Ten Mills to be the Levy

The school meeting at the city hall, last Friday afternoon, was quite well attended.

Chairman Peery, of the board of school directors, called the meeting to order and stated the object of the meeting was to levy a tax for the purpose of maintaining the school during the coming year.

There were more or less talk how the public money had been expended during the past year but, after matters had been explained, most everyone appeared to be satisfied.

Upon a motion to adopt a resolution to levy a twelve-mill tax, an amendment changing the levy to ten-mills was proposed and carried; after which the original resolution as amended was carried.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned.

Bryan's Service to the Party

a democratic president. This is the reproach Mr. Bryan had to wipe out from the democratic party, and with splendid courage and fortitude he has accomplished the task. When Bryan began, the American people had reason to distrust the democratic party. They had commissioned it to put an end to plutocracy, by the tariff for revenue only method, and for this purpose had entrusted it with power. Instead of proving faithful, the democratic party proved faithless, and from the party of the people, out of office, transformed itself in office, to the party of the plutocracy, to the just displeasure and disgust of the American people.

It must not be forgotten that the renewed confidence the American people now have in the democratic party, as expressed in the election last month, is in great measure due not only to the great ability of the commoner as a campaigner, to the breadth and wisdom of his statesmanship expounded by gifts of eloquence which have placed him in the first rank as an orator, but also to his sterling character, which in three fierce presidential campaigns could not be assailed by his bitterest enemies. The unfaithful democratic party has now come to be regarded nationally as the faithful democratic party largely because of the fidelity of William Jennings Bryan. In the party's councils this will not be forgotten, nor will it be forgotten by the democratic rank and file. In all sorts of political weather the commoner has been the true friend of the common people, an American statesman standing firmly for the American people.—Houston (Texas) Chronicle.
