ALBANY, OREGON

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Lee Bilyeu, Lebanon's rustling liveryman, was over last Thursday.

O. D. Austin, an Albany business man, was a Scio visitor, last Friday.

Jim Calavan, the political sage of Aumsville, came over on Monday evening.

FOR SALE—A pure bred Jersey bull, 2 years old. Cheap—W. J. Green, Thomas, Ore.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Pomeroy visited relatives in Lebanon and near Lacombe the last part of last week.

Schillings Best. You know what. Guaranteed or your money back by Wesely's Grocery.

R. Shelton is enlarging his real estate office by adding another room thereto and making a side entrance.

I hereby repeat what I said about Josie Rozpravka, it being not true.

ANNA LAMPLIT.

We overlooked mentioning that Miss Cleo Johnson of Corvallis, is a guest of Mrs. Jennie Warner last week.

New line of fall dress goods and trimmings arrived at Wesely & Cain's store, August 3.

John Curl, an oldtime resident of Scio, who now lives in Portland, is a guest at the home of Henry Ray.

Make money from your hens by feeding Lee's Egg Maker, bone, shell and grit. At Wesely's Grocery.

The two-months old infant son of Mr. Teter, who lives just east of the Scio flouring mills, died on Tuesday afternoon.

Save your chicks by using Lee's Germozone Diamond and Lilly's Best chick feed, at Wesely's Grocery.

This hot weather causes one to desire to go to the mountains, the springs or the seacoast. But most of us have to stay at home to keep the family pot boiling.

A few days ago W. A. Ewing sold a parcel of land adjoining his residence property on the south, to A. E. Randall. We understand the consideration was $850.

Morrison & Neal handles one of the very best binders on the market. It is guaranteed in every way, and more than any other machine. Call and examine before making your purchase.

Mrs. J. H. Holland and Misses Minnie Carpenter and Agnes Cain started for a two-weeks outing at Cascadia, at 5 a. m. last Sunday morning. Bert Bilyeu was the pilot of the expedition.

The Farmers Meat Market will pay the highest market price for beef, mutton, veal, pork, hides and eggs. They don't want the earth, but they do want your produce and are willing to pay for it.

Somebody's horse came across the bridge, Tuesday afternoon running rapidly. He was attached to a buggy by one trace, shavings dragging. He turned the corner towards the mill, leaving the buggy bottom side up, on the edge of Peck's sidewalk. The horse went on to the mill yard and seeing some feed in a wagon, stopped and went to eating.

New goods for fall arriving every day now at Wesely & Cain's.

G. D. Trotter, a Stayton merchant, was a Scio visitor Tuesday afternoon.

The best line of fancy and staple groceries in the Valley, at living prices at Wesely's Grocery.

If you are looking for some one and cannot find them, you will find them trading at Morrison & Neal's.

Raise fruit instead of bugs, worms and moss, by using Lilly's Best Tree Spray. At Wesely's Grocery.

Morrison & Neal will make you special prices on buggies and hacks from now until after the Fair.

Arrived at Wesely & Cain's store, August 3, a swell line of fall dress goods, trimmings and linings.

We have a fine line of mens harvest gloves, straw hats, etc., just what you need in the harvest field. Hibler & Gill Co.

If you don't know where to find us, we will try and find you. Call at the South Side hardware store and we will find you. MORRISON & NEAL.

HOP PICKERS WANTED—The E. C. Horst Co., of Independence, wants 700 hop pickers, about September 1. Hops good and yard is in good condition. The going price will be paid.

A census enumerator was in town last Friday, looking after Scio's manufacturing enterprises. There are four concerns enumerated as manufacturing plants. Can you name them?

A railroad man was here Monday afternoon. He was in tow of a couple of our citizens who seemed to be afraid to tell the NEWS man, probably, fearing that he would print something about the matter.

Material is being assembled at the public school building to finish two more rooms in the second story, preparatory for the high school. Five teachers have been employed for the coming school year.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Briggs, of Eugene, were visiting at the residence of J. A. Bilyeu, at the end of last week. Mr. and Mrs. Briggs have just returned from an extended trip throughout the Atlantic coast states. They visited at the boyhood home of Mr. Briggs, close to the city of Boston, Mass.

