YOU NEED

An abstract BEFORE you buy property—its an absolute necessity if you want to know about the validity of your title.

Honestly, to buy a piece of real estate without an abstract is taking a blind chance on being sold an expensive piece of litigation.

OUR abstracts are correct and complete.

The Honorable Senator Sagebrush

ring and pulls off his coat," said the bribe taker, with an evil leer. "You ain't been fighting round here a couple of months without finding that out?"

"Go on," was the terse command. "As I was a saying, money talks, and right now, when everything is ready to pull off, Sheehan turns up and says the barrel's run dry. There ain't nothing left in it for me. By cripes, I'll show him!"

Blount went into a reflective trance with half closed eyes. Sheehan was the machine organizer for the capital—the "pay boss," some called him. David Blount's son saw the door to a chamber of hidden facts slowly opening before him. For some reason Gryson, the twice bought and sold, had been dropped, and his actuating motive now was plain revenge.

"Tell it out and tell it straight, Gryson," he resumed at the end of the hesitant pause.

"It's in the registration lists in four wards of this town. They've been cooked up two to one. I've got the lists of the crooked names right here in my pocket. Sheehan knows, the committee of six knows, and the senator knows. But I'm the man that can swing in them extra votes, and more than that, by gabs, I'm the only man! When I told Sheehan that a little while ago he invited me to go to h—l, I'll show him."

Blount's brain was in a whirl, and his heart was pounding like that of a man who finds himself looking over the verge of a bottomless chasm.

"What is it that you want to do, Gryson?" he asked when he could control his voice sufficiently.

"I want to give Sheehan and his machine crowd what's coming to 'em." "Will you make affidavits to the fact of the false registration?"

"I'll do anything to get square with that crowd of throw-backs!"

"Your affidavit isn't much better than your unsupported word," said Blount coldly. "Can you get any one else to swear to the facts with you?"

"Sure I can. I can get a half dozen of the boys in my own gang that'll do it."

It was up to Blount fairly and squarely to say the word which would precipitate the greatest election scandal that had ever disturbed the peace of the Sagebrush State, and the central figure around which the story of corruption and bribery would center would be his father! For five long minutes he sat in grim silence, frowning at the miserable traitor, who was shifting uneasily in his chair under the cold glare of the hereditary Blount eyes. But when all was over the traitor had gained his point.

"Go to it," said Blount sharply. "Swear out your own affidavit and get as many more as you can to back it up. Bring the papers here to me between 1 and 2 o'clock this afternoon. That's all! Now go before I am tempted to throw you out neck and heels. If somebody doesn't kill you for this piece of treachery you will be playing in big luck."
