AN EVIDENCE OF BRAINS.

When a person reads his home paper, it is an evidence of brains.

When he reads the advertisements in his home paper it is an evidence of more brains.

When he trades with the merchants who advertise in his home paper, it is an evidence of greater brains.

All this is what a worthy exchange has said, but we are in doubt. When one of your distinguished merchants, an ex-member of the school board and a man of the "amen corner" refuses to even take your paper then what's the evidence? Then what would you say? No matter, we know better. We know a man can run things generally, he can be a big "it" and bear a fine reputation, he can have friends that are legion and make a success and never read his home paper. He can run it down, he can spit on it and defile the editor, and still make things go. The home paper isn't much to such as him, and in the nature of things he isn't much to the home paper. Yet the mission of the country press is ever to note the progress of the community, to boast of the higher achievements of its citizens, and the Bulletin has and will unflinchingly perform its duty, he included with the rest. Likewise, pursuant to a policy long ago adopted, we will cover such as he with the "mantle of charity" should he stub his toe, should he bawl, should he lose his foothold and from his high horse fall.—Harrisburg Bulletin.

Cheer up, Bro Morgan. Harrisburg hasn't got a corner on this brand of citizens by a long shot. What would you say to a prosperous merchant who poses as a philanthropist and moral reformer, who not only refuses to take the home paper and makes his brags that he would not subscribe to it, but even taken time off from his business to try and persuade other people to stop buying it, because its editor was instrumental in providing a man a forger and anonymous letter writer, for whom this modest and unassuming public spirited citizen had stood sponsor? Guess we will do as most editors would under similar circumstances, i. e., continue to boost for the town, its people and their achievements, and cover this poor pin head with the "mantle of charity."

The fact is, the four magazines we sell with The News for 18c extra, represents the biggest reading value ever offered the public. Have you sent us your order? If not, send it or phone us today.

Baffling Old Age.

We have it on excellent authority that in a hundred years' time people will only suffer from old age just as we do now from bronchitis or tonsillitis or some other preventable disease. "I haven't seen you lately," our grand-sons will be saying to a man at the Twenty-first Century club, to which he will make reply: "Been seedy. Had a nasty attack of old age and have just come back from a little aeroplane trip to shake it off."—London World.

Well, They Were the Chickens.

Marian was allowed to gather the eggs, and there were so many that she dropped one or two, with the usual result. She hurried to the house and asked her mother confidentially:

"Mother, I broke two eggs. Do you suppose that the chickens will be mad?"—Indianapolis News.

Kafir Greeting.

"Saku luma" are the first words a stranger learns of the Kafir vocabulary. The expression is the common form of salutation used by the natives, and its literal translation is, "I see you." It is considered a mark of respect not to give the greeting immediately, the delay showing the reverence in which the native holds his visitor.

Accurate.

"See here, landlord," said an angry tenant after he had signed the contract for a year, "this house is full of sewer gas."

"Yes, that's what I told you."

"Told me?"

"Yes. You asked me if there was gas in every room, and I said there was."—London Answers.
