ROSSINI'S MUSICAL WATCH.

A Stranger Who Knew More About It
Than the Composer.

Rossini, the composer, possessed a magnificent watch that his king had presented to him. It was a repeater and also a musical watch, for it played the maestro's prayer from "Moses in Egypt." But not until after he had owned it for six years did he understand it fully.
Rossini took a boyish delight in showing it and making it play, and one day he did so while in a cafe.

A stranger who sat near was attracted by the music, and just as Rossini was going to put it back in his pocket he stepped up to him and said: "You have a very valuable watch there, sir, but I'll wager that you do not know all its capabilities."

Rossini, much surprised, said: "I have carried it now for six years in honor of my king. It has never varied one minute; it repeats the hour, quarter hour, tells the minutes and the day of the month and plays, as you have just heard, the prayer from 'Moses.'"

"And yet I insist," said the stranger smiling, "that you do not know your watch wholly. I'll wager anything you like—your watch against 10,000 francs!"
"Oh, well, if you have 10,000 francs too many I'll take the bet," cried Rossini. "But now give me the proof of your assertion."

"Very well. The watch plays another piece of yours, master, and contains your portrait besides."

Speechless, Rossini saw that when the stranger touched a spring a lid flew back, disclosing his portrait, while at the same time it played "Di Tanti Palpiti," from "Tancredi."
"Good gracious," he exclaimed, looking at his lost watch, "it is true!
You have won the wager. But how could I know?"

The stranger laughed heartily and handed him back his treasure, saying:

"I am the maker of this watch, Michel Plivee. The wager was made in fun, but I am delighted that you, the great maestro, take such pleasure in my work."

Firinloens of Lombardy.

At Brianza, in Lombardy, there exists a most curious band, all the members of which play the same kind of instrument, known as the "firinloens." This corresponds to what we know as "pan pipes" and is constructed of reeds fastened side by side, the bass pipes being often several feet long, while the others gradually decrease in size. The "fir-inloens"—as the players are called, after their instruments—are, as a rule, ignorant of music, and they learn their tunes by heart—often from a gramophone. It is said that the pan pipe players experience all the sensations of intoxication after a march, due to their energetic blowing and the constant wagging of the head to and fro. The music, by the way, although curious at first, is not unpleasant.—Wide World Magazine.

An Old English Penance.

At Whitby, on Ascension day, is to be seen the keeping of the strange old custom of the planting of the hornpath, the oldest of the British penances. In the days of Henry II. the lords of certain manors hunted a boar into a hermit's chapel. The hermit shut the door and kept the hounds out, and the barons in their rage slew him. He, dying, decreed that as a penance the lords should on each anniversary of his death carry wood to the water's edge at low tide and drive in stakes. Should the erection not survive three tides their lands should be forfeited to the abbot of Whitby. To this day the ceremony is performed by representatives of the lord of the manor.

HOW DOLLS ARE MADE.

The Many Processes in Use in the German Factories.

The making of the composition dolls as seen in the German factories is an interesting process, even though some of the rooms are hot, steamy places where one does not care to stay a long time. First there is the kneading room, where a big mixing trough is set up, and in this all sorts of ragbag material are to be found—old gloves, rags, bits of cardboard, etc., and gum tragacanth. This mixture is kneaded by hand to the consistency of a paste, heated and carried into the mold room. There it is dipped up by women and poured into the patterns which are set up in rows.

The molds are put away until they are cold enough to handle, when a workman by a dextrous movement of his hands separates the leaden sides, and the doll's head is revealed. The polisher then trims off the ragged seams and sends the heads to another room, where the holes for the eyes are cut out. This is an extremely delicate task, as all the sockets must be of uniform size.
The work is done by hand, a long, sharp knife being used.

The heads are next painted, waxed or glazed, depending upon the character of the material from which they are made. The arms, legs and hands are molded in the same manner as the heads—a special machine being used for stamping out the hands. These parts are painted in flesh color, while the heads must have rosy cheeks, red lips and dark or light eyebrows, as the color of the eyes used may require. Putting in the eyes is a simple operation, unless the eyes are to open and shut, in which case the balancing of the lead becomes a matter of some skill.

Germany possesses a secret formula for the enamel used on the faces, and the dainty, natural flesh tint of the better grade of dolls is the result of this process. The making of the eyes is a dreary task, for it must be done away from the sunlight, and in some parts of Germany the eye makers work in the cellars. It is said that one town supplies three-fourths of all the dolls' eyes used. Violet is the most difficult color to mix, and few violet eyed dolls are found.

The wig is the final touch, and this is usually made of real hair imported from China. The hair used for blond dolls is the same, except that the color is extracted.—Mrs.
C. R. Miller in Leslie's.

His Hard Luck.

"What has happened to me?" asked the patient when he had recovered from the effects of the ether.

"You were in a trolley car accident," said the nurse, "and it has been found necessary to amputate your right hand."

He sank back on the pillow, sobbing aloud.

"Cheer up," said the nurse, patting him on the head, "you'll soon learn to get along all right with your left hand."

"Oh, it wasn't the loss of the hand itself that I was thinking of," sighed the victim. "But on the forefinger was a string that my wife tied around it to remind me to get something for her this morning.
And now I'll never be able to remember what it was."—Cleveland Leader.

A Bargain.

Some years ago Mr. Rudyard Kipling sold a book to a firm of publishers in London for a sum that worked out at the rate of a shilling a word—a fact which was very much advertised. A Fleet street humorist, for the fun of the thing, wrote to the author saying that as wisdom seemed to be quoted at retail prices he would like one word, for which he inclosed a shilling postal order.
The reply came in due course. Mr.
Kipling had kept the shilling postal order and written on a large sheet of paper the word, "Thanks!"

The Age of Rush.

An Englishman arriving in New York was taken into the subway by a friend. They boarded a local, changed to an express and returned to a local, all on the way to their destination. The return trip was made in the same manner, hurrying all the time and running most of it.
"Why," asked the guest, all out of breath, "why do you run about this way?" "Come on," cried the New Yorker excitedly, "I save two minutes!" "But," was the reply, "what —what do you do with the two minutes?"—Exchange.