Harvest will soon be over and we particularly desire that people who are in arrears with the NEWS, settle the same immediately thereafter. Remember, life is short and you will feel like thirty cents if the Angel Gabriel asks if you have paid your subscription to the SANTIAM NEWS. You can save this humiliation by calling at this office and settling your account.

We haven't been put out of business yet and we will not be, if the public continues to patronize us as they have in the past. People who have been trading with us have found that they can do from 10 to 15 per cent, better than they could in the past. We make good our statement. On every $10 you spend with us, you are saving, at least, $1. Get prices at other towns and if we don't save you, at least, $1 on a $10 deal, we will pay you for your trip to Scio. We will have our Heating Stoves in before the Fair. While attending the best County Fair in the state, call and examine our stock of stoves and ranges. Everything guaranteed to give the best of results. Morrison & Neal, Scio Oregon.

Farmers Take Notice

We can furnish you with machine oil, valve oil, separator oil of the highest quality and at prices at which you have never bought for until this spring. Give us a call and we will convince you of this fact. If there is anything you need, you will be able to get it, day or night, as Mr. Neal lives over the store. Wake him and he will attend to your wants. Morrison & Neal, Scio, Ore.

Insuring Bank Deposits

a word from an evil disposed person without reputation can, at certain times, interfere materially with a bank's career and expectations. What we need and must have at all times in banking is confidence and stability. It is everything to the banker and we can not have it as long as we are subject to such performances as we had in 1907. At that time we were politely told that we could shift for ourselves and our correspondents would care for our funds. I do not criticize the big banker in this, because he, like everyone else, had lost confidence in everything and was obliged to look out for himself regardless of results.

We were all to blame, and yet it is not our fault, but the fault of our banking system.

Our banks were suddenly transformed into hoarding institutions and thereby created more mischief in a few hours to the commerce of the country than can be repaired in years.

The present is an age of insurance and security. We, as bankers, demand the highest recommendations from our borrowers and employees and yet we ask security from both. This is right and it is also right and proper to grant the depositor the same security that the government and state demand of us, especially when it is to our interest to do so.

Is it surprising that the depositor loses confidence when the only privilege granted to him for safety is to examine our published statements which, in almost every instance in unsound banks, failed to state the truth? Often, after a large failure, the bank examiners or their superiors admit that the bank was insolvent long before, but for fear of general loss of confidence they did not act as provided by law. Is it surprising that the depositor should lose confidence when the truth is withheld and he is deceived so that he continues to increase his deposit while the condition of such banks have been covered up by the public officials?

The wealth, safety and reputation of conservative banks are today too much dependent on the movements of the unprincipled stock jobbers annexes to the great banking institutions.

We must have something that will disconnect the affairs of the legitimate banker from these. With the insurance of deposits such men as Morse, Heinge and others will not be permitted by bank examiners and public officials to cover up their peculations of long standing for fear of producing a panic. With the insurance of deposits the career of this class of banks would be shorter. There would be every inducement to expose their condition as soon as their banking methods were discovered and their power and influence for harm to commerce in general would be greatly diminished.

When a proposition is favored by probably one-half of the bankers and practically all of their customers, is it wise to act as the railroads did, who now appreciate the fact that they were too slow to act and remedy their faults and so compelled the people to act.

Insurance of deposits can not be downed because of the individual banker who places himself, through pride in his strength, personality and reputation against what is for the good of the nation. The demands of great commercial interests, stagnant and prostrated at this time, will not consider this kind of logic as of much importance.

The banker who opposes the insurance of deposits because it might help a weak competitor and make all banks safe, must give his attention to something more logical because this argument is not sufficient. By this plan we hope to make all banks safe because our system is like a fence, it is no stronger than its weakest place.

A plan that will furnish and maintain confidence the principal asset needed in the commercial world is one that, I believe, will in time overcome all the minor objections.—D. L. Heinsheimer, President Mill County National Bank, Glenwood, Iowa in the Commoner.
