SCHOOL NOTES

A very pretty wedding was solemnized the eve of January 10 at the S H S when Miss Ada Thayer became the wife of "Tuffy" Brenner, Rev Celia Bump officiating. The bride was dressed in a charming gown cream serge trimmed in blue messaline, while the bridegroom wore John Sticha's blue serge suit. The young couple are two of the most prominent students in the S H S and each one of us extend our heartiest congratulations for a long and happy wedded life. Just before the newly weds departed a very delicious lunch was served. Those present were: Misses Mable Thayer, the bride's sister, Loreen White, Rova Tindall, Neva Balschweid, Nita Bilyeu, Lulu Clark, Ruth Evans, Remoh Evans, Miss Van Slyke, Eunice Simanek, Rolla Wade and Messrs "Leo" Wain, "Twitt" Miller, "Jack" Carson, "Eddie" Knauf, and "Mully" Donahue.

Most all the girls are looking forward to the Domestic Science course which is to be installed for the second semester. We wonder how many of mother's good old dishes will be placed "or the shelf."

"I have used it for years, both for my children and myself and it never fails to relieve and cure a cough or cold. No family with children should be without it as it gives almost immediate relief in cases of croup." Chamberlain's cough remedy is pleasant and safe to take, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. For sale by all dealers.

Doug. in Police Court

Cruelty to animals was the charge on which Doug Hamilton the wonderful character from Seio, was haled before Police Judge Van Tassel yesterday afternoon by Officer King on complaint of a person who saw "Preaching Bill" unmercifully treating his horse, Baldy.

In the police court Hamilton suggested that the fact of the case be suppressed for fear of the ruin of his reputation. He was given a kindly lecture by the police judge, who was thoroughly conversant with the circumstances surrounding Hamilton and the judge suggested that Hamilton return to his home. He was missing this morning. — Friday's Democrat.

D M John, district manager for the Oregon Life in Linn and Benton counties, wishes to thank his many friends and the policy holders who made it possible for him to write more applications during the year just closed than any other agent of the company. This is the second time the honor has been awarded him, and he wishes to say to his friends and all the citizens of his territory that it is quite a recommendation for Linn and Benton counties. He says the people are more loyal and more prosperous than any other part of the state, and he asks that the policy holders and friends of the company continue to recommend Oregon Life, best for Oregonians.

GASOLINE'S EARLY USE.

Ravel First Applied it as a Motive Power in 1868.

The first attempt to apply gasoline as a motive power was made by a Frenchman, Pierre Joseph Ravel, who patented in the year 1868 "a steam generator heated by mineral oils, to be applied to steam locomotion on ordinary roads." Ravel's engine was fitted to a small carriage and developed three horse power.

The Franco-German war put an end to Ravel's experiments for a time, but years later he built a motorcar in which petroleum was used for the direct generation of motive power. In 1876 Lentz invented a burner by which a mixture of gasoline and other naphthas, called maseout, was used as fuel on steamships. About the same time gasoline was used as an illuminant in street lamps, and later a new use was found for it in the manufacture of varnish and oilcloth.

Gasoline, amounting to 8 per cent of the distilled product of the crude petroleum, continued to be a drug on the market until the invention of the gasoline motor and its application to the automobile, boats, aeroplanes and hundreds of industrial uses. Several inventors helped to inaugurate the "age of gasoline," but the chief of them was George B. Selden of Rochester, N.

Y., the father of the automobile. — Milwaukee Sentinel.

The Too Faithful Dog.

A party of young Australians wanting a fish dinner filled a bottle with dynamite, attached a waterproof fuse and flung it into a pool in a creek. One of them had a retriever who had been taught to retrieve anything flung into the water, and the bottle had hardly touched the surface before Watch was after it. They yelled at him to leave it alone, but he paid no attention and soon was swimming shoreward with the fizzing bomb in his mouth. The young men ran for their lives, and the poor beast, thinking it all a great joke, came galloping after. He was within twenty yards of the hindmost when there was a stunning crash. Two of the men were thrown down, though, fortunately, not badly hurt. But of the unfortunate dog hardly a trace was left.

A Curious Memorial.

Projecting from the wall of a house overhanging the Lake of Thun, in Switzerland, may be seen the bow of a small rowing boat with the name Petronella painted upon it. The wife of the owner of the house was drowned from this boat while rowing on the lake. Her husband determined, as a memorial to his wife, to build the boat into his house. The room destined to contain it, however, proved too short for the whole length of the boat, and the bow projects from the wall, just beneath the balcony. The house is close by one of the steamboat piers, and the unaccountable appearance of this strange memorial excites much curiosity among the passengers on the steamers. — Strand Magazine.

The Lucky Horseshoe.

It was about the middle of the seventeenth century that the superstitions use of horseshoes as emblems of good luck originated in England. They were at first deemed a protection against witches and evil spirits and were nailed on doors of houses with the curve uppermost. It was the belief that no witch or evil spirit could enter a house thus guarded. The custom of nailing horseshoes to ships and other sailing craft is still in vogue in all English speaking countries.
