

Now Who's to Blame?

In the issue of the Santiam News of November 4, "A Subscriber" has a fit because the farmer asks $1 per bushel for wheat. I wonder if the farmer doesn't have as good a right to brand his wheat $1 per bushel as Bergman has to brand his shoes $9.50. Why kick at the farmer? Whose fault is it because he asks $2 for a 120 pound sack of wheat? If a poor laboring man wants to buy a package of Quaker Puffed Wheat, what do you suppose? The rate of over $28 per bushel is the price they ask for wheat that some farmer has sold for about 75c per bushel. Now who is the cause of the high cost of living? Some say war, war, but I don't see it that way. Some cry farmers' unions, but there would not be any of them if the producers were selling direct to the consumer. Like a swarm of bees the more drones the harder the workers have to work, but please kick yourselves instead of the farmer, wage earner, etc.

A Reader.

They regulated the action of my bowels and the headache and other annoyances ceased in a short time." Obtainable everywhere.
