Notice to Advertisers

Several of our advertisers have asked for special rates on local advertising, and as we wish to be fair with all of them, and not show one more favor than another, we have adopted the following rates for readers to go among the local news:

Less than 100 lines per month, 5c per line; over 100 lines and less than 200, 4c per line. Special rates given on over 200 lines per month.

Chas. Childs of Brownsville, who is a candidate for the republican nomination for re-election to the legislature, was in town Wednesday. Mr Childs did some good work in the lower house last winter and is entitled to another term.

R M Russell has announced his candidacy for the office of county clerk, and his card will be found elsewhere in this issue. Mr Russell is well known in Seio, having graduated from the Seio high school with the class of 1906. He is a young man of sterling qualities and strict integrity, and will no doubt poll a heavy vote for the office he seeks wherever he is known.

By a special arrangement we offer the Santiam News and the Twice-A-Week Albany Herald both papers one year for $1.75. To those who wish the Daily Herald we will furnish this paper and the Santiam News for $2.50; less than the price of the Herald alone.

The Forty Year Test

An article must have exceptional merit to survive for a period of forty years. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was first offered to the public in 1872. From a small beginning it has grown in favor and popularity until it has attained a world wide reputation. You will find nothing better for a cough or cold. Try it and you will understand why it is a favorite after a period of more than forty years. It not only gives relief—it cures. For sale by all dealers.

Where Her Thoughts Were

The husband was reading a newspaper account to his wife says an exchange. Now and then he paused and asked a question. The nature of her replies made him doubt that she was listening closely. He accused her of having thoughts elsewhere, and she indignantly retorted that she had heard every word. He continued reading for a few minutes and then glanced at her. From the way she was in her eyes he knew her thoughts were not upon the item he was reading. So turning the sheet as, an excuse for a pause, he continued as follows: apparently reading:

"Last night, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, just a few minutes before breakfast, a hungry boy about sixty years old bought an orange for nine pins and threw it through a concrete wall twenty feet thick. With a cry of despair he jumped into a dry mill pond, broke his arm at the kneejoint and was drowned. It was only ten years later, on the same day and at the same hour, that a goat gave birth to six elephants. A high wind then came up killed three dead horses and a wooden cigar Indian." What do you think of that, dear? he questioned suddenly.

She gave a little start, smiled, and said: "I think that's a splendid bargain, Henry. You had better get half a dozen, for your stock of shirts is low."

Staying Home

When weather is confounded hot, I do not seek the sea; I find the old accustomed spot is good enough for me. When raves the loud midwinter wind I seek no warmer climes; I stay at home and do my grind and earn some wooden dimes. In other days I used to flee when things unpleasant tortured me, and bored me just the same. I left my home to dodge the heat that sizzled from the sun, and where I went the water beat upon me by the ton. I went away when winter shot its snowflakes in my eyes and where I went I had to swat mosquitoes, bugs and flies.

To forests, mountains streams and lakes at times I used to roam, and always found them tiresome fakes compared with old home. There is no paradise on earth—smoke that in your cigar; there is no place where joy and mirth and peace unbroken are. If things at home should make you curse and fill your breast with woe; you'll doubtless find that things are worse where you propose to go. If you refuse to mope and brood, your griefs will have an end; not latitude or longitude cuts any ice my friend—Walt Mason.

His Prayer.

O'Connell had got a man off at one time for highway robbery and at another for burglary, but on a third occasion, for stealing a coasting brig, the task of hoodwinking the jury seemed too great for even his powers of cajolery. However, he made out that the crime was committed on the high seas and obtained an acquittal. The prisoner lifted up his hands and eyes to heaven and exclaimed, "May the Lord long spare you, Mr. O'Connell to me!"
