West Scio Items

The mossback perched on a mossy log With back humped like a bull frog, Through many a month of sun and rain Croaked o'er and o'er this sad refrain: "It can't, it can't be done."

While men built road and threw up grade, And mile on mile of steel rails laid, The mossback sat and humped his hump Scratched his head and rubbed his—

Well, here I am writing spring poetry the thing most obnoxious to a newspaper editor. It must be the sunny spring weather we have been having that turns ones thoughts to romance.

Everywhere I see women tending their flower gardens and the birds and hens, too, are busily scratching in the fields.

Speaking of hens leads me to remember that one of our neighbors cleared above all expenses, $72.80 from 150 hens during December and January and another neighbor sold 250 dozen eggs from 200 hens during March, besides some of these hens were engaged in hatching out a hundred chicks. The chicken business seems very satisfactory here, though some have complained that blasting on the new road south of town has interfered with hatching.

Sunday night Mr. Channing received a telegram saying that his daughter, living near Aberdeen, Wash., and her child were very seriously burned. The Channing family left for Aberdeen on Monday morning.

C. B. Reynolds and wife, of Omaha, Neb., were visitors at the Burden place Thursday. Mr. Reynolds says we web-feet do not know what a grand country we have here. We think, however, it was Mr. Reynolds that did not know until he saw it.

In reading over this, I find that I left the last stanza of the mossback incomplete. As the gentle reader has doubtless surmised, he rubbed his rump and continued his croaking.

It is reported that the Trollinger Bros. mill will finish sawing within about a month.

Mrs. Marion Tindall spent Sunday at her home. She returned to Portland on Monday.

Several of the boys helped John Blno celebrate his wedding Sunday. They found a keg of hop juice and a good time was the result.

A great treat was given A. F. Gooch's household one night last week when Mr. Henderson, a violin player who had played for the Edison Co., happened in and made music until the clock struck twelve. Mr. Henderson is a great player.

Another dance will be given at the Gooch hall on Saturday evening, April 15.

When a Man Buys Clothes

He goes to the store in which he has the greatest confidence. He does not judge stores by what they claim to do, but by what they do do. He goes to the store that he has learned always gives all or more than they promise. While some stores are always promising unheard of values, it is quite often the case that some other store not claiming so much, is really giving better values. While we believe in advertising, we know that men judge us mostly by what we do, and hence we depend upon real, genuine value-giving, to get our customers, and keep them. ¶ When in Albany you are welcome to come to our store for a place to be at home. We are anxious for the particular young fellow, the slim young man, the fat man all who seem to have a hard time to set clothes to fit and suit, to come to us, as our store is the largest south of Portland, and none there are better.
