CHAS. WESELY

The Oregon Blue Book for 1911 has just been issued from the office of the state printer, and a copy has been received by the News. It contains much valuable information and many statistics of the state and is profusely illustrated with fine views from different parts of Oregon. Anyone desiring a copy should write at once to the office of Secretary of State at Salem, as the supply of the edition is limited.

SNAKE ON LINE. TALK STOPS

A Reptile in Cable Box Crosses Wires and the Trouble Hunters Work For Three Days

Elwood, Ind.—"Trouble hunters" on local telephone lines learned something when a party line was found to have been put out of business three days by a common blacksnake. The reptile had climbed a telephone pole and got into a cable box, where it had worked its way into a mesh of small copper wires.

The current killed the snake, but the same operation "crossed" dozens of telephones. Men worked three days to find the trouble.

It is said to be the first instance of a snake putting a telephone exchange out of commission. What induced the snake to enter the cable box and entwine itself in the copper wires is a mystery unless it was cold. The wires in resisting the current threw off heat, and this may have led the snake to choose its novel resting place.

L. C. Trask and family of Jordan left for Portland Wednesday to spend a few days.

Chas. Wesely presented the editor with a nice paper weight Wednesday. Thanks.

Tom Phillips and wife of Jordan Valley were trading with Scio merchants Tuesday.

Guy thoroughly understands the meat cutting business and the local market under his supervision took on quite a metropolitan appearance. He expects to conduct a lunch counter for hop-pickers and to also establish a cleaning and pressing parlor.

While you are taking in the Linn County Fair call and examine my "Made in Oregon" heating stoves, whether you buy or not. I also carry the best line of steel and cast ranges on the market and at prices that can't be beaten in any other town in the valley. We sell stoves in Lebanon, Albany, Jefferson, Stayton, Lyons, Mill City, and other cities. We are here for business and want your patronage and will try and use you so you will come again. N. I. Morrison.

All of the locomotives of the Southern Pacific Company are rapidly being equipped with electric headlights. The system is the invention of one of the men in the Sacramento shops of the company and consists of a small turbine engine and generator. This engine has the power of generating thirty volts of electricity, sufficient for the headlight, classification lights and several smaller lights about the engine, all controlled by a switch in the engineer's cab. This does away with the inconvenience of using the old fashioned torch at night when oiling the locomotives.
