THE HOUSE ON THE HILL

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

A dozen other things of the kind happened during the first week, and then the citizens decided that an observatory was unlawful. They consulted a lawyer, and he smiled at them. He told them the town could be surrounded by observatories and not conduct with any law. Then it was thought best to make up a shake purse and buy Mr. Bushwick out.

"Gentlemen," said the telescope man when they approached him on the subject, "the price of this property is $500. Take it or leave it."

"But you have no right to be spying on our homes," was retorted.

"There is no spying. I am simply surveying the earth before me. If any of you happen to come within my range of vision I cannot help it. I do not think I shall write a book on what I see. I may, but do not think so."

The citizens refused to pay the sum named and went down the hill to their homes, while Mr. Bushwick returned to his post and his telescope. One of the residents of the village was an old maid named Miss Sanderson. She had a home of her own. She was fond of strolling in her garden. A Mr. Blossom, who lived next door, was fond of leaning over the line fence and quoting poetry to her. His wife had warned him to stop it or she would quote something to him, but on a certain afternoon he forgot the warning and was repeating "Sheridan's Ride" to Miss Sanderson when there came a wife, a club and a cataclysm. The telescope took it all in. The white flag waved joyously. Dozens of people saw it wave and went hunting for the cause, and there was some more to talk about. Two or three days later a committee climbed the hill with $500 in its blind pocket and told Mr. Bushwick to take it and get out.

"Gentlemen, I am sorry if you have been put to any trouble," he kindly replied. "but the figure on the property is $500. You see, a sort of real estate boom has set in."

The committee hemmed and bawled and refused to pay. Two days after that the report spread that the observatory man was going to have a night as well as a day glass—a glass that would almost see through a pine door. Then there was a bustle. Three men took up the task of collecting. Oh, no; they were not afraid of the day glass or the night glass or any other kind of glass, but it would be a great improvement to the landscape, to remove the house on the hill and set out some pine trees there. When they went up to see Mr. Bushwick again he wanted $700, but, seeing it was they and seeing they wanted to better the landscape, he would throw off $50 and get out. In three days he was gone, and the sigh of relief that went up was heard all over Lorraine county. Things do happen yet in that town, but the world never hears of them.
