LETTERS FROM OUR COUNTRY CORRESPONDENTS

Sentiment Farm Topics

Harry Freeman came near having a serious accident Saturday as he and his daughter and son were in a buggy when the horse fell in such a manner near the Crabtree bridge that the buggy was tipped over and the occupants thrown to the ground. They were severely shaken up, but fortunately none of them were seriously hurt.

We are all delighted to read so many correspondents' items, as we learn what is going on throughout the forks of the Santiam, which is quite interesting to read, and to see so many taking interest in helping our writer furnish us quite a heavy list of home paper. So please do not forget your items, correspondents.

As Friday, March 7 was old Uncle Job Crabtree's 84th birthday, his sisters Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Turner and Mrs. S. W. Gaines joined in preparing him a birthday dinner at the home of Mrs. Martha Smith of Bacon Hollow. The old gentleman was delighted to know he was not forgotten at his good old age, and enjoyed himself like a boy with a pocket full of firecrackers.

Geo. Griffin sold two young horses to the horse buyers, to be shipped to Montana, for $255.

M. C. Gaines went down Friday to Fred Nesbitt to buy a registered Durham bull nine months old, for which he paid $75. A good price for a calf.

Two cattle buyers from Eugene were through this section looking for all kinds of cattle, and said they found them very scarce.

Santiam Farm still holds the big iron grey horse for some fellow who wants the finest young horse in this county. He is 5 years old, weighs 1800 lbs, gentle as a cat and as sound as a rock. I had rather have a small horse as I have rented my farm.

The Watkins agent for medicine and spices was around Saturday to supply his customers with their needs in his line.

Clifford Griffin has finished his contract of cutting wood for Mr. Fillpot and is now out looking after his best girl's interests.

Pitt Wallace and better half of the V farm and Mrs. Plummer of Franklin Butte were visitors Sunday at the Pie Eaters farm which made a pleasant day for all.

I have learned by a little energy on the part of route 1, we can have a route from Scio, which I think gives us better service and satisfaction, as there are several points in our favor and the citizens of Scio will cooperate with us at once. We should also take into consideration the interests of our home town and help to build it up, as that helps us. All that are interested along this line study up, and inquire into the advantages we would receive. I have always favored our route from Scio.

Geo. Bilyeu and wife, Mr. Ramsey and wife and Miller Carl visited Thursday night with Eda Bilyeu. Miller Carl and the Ramseys will move to Lyle, Wash, next Monday.

Mill City Items

Mr and Mrs W R Ray, two splendid people of Mt Pleasant, who have been visiting their son-in-law, Don McKnight and family, have returned home.

Jno A Shaw who founded the lumbering industry here was up taking a look around last week. The business which was started on a small scale and has changed hands several times has grown to such proportions that the Hammond Lumber Co runs two trains over its own tracks several times a day besides receiving a long train of logs every day from Detroit.

Clifford Wolfe a promising young man was killed last week by a falling limb. He was working in the woods for the Co.

The new school building at Gates as well as the old one were set afire last Tuesday night, but it died out without much damage.

The attempt to burn the two school buildings at Gates was similar to the attempt to burn the Sodaville college several years ago, where holes were burned through the floor in two places and the fire went out.

Burt Turnidge killed six wild cats and received $12 bounty.

A D Horner the leading merchant of Gates and Miss Bloom a prominent school teacher were recently married. They have the best wishes of everybody.

Mrs Burt Schroder began teaching in the Mud-Creek district last week.

Mark Reice has returned here from Bownsville where he was in business for several years.

SCHOOL NOTES

Miss Celia E. Bump spent Saturday and Sunday with home folks.

In oral spelling in the seventh and eighth grades, Loreen White has proved the best speller.

The eighth grade class is having a general review in reading and physiology.

The twelfth grade English class is beginning to study the classic, House of Seven Gables.

The physics class are studying telegraphy or telepathy—whether wireless or mental is a question.

The literary society will give a program Friday afternoon. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

The Turner Art Exhibit will be held at the school building the first week in April.

Shelburne Items

While at school one day last week Verie Tindall jumped off a bar and fell and was unconscious for a little while. He was able to be at school however, the following day.

Mr Hoagland spent Sunday in Albany.

Mr and Mrs N I Morrison of Scio were seen on our streets Saturday.

Mrs Shanks spent Sunday with Mrs Shilling and family.

Homer and Theron Russell were Sunday visitors here.

Rev Ketchem intends to preach at the Presbyterian church Sunday, the 16th.

Miss Frieda Steidel spent Sunday here with friends.

Ponies of Iceland.

Icelandic ponies aroused the admiration of the great traveler, Mme. Ira Pfeiffer. "In spite of scanty food," she wrote, "they have marvelous powers of endurance. They can travel from thirty-five to forty miles per diem for several consecutive days. They knew by instinct the dangerous spots in the stony wastes and in the moors and swamps. On approaching these places they bend their heads toward the earth and look sharply round on all sides. If they cannot discover a firm resting place for their feet they stop at once and cannot be urged forward without many blows."

