PROGRESSIVES PLACE POPULAR
MEN UPON BALLOT.

Candidates for State Offices Named at Bull Moose Convention Are
All Noted for Efficiency and True Principles.

Efficiency, activity, straightforwardness are the main characteristics that apply to the state Progressive Party ticket in Oregon. The delegates that gathered at Salem to name this ticket bore the good of the party in mind constantly, and also kept constantly before them the pledge that Theodore Roosevelt had made to the people—to carry out in the interests of our whole people the policies set forth in the Progressive platform.

This pledge of the leading Progressive was regarded as the party pledge, to be carried out both in the national and state branches of government, and the convention therefore picked or endorsed men for the state positions whom they believed would prove of substantial aid to Progressive policies if they were given office. From top to bottom of the ticket this was born in mind, and the men now on the Bull Moose ticket are such as should appeal to all truly Progressive voters.

A. E. Clark, long an attorney and citizen of prominence in Portland, was named for United States Senator. Mr. Clark knows the needs of Oregon as few other men do, he has the confidence of thousands of voters, and he has repeatedly proved himself a man of public spirit. Free of any connection with former political "rings" and combinations in the state, it is believed that he will poll a winning vote while factional leaders will defeat each other.

John D. Mickle, the nominee for Dairy and Food Commissioner, is also believed to be a candidate who will add strength to the ticket.

For Secretary of State the Progressives have placed the name of Benjamin E. Kennedy upon the ballot. Kennedy is a man well known throughout Eastern Oregon, where he is a general favorite with men of all parties. A man of wide experience and great breadth of view upon all questions, he is regarded as one of the best possible nominees for the position, and as one upon whom the hand of Victory is apt to rest. As a newspaperman, Kennedy was always known as one of the best.

Robert Service, the candidate for railroad commissioner, is well-known for the position by many years of experience in different departments of transportation work. The men selected as presidential electors are those who can be relied upon to cast their ballots in the electoral college as instructed by their home voters, while the congressmen who have been endorsed will add dignity and strength to the ticket.

"Tacoma News" Boops Up.

Recent press dispatches set forth that a man named Dover, said now to be a resident of Tacoma, has announced that "someplace in Chicago" there are stored away duplicate lists of the 1904 campaign contributions. Incidentally it may be remarked that William Hayward, secretary of the Republican National committee, says there are no such duplicates. Tacoma has long been a starting point of news that isn't so, particularly about political things. Tacoma, in fact, seems to be a modern rival of Chicago, which produced columns of "news" that was quite unreliable during the Russo-Japanese war. It finally got so that articles that commenced "via Chicago" were always regarded as taken. News "via Tacoma" now seems to be getting into that same class.

Bank Clerks in Line.

There have been numerous happy surprises at the Progressive Party headquarters in Portland, but perhaps the most unique of these was a visit during the lunch hour recently of the teller of the First National Bank. He asked for a pocketful of Bull Moose buttons, saying that all the "boys" in his bank, and several of the clerical force in the other city banks wanted to proclaim their presidential preference. Roosevelt sentiment in the banks had hardly been expected.

Farmers for Roosevelt.

A straw ballot taken at the Multnomah County Fair, held at Gresham, shows that the farmers of the lower Willamette and Columbia valleys are pretty strong for Theodore Roosevelt for President. While an effort was made to restrict the vote entirely to agriculturists, a few votes were deposited by visitors to the fair from Portland. The final count showed that Roosevelt had over Taft by 581 votes. "Straws show which way the wind blows."

Woods Full of Moose.

Reports made to state headquarters of the Progressive Party, at Portland, from Linn County, are to the effect that the only interest shown in politics in that section is "Bull Moose interest." A committee-man writes "the woods seem to be full of Bull Moose, and I think we will deliver perhaps even a larger vote for Roosevelt and the Progressive Party than was shown at the primaries."

PROGRESSIVE HEADQUARTERS VISITED BY MANY.

Rooms of Oregon Roosevelt Organization Always Filled With People Desirous of Learning News of Candidate's Progress.

One of the interesting sidelights upon the presidential campaign in Oregon to be found by a visit to different headquarters is that in only one camp does there seem to be any real activity. At the rooms of the Progressive Party, in the Hotel Oregon, there is always a crowd, people are constantly coming and going, and an interested group is always to be found standing before the bulletin board, wherein are posted the latest reports from all sections of the country.

In sharp contrast to this are the scenes at the headquarters of the other two principal candidates. Some slight sign of life may be found at the Democratic rooms, but at Taft's headquarters there is evident only the quiet and still peace of the grave. The voter who makes the rounds of all three headquarters will be impressed with one thing, no matter what his politics may be, and that is that the Progressive Party is interesting the people. And what ever the people are interested in is worth watching.

Buttons in Demand.

A number of clear stores in Portland have been giving away Roosevelt, Wilson and Taft buttons with each purchase. Two of these stores have already been forced to send for a new supply of Roosevelt buttons, but the Wilson and Taft stores seem to hold out well.

Tillamook County Right.

A poll of Nantuxa precinct, Tillamook county, taken by John Hellenbrand, Progressive committeeman shows the following result: Roosevelt 59, Wilson 20, Taft and Debs 5 each.
