C. Shelley Killed

C. Shelley, a former Albany man, and for several years a Linn farmer, was burned to death while rescuing his four-year-old child from an upstairs room in the Shelley home near Waldport, according to word received in Albany today. The baby although severely burned is recovering.

The fire broke out in the night when the family were all asleep. There were eight children, all at home. After the family had escaped from the house, which was then a mass of flames, it was discovered that the little four-year-old was missing. Heedless of his danger, the farmer rushed back into the house. In an upstairs room he found the child. Seizing it in his arms, and protecting it from the flames by his body, he managed to reach a window and leaped to the ground. Four hours later he died.

The Shelleys lived at Albany some years ago and from here moved to a large farm near Shelburn, where they are well known. Last fall they left there, selling their farm and moving about for a time. They had recently settled at Tidewater, 17 miles inland from Waldport, in the Coast Range—Wednesday's Albany Herald.

The Shelley family was well known here and they have the heartfelt sympathy of the community. W. H. McLain of Shelburn was instrumental in raising a fund of $91.60 to aid the widow and children.

School Notes

Miss Van Slyke, a former teacher in the High School, left Thursday for her home in the East. The High School teachers and pupils gave her a surprise party shortly before her departure.

Two new pupils were enrolled in the High School this week.

The invitations to the High School Hallowe'en party, to which all the young people are invited, read as follows: "Hist! At the witching hour of eight, Nutcrack Eve, Oct. 30th, you are summoned to the Haunted House. Speak not the matter to any soul. Enter the grounds silently and follow the spirit, that will await you there. Suitable apparel for a witching night is desired."

Later—The date on the above should read, Saturday evening, October 31.

On Tuesday evening of this week Chester A. Lyon lectured at the High School auditorium on, "Two Ways of Living." Mr. Lyon is the owner of the Big Brotherhood Farm for boys, located near Lebanon. This lecture was greatly appreciated by a good sized audience.

Albert Taylor, Mr. Stewart, Tony Faltus and J. F. Wesley left Sunday morning for a week's hunting trip up near the headwaters of Crabtree creek.

Knockers Wanted

$25.00 Per Month—Read Carefully

Scio, Linn county, Oregon has more natural rich resources and various advantages, only a small percent of which are now developed and utilized, than any other town in the Willamette valley, and what we want is advertisement necessary to attract people that have the money, energy, and get-up-and-get sufficient to materially assist in developing our enormous resources and opportunities.

Since KNOCKS, while in most cases prove to be temporary knocks, but in the end prove to be BOOSTS, we have decided to offer to the best KNOCKER a salary of $25.00 per month.

Remember it matters not what you talk about, who you talk about, where or who you say it to—TALK—Knock something or somebody in and around Scio. It will reach us sooner or later. Keep busy, KNOCK something. KNOCK-KNOCK-KNOCK, keep everlastingly busy knocking and earn the salary for your trouble and time. Bear in mind that what you might knock even amid your own family circle, or what you might confide to a friend with the strictest admonition to keep it quiet, he promising of course to forever keep mum, will ultimately come to the surface and, while we do not care where you knock, or what means you employ or devise to KNOCK we would suggest that you knock as publicly as possible so we will be in a position to more promptly judge your efforts and give you prompt returns for your work.

We now have Schools, Churches, businesses, etc., that are a credit to the town, but we badly need other enterprises and improvements, and if we will only attract the people with the necessary capital, energy, ambition, etc., which can easily be done with little effort. We can make better business for those who are now here, make good business for those who might come in the future, have a better town, better streets, less taxes, better roads in and out of the town, a better light and water supply and other conveniences, modern improvements, etc., too numerous to mention.

The salary offered for the best knocker will be duly and promptly paid and turned over to some church or charitable institution now existing in Scio, as the board of judges may decide from time to time. The money is available and will be promptly paid on the first day of December, 1914, and on the first day of each succeeding month thereafter for a period of at least four months.

For further particulars address,

Adv. BOOSTERS, Scio, Oregon.