The Easy Laxative

In justice to yourself you should try Rexall Orderlies,—your money back if you don't like them. They are a candy confection that really do give easy relief from constipation.

Good health is largely dependent upon the bowels. When they become sluggish the waste material that is thrown off by the system accumulates. This condition generates poisons which circulate throughout the body, tending to create coated tongue, bad breath, headache, dull brain action, nervousness, biliousness and other annoyances.

Avoid harsh cathartics and physics. They give but temporary relief. They often aggravate the real trouble. They are particularly bad for children, delicate or aged persons.

Rexall Orderlies

Come in tablet form, taste just like candy and are noted for their easy, soothing action upon the bowels. They don't purge, grip, cause nausea, looseness, nor the inconveniences attendant upon the use of purgatives. Their action is so pleasant that the taking of Rexall Orderlies almost becomes a desire instead of a duty.

Children like Rexall Orderlies. They are ideal for aged or delicate persons as well as for the most robust.

They act toward relieving constipation and also to overcome its cause and to make unnecessary the frequent use of laxatives. They serve to tone and strengthen the nerves and muscles of the bowels and associated organs or glands.

Make Us Prove It

We guarantee to refund every penny paid us for Rexall Orderlies if they do not give entire satisfaction. We ask no promises and we in no way obligate you. Your mere word is sufficient for us to promptly and cheerfully refund the money.

Doesn't that prove that Rexall Orderlies must be right? You must know we would not dare make such a promise unless we were positively certain that Rexall Orderlies will do all we claim for them. There is no money risk attached to a trial of Rexall Orderlies, and in justice to yourself, you should not hesitate to test them.

Rexall Orderlies come in convenient vent-rodent size tin boxes: 12 tablets, 30c; 25 tablets, 50c; 50 tablets, 90c.

CAUTION: Please bear in mind that Rexall Remedies are not sold by all druggists. You can buy Rexall Orderlies only at The Rexall Stores.

A ROMAN SLAUGHTER.

Daniel Webster's Deadly Work With the Ancient Proconsuls.

Daniel Webster had accepted the office of secretary of state, but did not meet the new president in Washington until eight or ten days before the inauguration. It seems that he had prepared an inaugural address for General Harrison. One day, among other arrangements, he suggested to the new president in as delicate a way as he could the fact that he had sketched an inaugural address, knowing that General Harrison would be overwhelmed with calls and business after his election and he himself having leisure to write. The general at once replied that it was not necessary; that he had prepared his own inaugural.

"Oh, yes," said he; "I have got all that ready."

"Will you allow me to take it home and read it tonight?" asked Mr. Webster.

"Certainly," the president replied, "and please let me take yours."

So they exchanged their documents, and the next morning when they met General Harrison said to Mr. Webster:

"If I should read your inaugural instead of mine everybody would know that you wrote it. Now, this is the only official paper which I propose to write, for I do not intend to interfere with my secretaries, but this is a sort of acknowledgment on my part to the American people of the great honor they have conferred upon me in elevating me to this high office, and, although, of course, it is not so suitable as yours, still it is mine, and I propose to let the people have it just as I have written it. I must deliver my own instead of yours."

Mr. Webster was a good deal annoyed, because the message was, according to his judgment and taste, inappropriate. It entered largely into Roman history and had a good deal to say about the states of antiquity and the Roman proconsuls and various matters of that kind.

When he found that the president was bent upon using his own inaugural Mr. Webster said that his desire was to modify it and to get in some things that were not there and to get out some things that were there, for as it then stood it had no more to do with the American government and people than a chapter of the Koran. General Harrison rather reluctantly consented to let him take it. Mr. Webster spent a part of the next day in modifying it. Mrs. Seaton remarked to him when he came home rather late that day, that he looked rather fatigued and worried, but he replied that he was sorry that she had waited dinner for him.

"This is of no consequence at all, Mr. Webster," she said, "but I am sorry to see you so worried and tired. I really hope nothing has happened."

"You would think that something had happened," he replied, "if you knew what I have done. I have killed seventeen Roman proconsuls as dead as smelts, every one of them."—From "Wit and Humor of American Statesmen."

A Perpetual Househunter.

The greatest house hunter in creation is the hermit crab. It is never satisfied with its whelk shell and is continually abandoning it for another. It is a most amusing sight on placing a couple of these crabs in an aquarium, in which they have a selection of whelk shells, to watch the way in which they change their quarters, tenancing each of the shells in turn. If only two whelk shells are available the two crabs engage in a fight, and the victor enters the vanquished one's shell, while the evicted tenant has to be content with the discarded shell of the victor. But within a quarter or an hour the victor renews hostilities for the possession of his old quarters.

True.

"It isn't true, is it," asked Rollo as he finished reading "The Pied Piper of Hamelin"—"it isn't true that he could play on his pipe so that the rats would go off and drown themselves?"

"Well," replied Rollo's father, "I don't know about that. I think it may be true. Your Uncle George can play the flute so that it will scare a cow into the river and drive all the dogs in the neighborhood crazy. Yes, I should say the poem is true."—London Answers.
