors and suffering in this life.

THE REASON WHY

ONE OF OUR CITIZENS recently assigned as a reason for not subscribing for the News, that the subscription price was too large; that he could and did get papers which are larger and better edited for $1 per year or less, etc. No doubt this contention is true and the News will not dispute the statement. But suppose you want to use the columns of the home paper to advertise something you have to sell, or to find something you have lost, or restore something you have found, then the home price becomes a great convenience. A similar ad in your 50-cent eastern paper would be of no value to you and it would cost four or five times as much for the advertising patronage is what enables these eastern papers to be sold so cheaply to subscribers.

But let us reason a little. Mr. Farmer. Five years ago when the News passed under the present management, the subscription price was the same as it is to-day, $1.25 per year in advance. Then we could buy a bushel of wheat for 50 to 60 cents, or most anything eatable or usable at half the present prices. We could then exchange a year's subscription for one cord of small fir wood delivered; now a subscription will buy but one-half cord.

True, we have increased the price of advertising about 25 per cent, but as we have more than multiplied our subscription list by 3, our advertisers gain rather than lose from the increase. During our ownership, we have given the News an entire new dress, typographically, placed new presses in the office and have more than doubled the value of the plant. Of course, it has paid us to do so. But our readers have the satisfaction of reading a much better printed paper than formerly and, we flatter ourselves, that we have not permitted our local or editorial columns to grow less in volume or in readability.

With this issue we turn over another new leaf in the publishing business, which we believe will add to the interest and value of the paper. Heretofore, our first and fourth pages were printed in Portland. It is all now printed at home and will be devoted more largely to home matters.

Again, because of the higher cost of living, we are required to pay more for help than formerly. Five years ago the monthly expenses of running the office were less than $50; now they are double that sum. Even the white paper we use costs nearly double what it did formerly. So we think our farmer friend's objection is not well taken. The price of nearly everything the farmer has to sell has doubled. Even the farm itself has doubled in value during that period.

The editor of the News is growing to be an old man. At most, he can remain editor in charge but for a few years. Other and younger hands will soon have to take up the work. But so long as we control the News, we shall endeavor to make its columns better and better, so that its weekly visits to the fireside will be welcome and looked-for with eagerness. We will try and make it worth the money paid for it.

Sunday afternoon just after electric light plant had been started up, the front of Dr. Prill's office was seen to be covered with fire and smoke. The cause was found to be some electric wires which had been used during fair time, to light up a street show. The wiring had been coiled up and hung on the building but the current had not been disconnected. A washpan of water applied by R. Shelton subdued the incipient blaze.

Mrs. Belle Yarbrough, of Ashland, paid the NEWS office a short visit last Saturday. Mrs. Yarbrough is a daughter of the late Hon. Harvey Shelton and has just concluded a visit to her relatives in this vicinity. In order to hear from them weekly, she had her name placed on our subscription list and will receive the NEWS for a year. In our estimation, this is a very sensible act.

The News is in receipt of an invitation to attend the big Republican "Smoker" billed to occur in Portland on the evening of November 24. The purpose is to lay plans for holding Republican mass advisory conventions, throughout the state. Whether they will be able to "smoke out" a representative bunch of that party at the "smoker" or at the conventions to follow, other than the bosses, big, little, old and young, remains to be seen.

The News is in receipt of the new advertising booklet which has been placed before the world by the Albany Commercial club. As a specimen of the art preservative, it is a hammer, showing both care and skill from start to finish, by the print shop which did the work. The advertising matter is both well written and arranged and the pictures are superb. This booklet placed in the hands of the Eastern man who contemplates moving west, is sure to have a strong influence in, at least, having him come and look at Linn County. It is only fair to state that the booklet advertises other portions of the county, as well as Albany and vicinity.