Sheriff Bodine was shaking hands with the voters of Scio and vicinity the last of the week.

Another Denney

Mr. Denney, the man who introduced China pheasants in the Willamette Valley, arrived in the city this afternoon from his home near Jefferson and will remain over tomorrow to attend business matters.—Albany Herald.

China pheasants were introduced into the Willamette Valley by Judge O. N. Denney of LaFayette, who has been dead for something like ten years, and we are sure our friend F. J. Denney who lives on the road between Scio and Jefferson will object to having this honor thrust upon him by the Herald.

Good Show Here

The Waltemeyer & O'Connor stock company which played here Friday and Saturday nights, proved to be one of the strongest attractions that have ever played in Scio. Every member of the company is deserving of special mention and players of less merit are frequently seen in cities as large as Portland.

It is their intention to make a regular circuit of the small towns in this part of the Valley and needless to say, their names at the head of the bill will assure a full house in Scio whenever they play a return engagement.

Call at the People's Store and see the valuable premiums given free with cash purchases.

Wanted—Fifteen head of ewe sheep. Must be young. Address Emil Holub, Crabtree, Oregon.

When renewing your subscription to The News don't forget to remind us of the big magazine offer.

Cal Carson transacted business in Lebanon Tuesday.

George Rodgers is building a 14-foot wheel on his place with a view of installing a private electric plant for lighting and power purposes.

The Houser-Ballantyne Co. will move their office the first of the month from town to the flume two miles east of Scio.

Carl Cyrus, who has been working in a garage in Portland, came home Monday evening and will remain until about February 1, when work will open up again in his line at Portland.

N. Young arrived home from Corvallis Monday morning after a visit with his children at that place. He was accompanied home by his son Mel of Portland, who had also been visiting at Corvallis.

Miss Nelly Van Slyke left last Thursday for her home at Springville, New York. She has made her home for the past two years with her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Prill, and has made many friends in Scio who regret to see her leave. Mrs. Prill accompanied her as far as Portland, and remained for a few days' visit with friends.

John W. Richardson

John Wesley Richardson was born in Adams County, in the state of Illinois, on January 1, 1833, and died at his home in Scio, Linn County, Oregon, on October 20th, 1914, at the age of 81 years, 9 months and 19 days.

He crossed the plains from Illinois in 1851 with his father, mother, 9 brothers and one sister, and resided during the winter of 1851 on Thomas creek east of Scio. In 1852 his father purchased a land claim on Crabtree creek about five miles southeast of Scio, and the family moved thereon, where his parents resided until their death. Mr. Richardson took up a donation land claim adjoining his father's land on the east, where he continually resided for 56 years, moving from the farm to Scio in 1910 where he resided with his wife up to the time of his death.

He was married near Providence Church on July 23, 1854, to Mary Ann Konkright. To this union 6 children were born, three daughters and three sons, the oldest boy dying March 4, 1863, when only a small child. Surviving him of his own family is his widow, Mary A. Richardson of Scio, Melvina Brenner of Eight Mile, Melvina Curl of an Diego, Cal., Malissa Turner of Waterville, Wash., Wilson Richardson of Crabtree, and Truman E. Richardson of Portland. He united with the Christian church at Scio in 1855 and continued his membership in this church up to the time of his death. His parents, brothers and sister have all passed away, he being the last to follow although he had almost been an invalid for a number of years.

Mr. Richardson always manifested a Christian spirit in his dealings with his fellow men, was a noble neighbor, sharing with them the fruits of his labor, making them feel more grateful and cheerful by his kind acts, and being of a pioneer family always greeted those that came into his home with that warm hospitality, that characterizes a good citizen. He always returned thanks to our Heavenly Father at his table for the bounties and temporal wants supplied and prepared by his hands and that if his dear wife, was a man of unquestioned honor and integrity, a kind husband and father, and we would all do well to emulate and create in us a like Christian spirit and bestow to others the same kindness as done and bestowed by our dear citizen. So at this time may we all express our appreciation for his life and worth among us, as one more of our pioneer fathers, citizens and home builders has passed to his resting place.
